Robert Williamson, 28, Parole Violator, Is Returned to New York to Face Questioning

A man arrested here as a parole violator was returned to New York Monday afternoon to face charges in connection with the robbery of more than $7,000 from two Metropolitan Life Insurance Company girl cashiers May 5.

Robert Williamson, 28, of New York, was turned over about 3 p. m. at the court house here to a parole officer and three New York city detectives.

Shortly after he was arrested by local police and parole officers in Kingston on May 14, authorities found about $1,100 in the glove compartment of the car he had been driving, and more than $170 on his person.

Faces Three Charges

Detective Peter Naton of the 20th Squad Detectives, New York, told The Freeman that Williamson will be charged with robbery, assault and illegal possession of a pistol.

Naton said police were notified at 2:30 p. m. May 5 that two cashiers of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company were held up in an elevator at the firm's branch office at 2315 Broadway, New York, while they were on their way to a bank.

The women, Miss May Costello and Miss Helen McInerney, left the third floor of the building, Miss Costello carrying an envelope containing $7,562 in cash and Miss McInerney carrying one with checks.

A young man followed them into the elevator, armed with a pistol, and ordered the operator, Charles McElwain, to go to the basement, according to the police report. There, police were told, he took the cash envelope but spurned the other after he examined it and found the checks. After locking the two cashiers and the elevator operator in a basement room, he made his escape.

Given 'Good Description'

Detective Naton said police were given a "good description" of the man.

With Naton in Kingston Monday were Detectives Leigh Wilson and Matthew Herberich, both of the 110th Squad Detectives.

Korean Truce Talks Recess for Six Days

Informed UN Command Says if Negotiations Collapse Allies Probably Will Free 34,000 North Korean Prisoners

Tokyo, May 19 (AP)—The Korean truce talks were recessed for another six days today and an informed UN command source said if negotiations collapse the allies probably will free 34,000 North Korean prisoners who refuse to return to Communist rule.

There were reports in Tokyo the allies were preparing a revised armistice plan that might set a time limit on the peace talks.

The UN command asked an extension until next Monday of the three-day recess that was due to end tomorrow. The Reds agreed at a liaison meeting at Panmunjom.

A source close to Gen. Mark Clark's headquarters said the UN command is considering turning loose as civilians balky North Koreans.

The ultimate disposition of these and 14,500 Chinese captives who also have renounced communism is the last major block to a truce.

The sources said a precedent for freeing captives already had been set by the Reds.

"They say they freed 'at the front' 50,000 allied prisoners they grabbed early in the Korean War," said the source, whose name cannot be revealed.

"There is no reason to keep holding these North Korean prisoners. They hate communism and will not go back to it under any circumstances.

"They are anxious to get back to their wives and families and be assimilated in South Korea among people of their own nationality who also are opposed to communism.

"The 14,500 Chinese prisoners held by the UN command are another thing. They do not want to return to communism either. But their future is something to talk about."

A South Korean official called on the UN command to release the North Korean captives "immediately whether the Communists like it or not."

Should Set Time Limit

Dr. Karl Hong Ki in an official government statement released at Seoul, also said the allies should set a time limit on the truce negotiations. If they are not successfully concluded within the specified period, he said, the UN should launch an all-out offensive to drive the Reds "out of our territory."

The UN command said it asked for the extended recess in the truce talks for "more time to review past efforts * * * and to consider completely the present position of both sides" with regard to the prisoner deadlock.

Last week Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., chief allied truce delegate, gave "administrative problems" as the reason for the first recess.

Tuesday's explanation only mentioned "reviewing" the prisoner question.

The UN command statement explaining the new recess request said the longer period would give the Reds "an opportunity" for "careful consideration" of past and present efforts to settle the POW problem.

The UN in its latest proposal suggested turning loose the 34,000 North Koreans as soon as an armistice is reached and letting the 14,500 Chinese be taken into custody in South Korea of a five nation neutral repariation commission composed of India, Sweden, Switzerland, Poland and Chzechoslovakia.

The Communists said such a proposal was "unthinkable." They agreed to let the 48,500 prisoners remain in South Korea under neutral custody but do not want them set free until given a chance to send representatives among them "to explain things."

Eisenhower Favors Present Tax System

To Address U.S. Tonight On Plans

Chief Executive Will Seek Extension of Profits, Individual Levies

Washington, May 19 (AP)—President Eisenhower will ask Congress to extend the excess profits tax for six months beyond July 1—the present expiration date.

He will also recommend that individual income taxes be maintained at the present level for the rest of the year.

GOP congressional leaders reported after a conference with Eisenhower today that these are among his planned fiscal proposals.

Eisenhower is to go on the radio tonight at 9:30 p. m. (EST) to give the nation the background of financial and defense problems leading to his decisions. The address will be broadcast on all major networks.

The President's decisions run contrary to a considerable body of sentiment in his own party in Congress.

There have been demands to let the excess profits tax on corporations die June 30 and some members of Congress have been urging an income tax cut of about 10 per cent effective July 1.

Senator Saltonstall (R.-Mass.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Rep. Short (R.-Mo.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, gave newsmen the report on the President's intentions as outlined to them at the White House session.

They held a news conference after they and other GOP congressional leaders had conferred with Eisenhower for more than an hour.

At the session, they said, Eisenhower reviewed the radio speech he will make.

Says Strength Is Doubled

Short seemed at one point to be preparing to tell of at least one more decision in the tax field but James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, suggested something ought to be left for the President himself to disclose.

Short, agreeing with a laugh, declined to discuss the tax situation further.

Short told reporters that since the Eisenhower administration took office Jan. 20, the effective strength of the air force has been "practically doubled."

He said the air force had about 47 combat wings in January and that the number had been built up to about 73.

The program calls for about 114 wings by July 1, 1954, and about 120 by July 1, 1955, Short said.

Saltonstall said there has been much talk about abandoning a goal of 143 combat wings. He commented that the 120 wing goal Eisenhower is shooting for actually will provide "more security

Negligence Case Dismissed Today In Supreme Court

Action Resulting From Fatal Car Accident Is Scheduled for This Afternoon

Action was dismissed in Supreme Court about noon today in the negligence action brought by Harry G. Starr of New York against Adrian Worth and another.

The action was dismissed upon motion of Michael Nardone, defense attorney, upon the conclusion of the plaintiff's case. Justice William Deckelman presided.

The next action to be heard this afternoon will be one brought by Joseph Avis, local attorney, against Joseph Bua of Brooklyn. The action arises from an automobile accident September 4, 1950, in which Max Leventhal of the Bronx was fatally injured.

Avis was the driver of the car in which Leventhal was riding. Bua was the driver of the other car involved in the crash on Route 9W, near West Park.

Cases No. 110 and 137 were announced settled today.

Injured in Fall

The action was brought by Starr who claimed negligence on the part of a ranch operated by Worth at Wallkill resulted in his fall from a horse at the ranch on September 11, 1948, in which he was severely injured.

Starr, who at the time of the accident was 59, spent most of yesterday afternoon's session on the witness stand. He contended the horse given him was "not suitable to his capacity" and that ranch employes had left an opening in the fence around the ring, through which, Starr contended, the horse dashed, throwing him to the ground. During cross-examination by attorney Michael Nardone, who appeared on behalf of the defendants, Starr revealed that he had undergone an operation earlier in the year and had been told by the doctor that he should not ride for a period following the operation.

Simon Klein of New York was attorney for Starr, while Samuel Weiss was attorney of record for the defendants, with Nardone as counsel.

Monday morning's session of court opened with a memorial service for Assemblyman John F. Wadlin, who died April 30.

Wadlin Resolution

A resolution of the Ulster County Bar Association, which was made a part of the court record, pointed out that Assemblyman Wadlin's "fine legal mind, sound judgment and friendly personality enabled him to build a thriving legal practice in southern Ulster county. Early in his career he displayed those qualities of leadership which were to lead him to success in the political field."

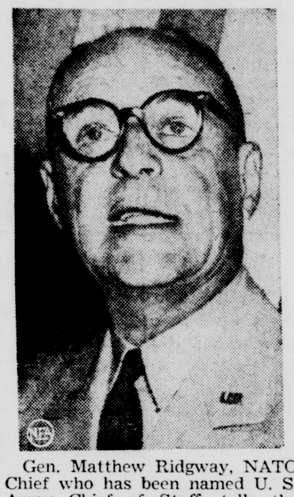

Pointing also to his work in the field of labor legislation, the resolution stated, "His record in the legislature is a course of pride to his friends and a credit to his district."

In his passing, the resolution continued "The Ulster County Bar has lost an able lawyer and one whose life has exemplified the finest traditions of our profession, the county of Ulster has lost one of its outstanding citizens and the state of New York one of its ablest legislators."

In a brief address to the court, County Attorney Frederick H. Stang recalled Wadlin as chairman of the board of supervisors was "always calm, cool and collected, never losing sight of his

Authority

Gen. Matthew Ridgway, NATO Chief who has been named U. S. Army Chief of Staff, tells the House Foreign Affairs Committee in Washington that the Allies in Europe are "still gravely short of airpower." He also listed major deficiencies in supplies and ammunition and backed up the administration's five billion dollar foreign aid program. (NEA Telephoto).

Claims Red Peace Offensive Slows Military Buildup

Gen. Ridgway Says Effect of Communist Plan Has Adverse Reaction in Some NATO Lands

Washington, May 19 (AP)—The Soviet "peace offensive" has slowed down the military buildup in Europe, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway told senators today.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization commander testified to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that it has had "a recognizable adverse reaction in certain segments of (Europe) public opinion" on the free world's defense preparations.

The effect, he said, has been a tendency in some nations "to put off the evil day of decision on assumption of unpleasant burdens."

The general described that as "a perfectly natural reaction" of peoples longing for peace.

Says Progam Vital

Ridgway, testifying in behalf of the Eisenhower administration's $5,800,000,000 Foreign Aid bill, told the committee "the Mutual Security program is a vital factor in the keeping of our momentum."

Before Ridgway went on the stand Chairman Wiley (R.-Wis.) of the committee predicted his

Dr. Wolff Named To Industrial Board

Dr. Sidney Wolff was appointed to a vacancy on the board of directors at a meeting of the board of the Kingston Industrial Development Corporation at the Governor Clinton Hotel last night.

Only 11 board members had been previously elected whereas the by-laws, adopted later, call for 12.

Henry Gallien of the New York State Department of Commerce in charge of industrial promotion, addressed the group, describing the operation of similar organizations in other communities as a guide for the Kingston corporation.

Tells of Long Grilling By Czechs Before Trial

Freed Correspondent Says He Plans to Make Study of Record

New York, May 19 (AP)—William N. Oatis says he was questioned many times for as much as eight hours a day during a two-month period before his "espionage" trial in Communist Czechoslovakia.

The 39-year-old Associated Press correspondent, who returned yesterday to the United States after spending 25 months in a Prague prison, had no announced plans for today.

But he has indicated there are two things high on his agenda for the new days of freedom—first, an effort to regain the lost moments of separation from his wife, Laurabelle; and, second, a study of the record of his trial.

Oatis was freed by the Czechs Saturday. He had been serving a 10-year sentence for engaging in what the Communists called "espionage" while working as an Associated Press correspondent in Prague.

Brief Reunion With Wife

The slight, bespectacled newsmen met with reporters in an hour-long news conference at New York's International Airport yesterday shortly after his arrival by plane from Germany. He faced the newsmen with his wife at his side following a brief, semi-private reunion with her aboard the plane.

Although speaking at length on many phases of his experiences, Oatis declined at times to answer questions or to go into details. He indicated that he himself was not fully acquainted with all aspects of his case.

He spoke of his treatment by his Czech jailers, saying they had effective methods of obtaining confessions. However, he added that to the best of his knowledge no drugs were used on him. He said:

TB Group Elects Holcomb as Head

Succeeds Harry S. Ensign Who Served in Office Since 1946

Dr. Frederick W. Holcomb, Sr., of Kingston was elected president of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association at a directors meeting which followed the association's annual dinner meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Monday night.

Dr. Holcomb succeeds Harry S. Ensign, also of Kingston, who declined to be considered a candidate for re-election. Ensign was president since 1946. He has been a member of the board of directors of the association for 21 years and was treasurer from 1932 to 1938.

The newly elected president became a member of the board of directors in 1927, and has attended practically every meeting of the board during the 26 years he has served. He was medical director of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital from the time it opened in 1931 until 1947.

No Useless Persons

The principal speaker for the annual meeting was Albert J. Abrams, director of the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Problems of the Aging.

"In the economy of God, there is no such thing as a useless person," Abrams said. In Kingston, he said, there are 1,280 persons who are 75 or older, among whom are 203 persons 85 or older.

In the past 10 years, Kingston has had an increase of 19 per cent in the number of persons over 65 years old, he said.

"The challenge that faces communities throughout our country is how to keep our senior citizens useful, active, loved and wanted," Abrams said.

The speaker paid high tribute to Senator Arthur H. Wicks of Kingston for the "all-out support" he has given the joint legislative committee, whose chairman, Senator Thomas C. Desmond of Newburgh, initiated the so-called Desmond Plan as a means of providing for new status for the aged.

Says Wicks Vital Factor

Abrams disclosed that the majority leader of the state Senate was "a vital factor in initiating the first legislative committee ever set up in this country to develop a new way of life for our old folks. His continued support has enabled the committee to pioneer in opening up new opportunities for the elderly."

The essence of the Desmond plan, he explained, "is that happiness cannot be legislated; that it is earned by effort, integrity and judgment." The plan calls for recognition "that our hometowns must provide opportunities for old folks to remain useful, independent, active, alert, with dignity and status in our communities. We need to make the later years of life a treat instead of a retreat."

Other Officers

Officers elected for the coming year, in addition to Dr. Holcomb, were Edmund P. Rochford and Dr. Edward F. Shea, vice presidents; Alfred D. Ronder, treasurer, and Miss Louise Merikle, secretary. Miss Katherine M.

Judge Flemming Offers Tribute To John Wadlin

Judge Harry H. Flemming today paid the following tribute to the late Assemblyman John F. Wadlin in conjunction with the memorial service held Monday in Supreme Court here by the Ulster County Bar Association:

I was not in attendance at the time the memorial relative to the late Hon. John F. Wadlin was presented to the Court. It was my privilege to work with him on several litigated cases, and to talk with him frequently on matters of mutual interest. His gracious gentlemanly attitude, always in evidence, made him a welcome caller. In controverted matters his attitude was fair; in the performance of his duties in the legislature he had the interests of all of our people in mind; he gave of his time and energy freely in their behalf. His conception of standards in public service was ever high. A lawyer of ability, he served his day and generation well, and his record will stand the test of time.

Bi-Partisan Help Is Seen For Niagara Falls Power

Albany, May 19 (AP)—A bi-partisan push behind the state's bid to develop power at Niagara Falls was in the making today, after Gov. Dewey had agreed to join Sen. Lehman and Rep. Roosevelt in the effort.

The Republican governor last night invited the two New York Democrats to talk over presentation of a joint case to Congress with Sen. Irving M. Ives (R.-NY) and John E. Burton, chairman of the State Power Authority.

In letters to Roosevelt and Lehman, Dewey suggested a conference next Friday in New York city. The governor did not say whether he would attend.

The two Democrats last Saturday had suggested bi-partisan support of a bill that would permit the state to build a hydroelectric project at the falls. They invited Dewey and Burton to confer with them "at a mutually convenient time and place."

Dewey replied that he would be "most happy to see a bipartisan effort to bring this program to an agreed basis," and offered his executive offices in the Hotel Roosevelt as a meeting place.

Lehman and Roosevelt said in Washington last night that they had not yet received Dewey's letters. Neither raised an objection to the time and place, although Roosevelt said the governor should be present.

A proposal to triple Niagara's output of electrical energy, at an estimated cost of 400 million dollars, has been the center of a three-way debate among utility companies, the two Democratic legislators, and the Dewey administration.

Lehman and Roosevelt have introduced bills that would authorize the army engineers to build the plants and sell them to the state.

The State Power Authority wants to build the plants and distribute power over the transmission lines of private companies. No bill to that end is now before Congress.

And Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) and Rep. Miller (R-N. Y.) have offered a bill to permit private interests to do the job. Five New York state utilities would pool resources in the project.

Temple Emanuel to Celebrate Anniversary and Leadership

Three special events this week will mark the celebration of the 100th anniversary of Temple Emanuel and its 20th year under Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom's spiritual and religious leadership.

Opening the celebration will be the children's service Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. in conjunction with the Shivuoth festival. At that time the children will participate in honoring both their temple and rabbi.

On Friday evening a special service will be held with Dr. Jacob P. Rudin as the main speaker. A group of local clergy will also participate.

The celebration will end with a banquet Saturday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel at which time the Rev. Dr. William F. Rosenblum will be the main speaker with many guests from both clergy and laity.

General chairman for the celebration is Bernhardt S. Kramer, president of Temple Emanuel. Honorary chairmen are Mrs. B. D. Wolff, Mrs. Tillie Vogel and Harry S. Jacobs, deceased.

Devoted to Community

Rabbi Bloom's devotion to the affairs of his congregation and to the Jewish, communal and civic life of Kingston and surrounding territory has earned for him the admiration and respect of the entire community.

Rabbi Bloom has never been far removed from the local scene except for an educational sojourn at the Sorbonne in Paris and a three-year interlude as rabbi of Temple Albert in Albuquerque, N. M. He was born in the City of New York, attended schools there, received his Bachelor's degree at Columbia University and pursued his rabbinical studies at the Jewish Institute of Religion, receiving the degree of Rabbi and Master of Hebrew Literature from that institution.

In 1931 he was awarded the Miller Fellowship in History at Columbia University and received his doctorate there in 1937. Continuing in the realm of historical search Rabbi Bloom was the recipient in 1939 of the William A. Dunning prize for the best dissertation on modern European history written within the three years. Rabbi Bloom came to Temple Emanuel in 1933.

Activities Varied

The activities and pursuits of Rabbi Bloom have been varied and encompass many fields. To mention a few he has been a member of the National Administrative Council of the Zionist Organization of America. He was formerly chairman of the committee on youth and education of the Empire State Zionist Region as well as being past president of that organization. He is also a member of the advisory board of the Ulster County National Youth Administration and of the committee on contemporary history and literature of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

Atomic Explosion Shakes Buildings 200 Miles Away

Las Vegas, Nev., May 19 (AP)—An atomic blast powerful enough to shake buildings in Bishop, Calif., 200 miles away, flared over the Nevada desert before dawn today.

The unusually bright shot also rattled buildings in this gambling community 75 miles from the proving ground, but there were no immediate reports of damage.

Police in Bishop said the shock wave came in two or three short jolts, rumbling like cannon shots, and were the strongest ever felt there.

The blast, ninth and next-to-last of the spring test series, was set off from a 300-foot tower at Yucca Flat, with 28 congressmen watching from the control center and 1,000 armed forces observers in trenches 4,000 yards away.

The shot, four times postponed, was primarily for scientific and observational purposes. The Atomic Energy Commission said 60 tests were conducted.

Besides military equipment and civilian defense structures, antibiotics provided by the Federal Food and Drug Administration were exposed to the burst. The drugs were tested for resistance to blast effects.

Forty-seven planes, including 12 Strategic Air Command B-50 bombers from Roswell, N. M., were in the air on various missions. Navy AD-2 Drone plane was flown into the thermal envelope, but there was no immediate report on how it fared.

Will Check Volcano

Manila, May 19 (AP)—Philippine volcanologists left today for Lake Taal, about 40 miles south of here, to check reports that a long-dormant volcano is showing signs of activity. The volcano last erupted in 1911, killing some 3,000 persons.

Economies Will Delay Plans For Atomic-Powered Planes

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Eisenhower administration economies in the atomic energy program will postpone construction of nuclear-powered aircraft and ships and will delay development of peacetime atomic power.

But there will be no cutbacks in atomic weapons or power plants for atomic submarines, Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R.-N.Y.) said yesterday in announcing that the budget for the year beginning July 1 will carry cuts "on the order of 30 per cent" under the $1,600,000,000 recommended by former President Truman.

Cole is chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee which keeps watch on the nation's atomic program.

Despite his assurances that the administration will ask sufficient funds to "carry on the weapons phase of the program without any curtailment," the decision seemed certain to stir up the same kind of congressional criticism which followed the announcement that new air force funds would be cut by five billion dollars.

A cut of 30 per cent for atomic energy is far more than the approximately 12 per cent cut made in the Truman defense budget and 23 per cent in the related foreign aid program.

Cole announced few details. The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) budget was scheduled for presentation, behind closed doors, to the House Appropriations Committee today.

Cole's committee yesterday heard AEC officials outline cuts under the Truman budget figures aggregating about 480 million dollars. Cole said he believed the figures had been reviewed by the National Security Council, the nation's top strategic planning group headed by President Eisenhower.

Old Lighthouse At Rondout Creek Is Blasted Down

Two charges of dynamite today levelled the abandoned lighthouse near the confluence of the Rondout creek and Hudson river.

Herman Lange, of the U. S. Coast Guard, service-keeper of the Rondout light station, said the structure, which has been an area landmark for about 70 years, was dangerously disintegrated, and Coast Guard officials decided to blast it down.

Joseph Stephano, local contractor, assigned to the job, set off the heaviest blast at 11 a. m., and a second charge a short time later brought down part of a wall that defied the first explosion.

The demolition project was supervised by two Coast Guard men from St. George Bay, S. I., Gilmore Morris, boatswain's mate, first class, and Edward Ledmore, damage control, first class.

Lange said it was feared that children, who play around the old building, would be injured by falling sections of the weather-beaten walls.

The building was erected in the early 1880's and was abandoned when the other lighthouse was opened in 1913. Its light tower had been removed and parts of three walls were left standing in recent years.

Robert Williamson, 28, Parole Violator, Is Returned to New York to Face Questioning

A man arrested here as a parole violator was returned to New York Monday afternoon to face charges in connection with the robbery of more than $7,000 from two Metropolitan Life Insurance Company girl cashiers May 5.

Robert Williamson, 28, of New York, was turned over about 3 p. m. at the court house here to a parole officer and three New York city detectives.

Shortly after he was arrested by local police and parole officers in Kingston on May 14, authorities found about $1,100 in the glove compartment of the car he had been driving, and more than $170 on his person.

Faces Three Charges

Detective Peter Naton of the 20th Squad Detectives, New York, told The Freeman that Williamson will be charged with robbery, assault and illegal possession of a pistol.

Naton said police were notified at 2:30 p. m. May 5 that two cashiers of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company were held up in an elevator at the firm's branch office at 2315 Broadway, New York, while they were on their way to a bank.

The women, Miss May Costello and Miss Helen McInerney, left the third floor of the building, Miss Costello carrying an envelope containing $7,562 in cash and Miss McInerney carrying one with checks.

A young man followed them into the elevator, armed with a pistol, and ordered the operator, Charles McElwain, to go to the basement, according to the police report. There, police were told, he took the cash envelope but spurned the other after he examined it and found the checks. After locking the two cashiers and the elevator operator in a basement room, he made his escape.

Given 'Good Description'

With Naton in Kingston Monday were Detectives Leigh Wilson and Matthew Herberich, both of the 110th Squad Detectives,

His gracious gentlemanly attitude, always in evidence, made him a welcome caller. In controverted matters his attitude was fair; in the performance of his duties in the legislature he had the interests of all of our people in mind; he gave of his time and energy freely in their behalf. His conception of standards in public service was ever high. A lawyer of ability, he served his day and generation well, and his record will stand the test of time.

Bi-Partisan Help Is Seen For Niagara Falls Power

Albany, May 19 (AP)—A bi-partisan push behind the state's bid to develop power at Niagara Falls was in the making today, after Gov. Dewey had agreed to join Sen. Lehman and Rep. Roosevelt in the effort.

The Republican governor last night invited the two New York Democrats to talk over presentation of a joint case to Congress with Sen. Irving M. Ives (R.-NY) and John E. Burton, chairman of the State Power Authority.

In letters to Roosevelt and Lehman, Dewey suggested a conference next Friday in New York city. The governor did not say whether he would attend.

The two Democrats last Saturday had suggested bi-partisan support of a bill that would permit the state to build a hydroelectric project at the falls. They invited Dewey and Burton to confer with them "at a mutually convenient time and place."

Dewey replied that he would be "most happy to see a bipartisan effort to bring this program to an agreed basis," and offered his executive offices in the Hotel Roosevelt as a meeting place.

Lehman and Roosevelt said in Washington last night that they had not yet received Dewey's letters. Neither raised an objection to the time and place, although Roosevelt said the governor should be present.

A proposal to triple Niagara's output of electrical energy, at an estimated cost of 400 million dollars, has been the center of a three-way debate among utility companies, the two Democratic legislators, and the Dewey administration.

Lehman and Roosevelt have introduced bills that would authorize the army engineers to build the plants and sell them to the state.

The State Power Authority wants to build the plants and distribute power over the transmission lines of private companies. No bill to that end is now before Congress.

And Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) and Rep. Miller (R-N. Y.) have offered a bill to permit private interests to do the job. Five New York state utilities would pool resources in the project.

Korean Truce Talks Recess for Six Days

Informed UN Command Says if Negotiations Collapse Allies Probably Will Free 34,000 North Korean Prisoners

Tokyo, May 19 (AP)—The Korean truce talks were recessed for another six days today and an informed UN command source said if negotiations collapse the allies probably will free 34,000 North Korean prisoners who refuse to return to Communist rule.

There were reports in Tokyo the allies were preparing a revised armistice plan that might set a time limit on the peace talks.

The UN command asked an extension until next Monday of the three-day recess that was due to end tomorrow. The Reds agreed at a liaison meeting at Panmunjom.

A source close to Gen. Mark Clark's headquarters said the UN command is considering turning loose as civilians balky North Koreans.

The ultimate disposition of these and 14,500 Chinese captives who also have renounced communism is the last major block to a truce.

The sources said a precedent for freeing captives already had been set by the Reds.

"They say they freed 'at the front' 50,000 allied prisoners they grabbed early in the Korean War," said the source, whose name cannot be revealed.

"There is no reason to keep holding these North Korean prisoners. They hate communism and will not go back to it under any circumstances.

"They are anxious to get back to their wives and families and be assimilated in South Korea among people of their own nationality who also are opposed to communism.

"The 14,500 Chinese prisoners held by the UN command are another thing. They do not want to return to communism either. But their future is something to talk about."

A South Korean official called on the UN command to release the North Korean captives "immediately whether the Communists like it or not."

Should Set Time Limit

Dr. Karl Hong Ki in an official government statement released at Seoul, also said the allies should set a time limit on the truce negotiations. If they are not successfully concluded within the specified period, he said, the UN should launch an all-out offensive to drive the Reds "out of our territory."

The UN command said it asked for the extended recess in the truce talks for "more time to review past efforts * * * and to consider completely the present position of both sides" with regard to the prisoner deadlock.

Last week Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., chief allied truce delegate, gave "administrative problems" as the reason for the first recess.

Tuesday's explanation only mentioned "reviewing" the prisoner question.

The UN command statement explaining the new recess request said the longer period would give the Reds "an opportunity" for "careful consideration" of past and present efforts to settle the POW problem.

The UN in its latest proposal suggested turning loose the 34,000 North Koreans as soon as an armistice is reached and letting the 14,500 Chinese be taken into custody in South Korea of a five nation neutral repariation commission composed of India, Sweden, Switzerland, Poland and Chzechoslovakia.

The Communists said such a proposal was "unthinkable." They agreed to let the 48,500 prisoners remain in South Korea under neutral custody but do not want them set free until given a chance to send representatives among them "to explain things."

Temple Emanuel to Celebrate Anniversary and Leadership

Three special events this week will mark the celebration of the 100th anniversary of Temple Emanuel and its 20th year under Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom's spiritual and religious leadership.

Opening the celebration will be the children's service Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. in conjunction with the Shivuoth festival. At that time the children will participate in honoring both their temple and rabbi.

On Friday evening a special service will be held with Dr. Jacob P. Rudin as the main speaker. A group of local clergy will also participate.

The celebration will end with a banquet Saturday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel at which time the Rev. Dr. William F. Rosenblum will be the main speaker with many guests from both clergy and laity.

General chairman for the celebration is Bernhardt S. Kramer, president of Temple Emanuel. Honorary chairmen are Mrs. B. D. Wolff, Mrs. Tillie Vogel and Harry S. Jacobs, deceased.

Devoted to Community

Rabbi Bloom's devotion to the affairs of his congregation and to the Jewish, communal and civic life of Kingston and surrounding territory has earned for him the admiration and respect of the entire community.

Rabbi Bloom has never been far removed from the local scene except for an educational sojourn at the Sorbonne in Paris and a three-year interlude as rabbi of Temple Albert in Albuquerque, N. M. He was born in the City of New York, attended schools there, received his Bachelor's degree at Columbia University and pursued his rabbinical studies at the Jewish Institute of Religion, receiving the degree of Rabbi and Master of Hebrew Literature from that institution.

In 1931 he was awarded the Miller Fellowship in History at Columbia University and received his doctorate there in 1937. Continuing in the realm of historical search Rabbi Bloom was the recipient in 1939 of the William A. Dunning prize for the best dissertation on modern European history written within the three years. Rabbi Bloom came to Temple Emanuel in 1933.

Activities Varied

The activities and pursuits of Rabbi Bloom have been varied and encompass many fields. To mention a few he has been a member of the National Administrative Council of the Zionist Organization of America. He was formerly chairman of the committee on youth and education of the Empire State Zionist Region as well as being past president of that organization. He is also a member of the advisory board of the Ulster County National Youth Administration and of the committee on contemporary history and literature of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

Atomic Explosion Shakes Buildings 200 Miles Away

Las Vegas, Nev., May 19 (AP)—An atomic blast powerful enough to shake buildings in Bishop, Calif., 200 miles away, flared over the Nevada desert before dawn today.

The unusually bright shot also rattled buildings in this gambling community 75 miles from the proving ground, but there were no immediate reports of damage.

Police in Bishop said the shock wave came in two or three short jolts, rumbling like cannon shots, and were the strongest ever felt there.

The blast, ninth and next-to-last of the spring test series, was set off from a 300-foot tower at Yucca Flat, with 28 congressmen watching from the control center and 1,000 armed forces observers in trenches 4,000 yards away.

The shot, four times postponed, was primarily for scientific and observational purposes. The Atomic Energy Commission said 60 tests were conducted.

Besides military equipment and civilian defense structures, antibiotics provided by the Federal Food and Drug Administration were exposed to the burst. The drugs were tested for resistance to blast effects.

Forty-seven planes, including 12 Strategic Air Command B-50 bombers from Roswell, N. M., were in the air on various missions. Navy AD-2 Drone plane was flown into the thermal envelope, but there was no immediate report on how it fared.

Will Check Volcano

Negligence Case Dismissed Today In Supreme Court

Action Resulting From Fatal Car Accident Is Scheduled for This Afternoon

Action was dismissed in Supreme Court about noon today in the negligence action brought by Harry G. Starr of New York against Adrian Worth and another.

The action was dismissed upon motion of Michael Nardone, defense attorney, upon the conclusion of the plaintiff's case. Justice William Deckelman presided.

The next action to be heard this afternoon will be one brought by Joseph Avis, local attorney, against Joseph Bua of Brooklyn. The action arises from an automobile accident September 4, 1950, in which Max Leventhal of the Bronx was fatally injured.

Avis was the driver of the car in which Leventhal was riding. Bua was the driver of the other car involved in the crash on Route 9W, near West Park.

Cases No. 110 and 137 were announced settled today.

Injured in Fall

The action was brought by Starr who claimed negligence on the part of a ranch operated by Worth at Wallkill resulted in his fall from a horse at the ranch on September 11, 1948, in which he was severely injured.

Starr, who at the time of the accident was 59, spent most of yesterday afternoon's session on the witness stand. He contended the horse given him was "not suitable to his capacity" and that ranch employes had left an opening in the fence around the ring, through which, Starr contended, the horse dashed, throwing him to the ground. During cross-examination by attorney Michael Nardone, who appeared on behalf of the defendants, Starr revealed that he had undergone an operation earlier in the year and had been told by the doctor that he should not ride for a period following the operation.

Simon Klein of New York was attorney for Starr, while Samuel Weiss was attorney of record for the defendants, with Nardone as counsel.

Monday morning's session of court opened with a memorial service for Assemblyman John F. Wadlin, who died April 30.

Wadlin Resolution

A resolution of the Ulster County Bar Association, which was made a part of the court record, pointed out that Assemblyman Wadlin's "fine legal mind, sound judgment and friendly personality enabled him to build a thriving legal practice in southern Ulster county. Early in his career he displayed those qualities of leadership which were to lead him to success in the political field."

Pointing also to his work in the field of labor legislation, the resolution stated, "His record in the legislature is a course of pride to his friends and a credit to his district."

In his passing, the resolution continued "The Ulster County Bar has lost an able lawyer and one whose life has exemplified the finest traditions of our profession, the county of Ulster has lost one of its outstanding citizens and the state of New York one of its ablest legislators."

In a brief address to the court, County Attorney Frederick H. Stang recalled Wadlin as chairman of the board of supervisors was "always calm, cool and collected, never losing sight of his

Claims Red Peace Offensive Slows Military Buildup

Gen. Ridgway Says Effect of Communist Plan Has Adverse Reaction in Some NATO Lands

Washington, May 19 (AP)—The Soviet "peace offensive" has slowed down the military buildup in Europe, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway told senators today.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization commander testified to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that it has had "a recognizable adverse reaction in certain segments of (Europe) public opinion" on the free world's defense preparations.

The effect, he said, has been a tendency in some nations "to put off the evil day of decision on assumption of unpleasant burdens."

The general described that as "a perfectly natural reaction" of peoples longing for peace.

Says Progam Vital

Ridgway, testifying in behalf of the Eisenhower administration's $5,800,000,000 Foreign Aid bill, told the committee "the Mutual Security program is a vital factor in the keeping of our momentum."

Before Ridgway went on the stand Chairman Wiley (R.-Wis.) of the committee predicted his

Dr. Wolff Named To Industrial Board

Dr. Sidney Wolff was appointed to a vacancy on the board of directors at a meeting of the board of the Kingston Industrial Development Corporation at the Governor Clinton Hotel last night.

Only 11 board members had been previously elected whereas the by-laws, adopted later, call for 12.

Henry Gallien of the New York State Department of Commerce in charge of industrial promotion, addressed the group, describing the operation of similar organizations in other communities as a guide for the Kingston corporation.

Economies Will Delay Plans For Atomic-Powered Planes

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Eisenhower administration economies in the atomic energy program will postpone construction of nuclear-powered aircraft and ships and will delay development of peacetime atomic power.

But there will be no cutbacks in atomic weapons or power plants for atomic submarines, Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R.-N.Y.) said yesterday in announcing that the budget for the year beginning July 1 will carry cuts "on the order of 30 per cent" under the $1,600,000,000 recommended by former President Truman.

Cole is chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee which keeps watch on the nation's atomic program.

Despite his assurances that the administration will ask sufficient funds to "carry on the weapons phase of the program without any curtailment," the decision seemed certain to stir up the same kind of congressional criticism which followed the announcement that new air force funds would be cut by five billion dollars.

A cut of 30 per cent for atomic energy is far more than the approximately 12 per cent cut made in the Truman defense budget and 23 per cent in the related foreign aid program.

Cole announced few details. The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) budget was scheduled for presentation, behind closed doors, to the House Appropriations Committee today.

Cole's committee yesterday heard AEC officials outline cuts under the Truman budget figures aggregating about 480 million dollars. Cole said he believed the figures had been reviewed by the National Security Council, the nation's top strategic planning group headed by President Eisenhower.

To Address U.S. Tonight On Plans

Chief Executive Will Seek Extension of Profits, Individual Levies

Washington, May 19 (AP)—President Eisenhower will ask Congress to extend the excess profits tax for six months beyond July 1—the present expiration date.

He will also recommend that individual income taxes be maintained at the present level for the rest of the year.

GOP congressional leaders reported after a conference with Eisenhower today that these are among his planned fiscal proposals.

Eisenhower is to go on the radio tonight at 9:30 p. m. (EST) to give the nation the background of financial and defense problems leading to his decisions. The address will be broadcast on all major networks.

The President's decisions run contrary to a considerable body of sentiment in his own party in Congress.

There have been demands to let the excess profits tax on corporations die June 30 and some members of Congress have been urging an income tax cut of about 10 per cent effective July 1.

Senator Saltonstall (R.-Mass.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Rep. Short (R.-Mo.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, gave newsmen the report on the President's intentions as outlined to them at the White House session.

They held a news conference after they and other GOP congressional leaders had conferred with Eisenhower for more than an hour.

At the session, they said, Eisenhower reviewed the radio speech he will make.

Says Strength Is Doubled

Short seemed at one point to be preparing to tell of at least one more decision in the tax field but James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, suggested something ought to be left for the President himself to disclose.

Short, agreeing with a laugh, declined to discuss the tax situation further.

Short told reporters that since the Eisenhower administration took office Jan. 20, the effective strength of the air force has been "practically doubled."

He said the air force had about 47 combat wings in January and that the number had been built up to about 73.

The program calls for about 114 wings by July 1, 1954, and about 120 by July 1, 1955, Short said.

Saltonstall said there has been much talk about abandoning a goal of 143 combat wings. He commented that the 120 wing goal Eisenhower is shooting for actually will provide "more security

Old Lighthouse At Rondout Creek Is Blasted Down

Two charges of dynamite today levelled the abandoned lighthouse near the confluence of the Rondout creek and Hudson river.

Herman Lange, of the U. S. Coast Guard, service-keeper of the Rondout light station, said the structure, which has been an area landmark for about 70 years, was dangerously disintegrated, and Coast Guard officials decided to blast it down.

Joseph Stephano, local contractor, assigned to the job, set off the heaviest blast at 11 a. m., and a second charge a short time later brought down part of a wall that defied the first explosion.

The demolition project was supervised by two Coast Guard men from St. George Bay, S. I., Gilmore Morris, boatswain's mate, first class, and Edward Ledmore, damage control, first class.

Lange said it was feared that children, who play around the old building, would be injured by falling sections of the weather-beaten walls.

The building was erected in the early 1880's and was abandoned when the other lighthouse was opened in 1913. Its light tower had been removed and parts of three walls were left standing in recent years.

His wife, Esperanza Bauer, 30, former actress in Mexican films, claims that's how much she and Wayne spent, on the average, every month of their six-year marriage. But Wayne declared yesterday his net was only $59,366 last year and Mrs. Wayne should be able to get along on $900 monthly pending the trial.

EAT WELL for Less

Serve Decoration Day 'Burgers

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Decoration Day starts the season of outdoor eating. So let's begin looking for better ways to make the ever-popular hamburger.

A young coed from Madison Wis., which is set among five lakes, tells us how she learned to make them from her father. He loved to take his family in a boat to his favorite lake-shore picnic spot. Then he cooked his specially-chopped beef patties served with a relish made with onion, green pepper, chopped broiled mushrooms, pickle and tomato sauce.

The relish sauce is made at home and then heated while the patties are being broiled. The patties, made of good chopped meat, are shaped at home, carefully packed with layers of waxed paper, chilled, and then taken on the picnic, to be grilled in the great outdoors. Here's the sauce recipe:

Hot Relish Sauce for Hamburgers

Three tablespoons fat, ½ cup minced onion, ½ cup minced green pepper, 1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet, 8-ounce can tomato sauce, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ cup pickle relish, 3-ounce can chopped broiled mushrooms, 2½ pounds chopped raw beef (16 2½-ounce patties), 16 buttered picnic buns.

Melt fat in saucepan. Add onion and green pepper. Cook, stirring frequently, until onion and green pepper are beginning to brown, about 5 minutes over moderate heat. Stir in kitchen bouquet. Add tomato sauce, sugar, Worcestershire, pickle relish and contents of can of mushrooms. Bring to boil and cook slowly until sauce is thick, about 15 minutes. Cool and pack in covered glass jar.

When you reach the picnic site, arrange a large pancake griddle on rack over good bed of coals. Grill the hamburgers as needed. Keep barbecue sauce hot in small saucepan at one end of griddle. Toast rolls on order, or simply warm near the fire.

Serve relish sauce on top of the hamburger on paper plate with cole slaw or celery, raw carrot sticks and olives.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Strawberries and bananas, poached eggs on toast, enriched rolls, butter or margarine, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Cottage cheese, watercress, sliced tomatoes and leftover cooked vegetable salad with French or sour cream dressing, corn muffins, butter or margarine, strawberry custard tarts, tea, milk.

OUTDOOR PICNIC DINNER: Grilled hamburgers with hot relish sauce, pre-cooked macaroni and cheese, cole slaw or celery, radishes, raw carrot sticks and olives, chocolate brownies, bananas, oranges, cherries, chilled soft drinks, hot coffee, milk.

Four-Year-Old Boy Falls Into Crevice

William Warner, four-year-old explorer from 69 Marius street, Monday found the woods near his home no fit place for a night adventure.

A resident of Hewitt Place telephoned police at 7:42 p. m., and said she could hear a child screaming in the woods to the rear of her home and she feared the youngster may have fallen and been injured.

Officers Meyer Levy and John Crespino investigated and reported that the Warner boy had fallen into a crevice. They took him to Kingston Hospital in a patrol car where he was examined and later treated by a doctor for bruises and scratches of the arms, legs and body.

Los Angeles, May 19 (AP)—Rugged John Wayne, whose wife says he grossed $502,891 last year, told an alimony hearing that during his marriage "we have spent everything I made." The 44-year-old movie boxoffice favbrite returns to the witness stand today to dispute his estranged mate's demand for $13,091 a month pending trial of her separate maintenance suit. His wife, Esperanza Bauer, 30, former actress in Mexican films, claims that's how much she and Wayne spent, on the average, every month of their six-year marriage. But Wayne declared yesterday his net was only $59,366 last year and Mrs. Wayne should be able to get along on $900 monthly pending the trial.

EAT WELL for Less

Serve Decoration Day 'Burgers

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Decoration Day starts the season of outdoor eating. So let's begin looking for better ways to make the ever-popular hamburger.

A young coed from Madison Wis., which is set among five lakes, tells us how she learned to make them from her father. He loved to take his family in a boat to his favorite lake-shore picnic spot. Then he cooked his specially-chopped beef patties served with a relish made with onion, green pepper, chopped broiled mushrooms, pickle and tomato sauce.

The relish sauce is made at home and then heated while the patties are being broiled. The patties, made of good chopped meat, are shaped at home, carefully packed with layers of waxed paper, chilled, and then taken on the picnic, to be grilled in the great outdoors. Here's the sauce recipe:

Hot Relish Sauce for Hamburgers

Three tablespoons fat, ½ cup minced onion, ½ cup minced green pepper, 1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet, 8-ounce can tomato sauce, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ cup pickle relish, 3-ounce can chopped broiled mushrooms, 2½ pounds chopped raw beef (16 2½-ounce patties), 16 buttered picnic buns.

Melt fat in saucepan. Add onion and green pepper. Cook, stirring frequently, until onion and green pepper are beginning to brown, about 5 minutes over moderate heat. Stir in kitchen bouquet. Add tomato sauce, sugar, Worcestershire, pickle relish and contents of can of mushrooms. Bring to boil and cook slowly until sauce is thick, about 15 minutes. Cool and pack in covered glass jar.

When you reach the picnic site, arrange a large pancake griddle on rack over good bed of coals. Grill the hamburgers as needed. Keep barbecue sauce hot in small saucepan at one end of griddle. Toast rolls on order, or simply warm near the fire.

Serve relish sauce on top of the hamburger on paper plate with cole slaw or celery, raw carrot sticks and olives.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Strawberries and bananas, poached eggs on toast, enriched rolls, butter or margarine, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Cottage cheese, watercress, sliced tomatoes and leftover cooked vegetable salad with French or sour cream dressing, corn muffins, butter or margarine, strawberry custard tarts, tea, milk.

OUTDOOR PICNIC DINNER: Grilled hamburgers with hot relish sauce, pre-cooked macaroni and cheese, cole slaw or celery, radishes, raw carrot sticks and olives, chocolate brownies, bananas, oranges, cherries, chilled soft drinks, hot coffee, milk.

Italy Gets 'Boxcars'

Rome, May 19 (AP)—The United States today turned over to Italy the first two C-119 troop carrier planes to be delivered under the Mutual Defense Assistance program. The "flying boxcars" each will carry 62 passengers or 42 fully equipped paratroopers.

Four-Year-Old Boy Falls Into Crevice

William Warner, four-year-old explorer from 69 Marius street, Monday found the woods near his home no fit place for a night adventure.

A resident of Hewitt Place telephoned police at 7:42 p. m., and said she could hear a child screaming in the woods to the rear of her home and she feared the youngster may have fallen and been injured.

Officers Meyer Levy and John Crespino investigated and reported that the Warner boy had fallen into a crevice. They took him to Kingston Hospital in a patrol car where he was examined and later treated by a doctor for bruises and scratches of the arms, legs and body.

Changing Chameleons

Chameleons do change color from time to time, but not to match their backgrounds. A chameleon's change is governed by light, temperature, and the way it feels.

Lease Is Approved

New York, May 19 (AP)—The New York City Transit Authority has approved a tentative "lease and transfer" agreement for taking over the city's debt-ridden three billion dollar transit systems. The authority decided yesterday to ask for a lease rather than an outright grant of the subway, bus and elevated lines, provided it can reach a satisfactory lease agreement with the board of estimate. Authority Chairman Hugh J. Casey said the draft of the agreement was approved by his group at an all-day session and would be submitted speedily to Corporation Counsel Denis M. Hurley.

Corporate Tax Problems Outlined

Current corporate tax problems were outlined for members of the Ulster County, Bar Association at their dinner meeting in Leherb's Restaurant last night., and Supreme Court Justice William J. Deckelman, newly elected in the Third Judicial District, was guest of honor.

Attorney Robert J. MacDonald, of the law firm Sullivan & Cromwell, New York, talked on corporate tax problems. MacDonald is a graduate of the Cornell University law school and while there he starred in basketball. He is now on the staff of the Practicing Law Institute.

Supreme Court Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth and County Judge John M. Cashin introduced Judge Deckelman to the 60 lawyers who attended.

Kano, a city of 107,000, largest city of north Nigeria and center of the disturbance, looked like a battlefield. Barbed wire entanglements set off a no-man's land between embattled factions, and troops patrolled the lines to keep the factions separated. A state of emergency had been proclaimed throughout north Nigeria. Troops were called out yesterday when the death toll reached 20.

AFRICA MAY REACH PERIL POINT

Every time he turns around, the American is being asked to discover another continent. This time it's Africa.

The American's attention—and his pocketbook—already are pretty thoroughly divided. He knows Britain and France are his country's firmest friends and is own security is bound up with their safety. He knows Korea and Indo-China are live danger spots; the casualty lists are eloquent.

But that's merely the beginning. He hears that Iran is critical becase its oil is strategic. Egypt is crucial because the Suez canal is an indispensable free world lifeline. Yugoslavia is a bastion of southeastern Europe whose fall to Russia would outflank the West. Germany and Japan are great industrial prizes which must be held.

To his ears come other reports that he must watch India closely, since it may be the next big Asian target of the Reds. He is told, too, that country after country in Latin America is a hotbed of communism.

And now, Africa. The spotlight is on. With a spectacular pictorial effort and sound analysis, Life magazine has tried in a recent issue to show the American why he must add Africa to his list of worries. Other magazines have contributed ably to the story, and a good many newspaper reporters have landed safely on the African coast and are making their way inland.

The sad thing is, all these demands on his time and many of the calls for his money are legitimate. Yet, in his despair at the clamor and confusion, the American often wishes he could shrug off the whole business and just devote himself to trying to understand his own country.

This he cannot do, naturally. From the chaos of world problems he must seek some measure of order. At risk of being crudely arbitrary, he must fix a priority-of-interest scale of dealing with the nations seeking his attention. The place of Korea, Indo-China and Western Europe at the top is obvious. Not so clear is the question where India belongs, or Africa.

Africa, like Asia, is in ferment. Its peoples have been shown western standards. They want a better life for themselves than the grinding poverty they have had.

The experts agree that Communists have not stirred this ferment but are simply trying to take credit for it, and trying to exploit it for the future.

Africa has not gone so far down the road as Asia. We may help to prevent a violent explosion if we can find the heart and the means to encourage the African people in the fulfillment of their legitimate aspirations for self-development.

If we do not—if we insist on confining our interest to places plagued by crisis—then we shall surely be rewarded one day by a king-size blowup in tormented Africa.

Cigars and chewing tobacco are just about man's last possessions that are solely his. Nearly everything else he should first offer to a lady before partaking.

RED CROSS BIRTHDAY

This month the American Red Cross will observe its seventy-second anniversary. It was founded by Clara Barton on May 21, 1881, as an affiliate of Red Cross societies which functioned under provisions of the Treaty of Geneva. She served as its president until 1904 and watched it grow from a fledgling organization to a potent force for charity and mercy.

In times of war the Red Cross has served as a link between soldiers and their loved ones at home, it has provided entertainment for the lonely and comfort for the wounded. Wherever natural calamities have struck the Red Cross has been represented, ready to relieve suffering with food, medical supplies and assistance.

Perhaps the best thing about the Red Cross is that it is an organization made up of volunteers who give their time and money to help others. On its seventy-second birthday it deserves the congratulations of all Americans. It has given one of the best answers yet to the age-old question, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE TRAGIC DECADES

The peoples of Asia, after World War I, determined no longer to be colonial or semi-colonial nations, Japan had set an example for all Asiatic countries, namely, that it had succeeded in changing from a semi-colonial country to independence and to becoming the fourth power on earth (1919).

Turkey, which had been pro-German and was defeated in that war, losing her vast Arabic dependencies, built herself into a small, compact but important state under the leadership of Kemal Pasha. Persia managed to eliminate the spheres of influence of both Russia and Great Britain. In China, the tuchuns (warlords) prevailed, keeping the country in turmoil, but the Students Movement of May, 1919, which prevented the Chinese government from signing the Paris Treaty, rejuvenated a nation and ushered in a period of intensive nationalism and anti-foreignism.

In India, Gandhi appeared as a leader of a movement of nationalistic passive resistance which ultimately succeeded in winning for India its independence from Great Britain.. however, at the cost of partition, resulting in the establishment of the new Moslem state of Pakistan.

Even in the Philippines, the independence movement developed strength under the leadership of Manuel Quezon, who once told me that he preferred dominion status to independence. However, independence came and ended American imperialism in Asia.

European countries had, for centuries, built empires in Asia. This trend can be traced back to Alexander the Great, whose forces reached the Burma-Yunnan frontier.

In our times, Portugal, the Netherlands, Great Britain, France and Russia erected important empires in Asia.

The Portuguese Empire was dissipated in the fall of the Iberian nations before the power of Great Britain. Except for Goa in India, Macao in China, and Portuguese Timor in Indonesia, the Portuguese ceased to be of any importance before World War I.

The Netherlands built and held the lush islands of the land now known as Indonesia, consisting of Sumatra, Java, Borneo, Celebes, Netherlands New Guinea, and a large number of islands, including the beautiful Bali. This area centered economically on the British city of Singapore. Possessing oil, rubber, and spices, Indonesia is one of the richest countries on earth, requiring only capital for its development.

After World War II, the Dutch were forced to give up this empire, largely because the United States favored the revolution. Whereas the Dutch were among the most competent colonial managers, the government of Indonesia, with the best of intentions, was not ready, politically or economically, to take over the huge tasks of managing a far-flung island nation. Colonialism ended in Indonesia, but should the Russians take Siam and Malaya, Indonesia could not defend herself. As a matter of cold fact, only the United States can today defend Indonesia—a supply area for us of rubber and other essentials.

The British have lost India, their influence in Afghanistan, their economic power in China, their oil in Iran (Persia), and their persuasive influence in the Arabic countries. They hold the Malay Peninsula, source of tin and rubber; they are influential in Burma, and they possess Hongkong in China. India and Pakistan, while independent, are members of the (British) Commonwealth of Nations. Tibet, which Britain dominated, is now part of the Soviet Empire.

The shrinking of the British Empire is a major tragedy in history, for while it is sound, from the standpoint of American political theory, for each people to have a government of its own choosing, actually what has happened is that a hundred doors have been opened to Russian imperialism in Asia. The British Empire maintained the peace of a continent from Pondicherry (1815) to Yalta (1945).

France's Empire in Asia, once larger, came down to Indo-China, which lies on China, Burma and Siam. This consisted originally of five areas, Cochin-China, Cambodia, Laos, Annam and Tonkin. It is a land in which the cultures and races of India and China have become assimilated among native races. This country Russia is now conquering. Of all the European nations, France has put up the best fight to hold her empire, although she is now forced to make concessions to local kings and governments, which, if Russia does not conquer the country, will result in a split-up into small nations.

The end of empire in Asia means chaos in our times. Only Russia, among European nations, is continuing to expand her empire.

WHAT IS YOUR INTELLIGENCE QUOTIENT?

You may wonder when you observe the behavior of some individuals—boys, girls, men, women—just how they would stand if examined by a psychologist as to their intelligence.

The testing of intelligence is done in various ways—by questions, simple games, and arithmetic tests. In this manner, the examiner estimates the Intelligence Quotient (I.Q.) of the individual.

The I.Q. test is useful for measuring mental deficiencies. The average in normal adults ranges between 90 and 100. The score for subnormal "borderline" or dull persons ranges between 75 and 90. These people may get through grade school with extra effort or with leniency of the school authorities but high school becomes very difficult. They do better at jobs requiring little imagination, planning and intellectual skill, such as unskilled laborers.

The next below, with an I.Q. between 50 and 75 are what are known as morons (what we call ourselves when we have done something unusually stupid.) They drop out of school early. Can do jobs under supervision.

Imbeciles have an I.Q. between 25 and 50. They are called mental defectives and are usually segregated into special schools or are confined to the protection of their homes.

Idiots, the lowest class mentally, have an I.Q. of 25 or less; they require help in looking after themselves as to ordinary hygiene—food and toilet.

It may surprise some to learn that those with an I.Q. above normal, while capable of difficult intellectual accomplishments such as originating new mathematical systems, may find life difficult because their general make-up is "high strung."

Notwithstanding the many cases in our mental hospitals, Dr. Louis G. Moench in his book, "Office Psychiatry," states that the I.Q. distribution of the vast bulk of the population is between 90 and 110 (50 per cent of adults). Approximately 84 per cent of the population falls between 80 and 120, 96 per cent between 65 and 130. Only 2.2 per cent falls below 65 and 2.2 per cent above 130.

We must remember, of course, that our physical condition at time of examination can interefere with the above findings; infection can make us "slow" and inattenive, and gland conditions, of a temporary nature, can make us overalert or can make us sluggish, the thyroid gland and liver activity being examples.

All any of us can do to be at our best mentally is to be at our best physically, by watching the three points in health—food, rest, exercise.

It has been estimated that more persons suffer from constipation than are free from it. Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington—(NEA)—U. S. Air Force is going ahead with its project to develop an atomic-powered aircraft engine, in spite of reports that this program would be stopped by appropriation cuts in the defense budget. The contract for the atomic aviation project has been let to General Electric and the company has been given assurances there will be no cancellation or cutback on the work.

The chief advantige of an atomic engine is that it would give aircraft a tremendous range, without refueling.

The fate of the project to develop an atomic-powered aircraft carrier is still in doubt. An atomic engine in a carrier would also give greater range through reduced fuel-carrying capacity. Because of limitations on hull design, however, there is some question on whether an atomic engine would give a carrier greater speed.

Senator Exhaled "Poisons "

Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon has been getting a number of letters from doctors, asking him how it was physically possible for him to stand on his feet and speak continously for over 22 hours. Did he take drugs? And if so, what drugs?

Senator Morse is writing back to all these medical men that he took no drugs and had no trick devices to sustain him. His nourishment during the long speech was three glasses of water, four cups of bouillon, three cups of orange juice, three cups of coffee and nine cups of tea.

Dr. George W. Calver, the veteran capital physician who was watching Senator Morse during his long speech against the tidelands bill, and who has watched former Senators Huey Long of Louisiana and Bob LaFollette, Jr., in their marthon filibusters, says there's a natural explanation for this phenomenon.

While a man is speaking, he is exhaling through his breath the body poisons which are normally eliminated in other ways. That's what enables him to keep going without a break.

Senator Morse says that he could have talked for another couple of hours without strain. As a matter of fact, after he finished speaking, he held a press conference and walked back to his office, before he lay down.

Bureaucrats Ride Streetcars

Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole, former Kansas congressman, is finding out the hard way that the life of a bureaucrat isn't as simple and lush as a lot of critics on Capitol Hill like to make out.

In New York the other day, Mr. Cole took a taxi from his hotel to a housing conference. The fare was 50 cents, plus tip. Back in Washington, Administrator Cole filed his expense account, itemizing the taxi fare. Back came a letter from auditors of General Accounting Office. They demanded that he prove it was more feasible to take a taxicab than to go by streetcar, before they would reimburse him.

RIF's Chain Letters

Any government employe who is being liquidated out of his job through various executive department and congressional economy drives is becoming known as a "RIF." The initials come from what is known as the Reduction in Force program.

This program is having one curious repercussion. As soon as a government employe is notified that he is being fired, he writes his congressman. The congressman then forwards the letter of complaint to the head of the agency doing the firing, asking how come?

The head of the agency then notifies the congressman that by act of Congress, the appropriation for the agency is being cut, and it is necessary to reduce the working force.

The congressman then writes back to his constituent, saying in effect that of course it shouldn't be necessary for the agency head to fire a good and faithful public servant like him. Somebody else should be fired, of course, but the congressman has little influence over these dictatorial bureaucrats.

And that completes the daisy chain.

Life's Embarrasing Moments

Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay was reading a long-winded statement to the House Ways and Means Committee, in support of President Eisenhower's request for a simple, one-year extension of the reciprocal trade program. In the middle of it he read a sentence to the effect that now "the composition of the Tariff Commission had changed."

Rep. Herman P. Eberharter of Pennsylvania interrupted to ask how it had changed?

"I must admit I don't know," replied the secretary. "I didn't write this statement."

Ike Is Pilot Two Ways

President Dwight D. Eisenhower is the first President of the U. S. to hold an aircraft pilot's license, according to research conducted by Aircraft Industries Association. The President has been a pilot for 14 years. He learned to fly while he was stationed in the Philippines as a lieutenant colonel on the staff of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The plane which the President was checked out in was an open-cockpit primary trainer. It had a 220-h.p. engine and a maximum speed of about 125 miles an hour. But the last time the President piloted his own plane was in 1947.

The first President to fly, incidentally, was Theodore Roosevelt. He was President when the Wright Brothers made their first flight at Kitty Hawk 50 years ago. But it wasn't till 1910 that "Teddy" went aloft, during a flying meet in St. Louis.

Multer's Muse

Rep. Abraham J. Multer of Brooklyn, N. Y., under leave to extend his remarks in the Congressional Record, inserted a speech protesting against the raising of interest rates on government bonds, FHA and G.I. mortgages and loans. The title which Mr. Multer put on his "speech" was "Bundles for Billionaires."

Awaits Court's Lobby Ruling

Congressional reform advocates are anxious to have a new lobbying law that will tighten up provisions of the present lobby registration law. A U. S. District Court decision last year found for the National Association of Manufacturers in its complaint against revealing how much money it had spent in influencing legislation.

The Supreme Court has agreed to hear an appeal on the case, but won't get around to it till next fall. Nobody wants to try to amend the present lobbying law until it's known what the Supreme Court ruling will be. In the meantime, lobbyists must continue reporting their expenses.

CIO Sniping at President Eisenhower for His Golf and Fishing Trips Called Unfair

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 19 — The CIO Political Action Committee has begun to snipe at President Eisenhower's golfing, cruising and fishing. Their weekly publication has begun a tally on his hours of recreation.

The CIO folks might better have shown some concern over the fact that Mr. Eisenhower, under union concepts and the eight-hour law, would really be entitled to time and a half in pay for all hours above forty a week that he works. If the CIO Political Action Committee is interested in the hours that the President works, as well as those he plays, they would find that he actually works from fifty-five to sixty hours a week. But the CIO isn't suggesting an increase in pay.

All Presidents have found it necessary to get relief from the White House tension. This correspondent defended President Truman when, on the occasion of his visits to Key West, there were critics who begrudged Mr. Truman rest and relaxation. Back in the days of President Wilson, a Democratic President, political opponents were far more respectful. Mr. Wilson used to go golfing two or three times a week and went for a long auto ride on the days he didn't play golf. But nobody criticized him for this. Manners were better then.

Attacks on the personal life of a President are hitting below the belt. The job of being President of the United States carries more responsibility and worry than any other office in the world. Lately one distinguished visitor who knew Dwight Eisenhower well in Europe remarked on the latter's appearance as lacking in robustness. The comment was made that Mr. Eisenhower looked thinner and seemed to be missing the outdoor life he formerly led.

Made Resolution

Early in the administration, Mr. Eisenhower resolved to take Wednesday afternoons as well as Saturday afternoons off and to try to get in as much relaxation during week ends as possible. He has not succeeded, however, in carrying out that resolution. For the record shows that, since he was inaugurated, he is at work as early as seven o'clock in the morning and spends at least two to three hours in the evening looking over reports and reading official data submitted to him.

Even on his week-end trips to Augusta and on his recent cruise to Annapolis, he carried official papers with him and worked at his job for many hours. On his four days on the yacht Williamsburg he worked every night, and Saturday night till 1:30 with members of his staff on his speeches for this week.

It is unusual for any President to be granting engagements for Saturday mornings, but Mr. Eisenhower has spent thirteen Saturdays thus far at the White House seeing people. His luncheons and dinners on week days have been on public business almost without exception. He is putting in longer days than the public has known about.

But even if a President decided to keep union hours and work forty hours a week and play the rest, would the CIO Political Action Committee think this was wrong? Is there no limitation to political attack nowadays? The public policies of a President are perhaps fair game for political opponents, but the personal life of the President ought to be immune. This correspondent a couple of years ago—when the corruption issue became a subject of widespread interest—had occasion to write that Mr. Truman's tolerance for incompetents in office was a case of bad political judgment but that the President himself was a man of personal and financial integrity. That defense won this writer only the most severe castigation from bitter partisans who tried to besmirch Mr. Truman's record in private business.

The same thing happened during the Roosevelt administration, when there was an unjustified criticism of a member of the President's family serving in the war zone. The argument was made by this correspondent at the time that a President's personal and home life should not be dragged into politics.

The attack on Mr. Eisenhower because he is trying to get some recreation to help him keep his health is unwarranted and unfair, and if the political opponents of the President, particularly the CIO Political Action Committee, keep up that sort of sniping, it will boomerang. For the American people want a President to keep in good physical condition—and to take whatever hours of recreation he likes and to cut down on the number of those sixty-hour weeks. The President's good health isn't a partisan question.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

For your information, I present a letter from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt to Fred Florence who was, at that time, Oct. 7, 1950, an employe in the home of General George Marshall, and my comments on some points contained therein. Her letter was a reply to one inquiring why she never took steps to refute my disclosure of the fact that Franklin D. Roosevelt's grandfather, Warren Delano, the old windjammer from Fairhaven, Mass., had been an opium smuggler in Canton, China, and, in fact, had been implicated with the British in their so-called opium war waged for the purpose of thrusting the drug on the degraded Chinese common people in defiance of a law laid down by their emperor to break them of their addicition. Accordingly, he declared opium to be contraband.

Like our attempt at Prohibition, this reform produced a smuggling traffic very much like our own memorable rum row off Long Island. Warren Delano sailed on this opium row in his own ships. No mention ever was made of the fact until I chanced upon it and verified this interesting gap in the history of a family which, one way and another, has been the most interesting in our history.

Under her Frank as the widow of a president, on the letterhead of Val-Kill Cottage, Hyde Park, New York, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"Has it occurred to you that Mr. Pgler writes just in order to get people to answer him so he can keep on writing? Labor and the Roosevelts are his favorite subjects. If we began answering everything he says we would never be able to stop.

"A long time ago, my husband told me it was better to ignore attacks of this kind. There is always some tiny bit of truth which you have to explain and, by the time you have explained, everyone has forgotten what you showed up as untrue. My husband felt it was better not to enter into a discussion with people who were trying to bait you into giving them material to write on.

"To give you an example. In the years when my husband's grandfather, Mr. Warren Delano, was in China, practically all the nations of the world traded in opium. We none of us believed that Mr. Delano ever knowingly did so because all the records in the family speak of his being a tea-merchant and always, until my mother-in-law died, the Chinese family from whom Mr. Delano bought tea, kept sending tea every year to show the devotion to the old traditional friendship between the two families. There is no record that we can find that leads us to believe that my husband's grandfather ever traded in opium. However, it was prevalent at that time so you can see what an endless argument we would enter into with Mr. Pegler on that subject. Many of the other things he says are similar and therefore it seems utterly useless to refute anything he says.

"My husband thought of him as a slimy snake and slimy snakes slide to cover very quickly. He is highly insured against libel, so it makes no difference to him whether you bring a libel suit against him or not.

"The kind of things he says are very difficult to prove or disprove in many cases, so it is very much better to ignore him and it makes him so angry.

"Very sincerely yours, (signed) Eleanor Roosevelt."

I have cited documentary proof that Warren Delano did trade in opium in Canton. He joined the English when they were beleaguered by the emperor's troops in Canton and the basic cause of the siege was the defiant continuation of the opium traffic by foreign devils who would stoop to anything to make money. One contemporary comment by an American naval officer spoke of this as a "nefarious" traffic.

The horrible effects of opium on the addict in the advanced stages were as well known then as they are today. It is beside the issue to say that Delano was a tea-merchant as, in fact, he was, because that does not preclude another interest in opium. It is equally evasive to say that "practically all nations" traded in opium because the traffic was abhorred by many honorable men at the same time. Prostitution is world-wide but American ethics do not endorse it. And this nation, as a nation, did not traffic in opium.

"Black-birding," the illicit importation of African captives for slavery, also was a prosperous traffic of American and British shipping companies, usually under false registration and with professional impostors aboard bearing the nominal title of captain to take the responsibility in case of capture.

There is abundant material on this and the opium traffic in the libraries of Boston and New York where I made my studies and unless it has been filched to obliterate a shameful record, there is proof in the archives of the State Department. I found no evidence that Delano engaged in "black-birding."

AFRICA MAY REACH PERIL POINT

Every time he turns around, the American is being asked to discover another continent. This time it's Africa.

The American's attention—and his pocketbook—already are pretty thoroughly divided. He knows Britain and France are his country's firmest friends and is own security is bound up with their safety. He knows Korea and Indo-China are live danger spots; the casualty lists are eloquent.

But that's merely the beginning. He hears that Iran is critical becase its oil is strategic. Egypt is crucial because the Suez canal is an indispensable free world lifeline. Yugoslavia is a bastion of southeastern Europe whose fall to Russia would outflank the West. Germany and Japan are great industrial prizes which must be held.

To his ears come other reports that he must watch India closely, since it may be the next big Asian target of the Reds. He is told, too, that country after country in Latin America is a hotbed of communism.

And now, Africa. The spotlight is on. With a spectacular pictorial effort and sound analysis, Life magazine has tried in a recent issue to show the American why he must add Africa to his list of worries. Other magazines have contributed ably to the story, and a good many newspaper reporters have landed safely on the African coast and are making their way inland.

The sad thing is, all these demands on his time and many of the calls for his money are legitimate. Yet, in his despair at the clamor and confusion, the American often wishes he could shrug off the whole business and just devote himself to trying to understand his own country.

This he cannot do, naturally. From the chaos of world problems he must seek some measure of order. At risk of being crudely arbitrary, he must fix a priority-of-interest scale of dealing with the nations seeking his attention. The place of Korea, Indo-China and Western Europe at the top is obvious. Not so clear is the question where India belongs, or Africa.

Africa, like Asia, is in ferment. Its peoples have been shown western standards. They want a better life for themselves than the grinding poverty they have had.

The experts agree that Communists have not stirred this ferment but are simply trying to take credit for it, and trying to exploit it for the future.

Africa has not gone so far down the road as Asia. We may help to prevent a violent explosion if we can find the heart and the means to encourage the African people in the fulfillment of their legitimate aspirations for self-development.

If we do not—if we insist on confining our interest to places plagued by crisis—then we shall surely be rewarded one day by a king-size blowup in tormented Africa.

Cigars and chewing tobacco are just about man's last possessions that are solely his. Nearly everything else he should first offer to a lady before partaking.

RED CROSS BIRTHDAY

This month the American Red Cross will observe its seventy-second anniversary. It was founded by Clara Barton on May 21, 1881, as an affiliate of Red Cross societies which functioned under provisions of the Treaty of Geneva. She served as its president until 1904 and watched it grow from a fledgling organization to a potent force for charity and mercy.

In times of war the Red Cross has served as a link between soldiers and their loved ones at home, it has provided entertainment for the lonely and comfort for the wounded. Wherever natural calamities have struck the Red Cross has been represented, ready to relieve suffering with food, medical supplies and assistance.

Perhaps the best thing about the Red Cross is that it is an organization made up of volunteers who give their time and money to help others. On its seventy-second birthday it deserves the congratulations of all Americans. It has given one of the best answers yet to the age-old question, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

THE TRAGIC DECADES

The peoples of Asia, after World War I, determined no longer to be colonial or semi-colonial nations, Japan had set an example for all Asiatic countries, namely, that it had succeeded in changing from a semi-colonial country to independence and to becoming the fourth power on earth (1919).

Turkey, which had been pro-German and was defeated in that war, losing her vast Arabic dependencies, built herself into a small, compact but important state under the leadership of Kemal Pasha. Persia managed to eliminate the spheres of influence of both Russia and Great Britain. In China, the tuchuns (warlords) prevailed, keeping the country in turmoil, but the Students Movement of May, 1919, which prevented the Chinese government from signing the Paris Treaty, rejuvenated a nation and ushered in a period of intensive nationalism and anti-foreignism.

In India, Gandhi appeared as a leader of a movement of nationalistic passive resistance which ultimately succeeded in winning for India its independence from Great Britain.. however, at the cost of partition, resulting in the establishment of the new Moslem state of Pakistan.

Even in the Philippines, the independence movement developed strength under the leadership of Manuel Quezon, who once told me that he preferred dominion status to independence. However, independence came and ended American imperialism in Asia.

European countries had, for centuries, built empires in Asia. This trend can be traced back to Alexander the Great, whose forces reached the Burma-Yunnan frontier.

In our times, Portugal, the Netherlands, Great Britain, France and Russia erected important empires in Asia.

The Portuguese Empire was dissipated in the fall of the Iberian nations before the power of Great Britain. Except for Goa in India, Macao in China, and Portuguese Timor in Indonesia, the Portuguese ceased to be of any importance before World War I.

The Netherlands built and held the lush islands of the land now known as Indonesia, consisting of Sumatra, Java, Borneo, Celebes, Netherlands New Guinea, and a large number of islands, including the beautiful Bali. Colonialism ended in Indonesia, but should the Russians take Siam and Malaya, Indonesia could not defend herself. As a matter of cold fact, only the United States can today defend Indonesia—a supply area for us of rubber and other essentials.

The British have lost India, their influence in Afghanistan, their economic power in China, their oil in Iran (Persia), and their persuasive influence in the Arabic countries. They hold the Malay Peninsula, source of tin and rubber; they are influential in Burma, and they possess Hongkong in China. India and Pakistan, while independent, are members of the (British) Commonwealth of Nations. Tibet, which Britain dominated, is now part of the Soviet Empire.

The shrinking of the British Empire is a major tragedy in history, for while it is sound, from the standpoint of American political theory, for each people to have a government of its own choosing, actually what has happened is that a hundred doors have been opened to Russian imperialism in Asia. The British Empire maintained the peace of a continent from Pondicherry (1815) to Yalta (1945).

France's Empire in Asia, once larger, came down to Indo-China, which lies on China, Burma and Siam. This consisted originally of five areas, Cochin-China, Cambodia, Laos, Annam and Tonkin. It is a land in which the cultures and races of India and China have become assimilated among native races. This country Russia is now conquering. Of all the European nations, France has put up the best fight to hold her empire, although she is now forced to make concessions to local kings and governments, which, if Russia does not conquer the country, will result in a split-up into small nations.

The end of empire in Asia means chaos in our times. Only Russia, among European nations, is continuing to expand her empire.

Moench in his book, "Office Psychiatry," states that the I.Q. distribution of the vast bulk of the population is between 90 and 110 (50 per cent of adults). Approximately 84 per cent of the population falls between 80 and 120, 96 per cent between 65 and 130. Only 2.2 per cent falls below 65 and 2.2 per cent above 130.

We must remember, of course, that our physical condition at time of examination can interefere with the above findings; infection can make us "slow" and inattenive, and gland conditions, of a temporary nature, can make us overalert or can make us sluggish, the thyroid gland and liver activity being examples.

All any of us can do to be at our best mentally is to be at our best physically, by watching the three points in health—food, rest, exercise.

Senator Exhaled "Poisons"

Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon has been getting a number of letters from doctors, asking him how it was physically possible for him to stand on his feet and speak continously for over 22 hours. Did he take drugs? And if so, what drugs?

Senator Morse is writing back to all these medical men that he took no drugs and had no trick devices to sustain him. His nourishment during the long speech was three glasses of water, four cups of bouillon, three cups of orange juice, three cups of coffee and nine cups of tea.

Dr. George W. Calver, the veteran capital physician who was watching Senator Morse during his long speech against the tidelands bill, and who has watched former Senators Huey Long of Louisiana and Bob LaFollette, Jr., in their marthon filibusters, says there's a natural explanation for this phenomenon.

While a man is speaking, he is exhaling through his breath the body poisons which are normally eliminated in other ways. That's what enables him to keep going without a break.

Senator Morse says that he could have talked for another couple of hours without strain. As a matter of fact, after he finished speaking, he held a press conference and walked back to his office, before he lay down.

Bureaucrats Ride Streetcars

Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole, former Kansas congressman, is finding out the hard way that the life of a bureaucrat isn't as simple and lush as a lot of critics on Capitol Hill like to make out.

In New York the other day, Mr. Cole took a taxi from his hotel to a housing conference. The fare was 50 cents, plus tip. Back in Washington, Administrator Cole filed his expense account, itemizing the taxi fare. Back came a letter from auditors of General Accounting Office. They demanded that he prove it was more feasible to take a taxicab than to go by streetcar, before they would reimburse him.

RIF's Chain Letters

Any government employe who is being liquidated out of his job through various executive department and congressional economy drives is becoming known as a "RIF." The initials come from what is known as the Reduction in Force program.

This program is having one curious repercussion. As soon as a government employe is notified that he is being fired, he writes his congressman. The congressman then forwards the letter of complaint to the head of the agency doing the firing, asking how come?

The head of the agency then notifies the congressman that by act of Congress, the appropriation for the agency is being cut, and it is necessary to reduce the working force.

The congressman then writes back to his constituent, saying in effect that of course it shouldn't be necessary for the agency head to fire a good and faithful public servant like him. Somebody else should be fired, of course, but the congressman has little influence over these dictatorial bureaucrats.

And that completes the daisy chain.

Life's Embarrasing Moments

Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay was reading a long-winded statement to the House Ways and Means Committee, in support of President Eisenhower's request for a simple, one-year extension of the reciprocal trade program. In the middle of it he read a sentence to the effect that now "the composition of the Tariff Commission had changed."

Rep. Herman P. Eberharter of Pennsylvania interrupted to ask how it had changed?

"I must admit I don't know," replied the secretary. "I didn't write this statement."

Ike Is Pilot Two Ways

President Dwight D. Eisenhower is the first President of the U. S. to hold an aircraft pilot's license, according to research conducted by Aircraft Industries Association. The President has been a pilot for 14 years. He learned to fly while he was stationed in the Philippines as a lieutenant colonel on the staff of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The plane which the President was checked out in was an open-cockpit primary trainer. It had a 220-h.p. engine and a maximum speed of about 125 miles an hour. But the last time the President piloted his own plane was in 1947.

The first President to fly, incidentally, was Theodore Roosevelt. He was President when the Wright Brothers made their first flight at Kitty Hawk 50 years ago. But it wasn't till 1910 that "Teddy" went aloft, during a flying meet in St. Louis.

Multer's Muse

Rep. Abraham J. Multer of Brooklyn, N. Y., under leave to extend his remarks in the Congressional Record, inserted a speech protesting against the raising of interest rates on government bonds, FHA and G.I. mortgages and loans. The title which Mr. Multer put on his "speech" was "Bundles for Billionaires."

Awalts Court's Lobby Ruling

Congressional reform advocates are anxious to have a new lobbying law that will tighten up provisions of the present lobby registration law. A U. S. District Court decision last year found for the National Association of Manufacturers in its complaint against revealing how much money it had spent in influencing legislation.

The Supreme Court has agreed to hear an appeal on the case, but won't get around to it till next fall. Nobody wants to try to amend the present lobbying law until it's known what the Supreme Court ruling will be. In the meantime, lobbyists must continue reporting their expenses.

CIO Sniping at President Eisenhower for His Golf and Fishing Trips Called Unfair

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 19 — The CIO Political Action Committee has begun to snipe at President Eisenhower's golfing, cruising and fishing. Their weekly publication has begun a tally on his hours of recreation.

The CIO folks might better have shown some concern over the fact that Mr. Eisenhower, under union concepts and the eight-hour law, would really be entitled to time and a half in pay for all hours above forty a week that he works. If the CIO Political Action Committee is interested in the hours that the President works, as well as those he plays, they would find that he actually works from fifty-five to sixty hours a week. But the CIO isn't suggesting an increase in pay.

All Presidents have found it necessary to get relief from the White House tension. This correspondent defended President Truman when, on the occasion of his visits to Key West, there were critics who begrudged Mr. Truman rest and relaxation. Back in the days of President Wilson, a Democratic President, political opponents were far more respectful. Mr. Wilson used to go golfing two or three times a week and went for a long auto ride on the days he didn't play golf. But nobody criticized him for this. Manners were better then.

Attacks on the personal life of a President are hitting below the belt. The job of being President of the United States carries more responsibility and worry than any other office in the world. Lately one distinguished visitor who knew Dwight Eisenhower well in Europe remarked on the latter's appearance as lacking in robustness. The comment was made that Mr. Eisenhower looked thinner and seemed to be missing the outdoor life he formerly led.

Made Resolution

Early in the administration, Mr. Eisenhower resolved to take Wednesday afternoons as well as Saturday afternoons off and to try to get in as much relaxation during week ends as possible. He has not succeeded, however, in carrying out that resolution. For the record shows that, since he was inaugurated, he is at work as early as seven o'clock in the morning and spends at least two to three hours in the evening looking over reports and reading official data submitted to him.

Even on his week-end trips to Augusta and on his recent cruise to Annapolis, he carried official papers with him and worked at his job for many hours. On his four days on the yacht Williamsburg he worked every night, and Saturday night till 1:30 with members of his staff on his speeches for this week.

It is unusual for any President to be granting engagements for Saturday mornings, but Mr. Eisenhower has spent thirteen Saturdays thus far at the White House seeing people. His luncheons and dinners on week days have been on public business almost without exception. He is putting in longer days than the public has known about.

But even if a President decided to keep union hours and work forty hours a week and play the rest, would the CIO Political Action Committee think this was wrong? Is there no limitation to political attack nowadays? The public policies of a President are perhaps fair game for political opponents, but the personal life of the President ought to be immune. This correspondent a couple of years ago—when the corruption issue became a subject of widespread interest—had occasion to write that Mr. Truman's tolerance for incompetents in office was a case of bad political judgment but that the President himself was a man of personal and financial integrity. That defense won this writer only the most severe castigation from bitter partisans who tried to besmirch Mr. Truman's record in private business.

The same thing happened during the Roosevelt administration, when there was an unjustified criticism of a member of the President's family serving in the war zone. The argument was made by this correspondent at the time that a President's personal and home life should not be dragged into politics.

The attack on Mr. Eisenhower because he is trying to get some recreation to help him keep his health is unwarranted and unfair, and if the political opponents of the President, particularly the CIO Political Action Committee, keep up that sort of sniping, it will boomerang. For the American people want a President to keep in good physical condition—and to take whatever hours of recreation he likes and to cut down on the number of those sixty-hour weeks. The President's good health isn't a partisan question.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

For your information, I present a letter from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt to Fred Florence who was, at that time, Oct. 7, 1950, an employe in the home of General George Marshall, and my comments on some points contained therein. Her letter was a reply to one inquiring why she never took steps to refute my disclosure of the fact that Franklin D. Roosevelt's grandfather, Warren Delano, the old windjammer from Fairhaven, Mass., had been an opium smuggler in Canton, China, and, in fact, had been implicated with the British in their so-called opium war waged for the purpose of thrusting the drug on the degraded Chinese common people in defiance of a law laid down by their emperor to break them of their addicition. Accordingly, he declared opium to be contraband.

Like our attempt at Prohibition, this reform produced a smuggling traffic very much like our own memorable rum row off Long Island. Warren Delano sailed on this opium row in his own ships. No mention ever was made of the fact until I chanced upon it and verified this interesting gap in the history of a family which, one way and another, has been the most interesting in our history.

Under her Frank as the widow of a president, on the letterhead of Val-Kill Cottage, Hyde Park, New York, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"Has it occurred to you that Mr. Pgler writes just in order to get people to answer him so he can keep on writing? Labor and the Roosevelts are his favorite subjects. If we began answering everything he says we would never be able to stop.

"A long time ago, my husband told me it was better to ignore attacks of this kind. There is always some tiny bit of truth which you have to explain and, by the time you have explained, everyone has forgotten what you showed up as untrue. My husband felt it was better not to enter into a discussion with people who were trying to bait you into giving them material to write on.

"To give you an example. In the years when my husband's grandfather, Mr. Warren Delano, was in China, practically all the nations of the world traded in opium. We none of us believed that Mr. Delano ever knowingly did so because all the records in the family speak of his being a tea-merchant and always, until my mother-in-law died, the Chinese family from whom Mr. Delano bought tea, kept sending tea every year to show the devotion to the old traditional friendship between the two families. There is no record that we can find that leads us to believe that my husband's grandfather ever traded in opium. However, it was prevalent at that time so you can see what an endless argument we would enter into with Mr. Pegler on that subject. Many of the other things he says are similar and therefore it seems utterly useless to refute anything he says.

"My husband thought of him as a slimy snake and slimy snakes slide to cover very quickly. He is highly insured against libel, so it makes no difference to him whether you bring a libel suit against him or not.

"The kind of things he says are very difficult to prove or disprove in many cases, so it is very much better to ignore him and it makes him so angry.

"Very sincerely yours, (signed) Eleanor Roosevelt."

I have cited documentary proof that Warren Delano did trade in opium in Canton. He joined the English when they were beleaguered by the emperor's troops in Canton and the basic cause of the siege was the defiant continuation of the opium traffic by foreign devils who would stoop to anything to make money. One contemporary comment by an American naval officer spoke of this as a "nefarious" traffic.

The horrible effects of opium on the addict in the advanced stages were as well known then as they are today. It is beside the issue to say that Delano was a tea-merchant as, in fact, he was, because that does not preclude another interest in opium. It is equally evasive to say that "practically all nations" traded in opium because the traffic was abhorred by many honorable men at the same time. Prostitution is world-wide but American ethics do not endorse it. And this nation, as a nation, did not traffic in opium.

"Black-birding," the illicit importation of African captives for slavery, also was a prosperous traffic of American and British shipping companies, usually under false registration and with professional impostors aboard bearing the nominal title of captain to take the responsibility in case of capture.

There is abundant material on this and the opium traffic in the libraries of Boston and New York where I made my studies and unless it has been filched to obliterate a shameful record, there is proof in the archives of the State Department. I found no evidence that Delano engaged in "black-birding."

AFRICA MAY REACH PERIL POINT

Every time he turns around, the American is being asked to discover another continent. This time it's Africa.

The American's attention—and his pocketbook—already are pretty thoroughly divided. He knows Britain and France are his country's firmest friends and is own security is bound up with their safety. He knows Korea and Indo-China are live danger spots; the casualty lists are eloquent.

But that's merely the beginning. He hears that Iran is critical becase its oil is strategic. Egypt is crucial because the Suez canal is an indispensable free world lifeline. Yugoslavia is a bastion of southeastern Europe whose fall to Russia would outflank the West. Germany and Japan are great industrial prizes which must be held.

To his ears come other reports that he must watch India closely, since it may be the next big Asian target of the Reds. He is told, too, that country after country in Latin America is a hotbed of communism.

And now, Africa. The spotlight is on. With a spectacular pictorial effort and sound analysis, Life magazine has tried in a recent issue to show the American why he must add Africa to his list of worries. Other magazines have contributed ably to the story, and a good many newspaper reporters have landed safely on the African coast and are making their way inland.

The sad thing is, all these demands on his time and many of the calls for his money are legitimate. Yet, in his despair at the clamor and confusion, the American often wishes he could shrug off the whole business and just devote himself to trying to understand his own country.

This he cannot do, naturally. From the chaos of world problems he must seek some measure of order. At risk of being crudely arbitrary, he must fix a priority-of-interest scale of dealing with the nations seeking his attention. The place of Korea, Indo-China and Western Europe at the top is obvious. Not so clear is the question where India belongs, or Africa.

Africa, like Asia, is in ferment. Its peoples have been shown western standards. They want a better life for themselves than the grinding poverty they have had.

The experts agree that Communists have not stirred this ferment but are simply trying to take credit for it, and trying to exploit it for the future.

Africa has not gone so far down the road as Asia. We may help to prevent a violent explosion if we can find the heart and the means to encourage the African people in the fulfillment of their legitimate aspirations for self-development.

If we do not—if we insist on confining our interest to places plagued by crisis—then we shall surely be rewarded one day by a king-size blowup in tormented Africa.

Cigars and chewing tobacco are just about man's last possessions that are solely his. Nearly everything else he should first offer to a lady before partaking.

RED CROSS BIRTHDAY

This month the American Red Cross will observe its seventy-second anniversary. It was founded by Clara Barton on May 21, 1881, as an affiliate of Red Cross societies which functioned under provisions of the Treaty of Geneva. She served as its president until 1904 and watched it grow from a fledgling organization to a potent force for charity and mercy.

In times of war the Red Cross has served as a link between soldiers and their loved ones at home, it has provided entertainment for the lonely and comfort for the wounded. Wherever natural calamities have struck the Red Cross has been represented, ready to relieve suffering with food, medical supplies and assistance.

Perhaps the best thing about the Red Cross is that it is an organization made up of volunteers who give their time and money to help others. On its seventy-second birthday it deserves the congratulations of all Americans. It has given one of the best answers yet to the age-old question, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

'These Days'

THE TRAGIC DECADES

The peoples of Asia, after World War I, determined no longer to be colonial or semi-colonial nations, Japan had set an example for all Asiatic countries, namely, that it had succeeded in changing from a semi-colonial country to independence and to becoming the fourth power on earth (1919).

Turkey, which had been pro-German and was defeated in that war, losing her vast Arabic dependencies, built herself into a small, compact but important state under the leadership of Kemal Pasha. Persia managed to eliminate the spheres of influence of both Russia and Great Britain. In China, the tuchuns (warlords) prevailed, keeping the country in turmoil, but the Students Movement of May, 1919, which prevented the Chinese government from signing the Paris Treaty, rejuvenated a nation and ushered in a period of intensive nationalism and anti-foreignism.

In India, Gandhi appeared as a leader of a movement of nationalistic passive resistance which ultimately succeeded in winning for India its independence from Great Britain.. however, at the cost of partition. resulting in the establishment of the new Moslem state of Pakistan.

Even in the Philippines, the independence movement developed strength under the leadership of Manuel Quezon, who once told me that he preferred dominion status to independence. However, independence came and ended American imperialism in Asia.

European countries had, for centuries, built empires in Asia. This trend can be traced back to Alexander the Great, whose forces reached the Burma-Yunnan frontier.

In our times, Portugal, the Netherlands, Great Britain, France and Russia erected important empires in Asia.

The Portuguese Empire was dissipated in the fall of the Iberian nations before the power of Great Britain. Except for Goa in India, Macao in China, and Portuguese Timor in Indonesia, the Portuguese ceased to be of any importance before World War I.

The Netherlands built and held the lush islands of the land now known as Indonesia, consisting of Sumatra, Java, Borneo, Celebes, Netherlands New Guinea, and a large number of islands, including the beautiful Bali. This area centered economically on the British city of Singapore. Possessing oil, rubber, and spices, Indonesia is one of the richest countries on earth, requiring only capital for its development.

After World War II, the Dutch were forced to give up this empire, largely because the United States favored the revolution. Whereas the Dutch were among the most competent colonial managers, the government of Indonesia, with the best of intentions, was not ready, politically or economically, to take over the huge tasks of managing a far-flung island nation. Colonialism ended in Indonesia, but should the Russians take Siam and Malaya, Indonesia could not defend herself. As a matter of cold fact, only the United States can today defend Indonesia—a supply area for us of rubber and other essentials.

The British have lost India, their influence in Afghanistan, their economic power in China, their oil in Iran (Persia), and their persuasive influence in the Arabic countries. They hold the Malay Peninsula, source of tin and rubber; they are influential in Burma, and they possess Hongkong in China. India and Pakistan, while independent, are members of the (British) Commonwealth of Nations. Tibet, which Britain dominated, is now part of the Soviet Empire.

The shrinking of the British Empire is a major tragedy in history, for while it is sound, from the standpoint of American political theory, for each people to have a government of its own choosing, actually what has happened is that a hundred doors have been opened to Russian imperialism in Asia. The British Empire maintained the peace of a continent from Pondicherry (1815) to Yalta (1945).

France's Empire in Asia, once larger, came down to Indo-China, which lies on China, Burma and Siam. This consisted originally of five areas, Cochin-China, Cambodia, Laos, Annam and Tonkin. It is a land in which the cultures and races of India and China have become assimilated among native races. This country Russia is now conquering. Of all the European nations, France has put up the best fight to hold her empire, although she is now forced to make concessions to local kings and governments, which, if Russia does not conquer the country, will result in a split-up into small nations.

The end of empire in Asia means chaos in our times. Only Russia, among European nations, is continuing to expand her empire.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

WHAT IS YOUR INTELLIGENCE QUOTIENT?

You may wonder when you observe the behavior of some individuals—boys, girls, men, women—just how they would stand if examined by a psychologist as to their intelligence.

The testing of intelligence is done in various ways—by questions, simple games, and arithmetic tests. In this manner, the examiner estimates the Intelligence Quotient (I.Q.) of the individual.

The I.Q. test is useful for measuring mental deficiencies. The average in normal adults ranges between 90 and 100. The score for subnormal "borderline" or dull persons ranges between 75 and 90. These people may get through grade school with extra effort or with leniency of the school authorities but high school becomes very difficult. They do better at jobs requiring little imagination, planning and intellectual skill, such as unskilled laborers.

The next below, with an I.Q. between 50 and 75 are what are known as morons (what we call ourselves when we have done something unusually stupid.) They drop out of school early. Can do jobs under supervision.

Imbeciles have an I.Q. between 25 and 50. They are called mental defectives and are usually segregated into special schools or are confined to the protection of their homes.

Idiots, the lowest class mentally, have an I.Q. of 25 or less; they require help in looking after themselves as to ordinary hygiene—food and toilet.

It may surprise some to learn that those with an I.Q. above normal, while capable of difficult intellectual accomplishments such as originating new mathematical systems, may find life difficult because their general make-up is "high strung."

Notwithstanding the many cases in our mental hospitals, Dr. Louis G. Moench in his book, "Office Psychiatry," states that the I.Q. distribution of the vast bulk of the population is between 90 and 110 (50 per cent of adults). Approximately 84 per cent of the population falls between 80 and 120, 96 per cent between 65 and 130. Only 2.2 per cent falls below 65 and 2.2 per cent above 130.

We must remember, of course, that our physical condition at time of examination can interefere with the above findings; infection can make us "slow" and inattenive, and gland conditions, of a temporary nature, can make us overalert or can make us sluggish, the thyroid gland and liver activity being examples.

All any of us can do to be at our best mentally is to be at our best physically, by watching the three points in health—food, rest, exercise.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower is the first President of the U. S. to hold an aircraft pilot's license, according to research conducted by Aircraft Industries Association. The President has been a pilot for 14 years. He learned to fly while he was stationed in the Philippines as a lieutenant colonel on the staff of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The plane which the President was checked out in was an open-cockpit primary trainer. It had a 220-h.p. engine and a maximum speed of about 125 miles an hour. But the last time the President piloted his own plane was in 1947.

The first President to fly, incidentally, was Theodore Roosevelt. He was President when the Wright Brothers made their first flight at Kitty Hawk 50 years ago. But it wasn't till 1910 that "Teddy" went aloft, during a flying meet in St. Louis.

Multer's Muse

Rep. Abraham J. Multer of Brooklyn, N. Y., under leave to extend his remarks in the Congressional Record, inserted a speech protesting against the raising of interest rates on government bonds, FHA and G.I. mortgages and loans. The title which Mr. Multer put on his "speech" was "Bundles for Billionaires."

Awaits Court's Lobby Ruling

Congressional reform advocates are anxious to have a new lobbying law that will tighten up provisions of the present lobby registration law. A U. S. District Court decision last year found for the National Association of Manufacturers in its complaint against revealing how much money it had spent in influencing legislation.

The Supreme Court has agreed to hear an appeal on the case, but won't get around to it till next fall. Nobody wants to try to amend the present lobbying law until it's known what the Supreme Court ruling will be. In the meantime, lobbyists must continue reporting their expenses.

CIO Sniping at President Eisenhower for His Golf and Fishing Trips Called Unfair

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 19 — The CIO Political Action Committee has begun to snipe at President Eisenhower's golfing, cruising and fishing. Their weekly publication has begun a tally on his hours of recreation.

The CIO folks might better have shown some concern over the fact that Mr. Eisenhower, under union concepts and the eight-hour law, would really be entitled to time and a half in pay for all hours above forty a week that he works. If the CIO Political Action Committee is interested in the hours that the President works, as well as those he plays, they would find that he actually works from fifty-five to sixty hours a week. But the CIO isn't suggesting an increase in pay.

All Presidents have found it necessary to get relief from the White House tension. This correspondent defended President Truman when, on the occasion of his visits to Key West, there were critics who begrudged Mr. Truman rest and relaxation. Back in the days of President Wilson, a Democratic President, political opponents were far more respectful. Mr. Wilson used to go golfing two or three times a week and went for a long auto ride on the days he didn't play golf. But nobody criticized him for this. Manners were better then.

Attacks on the personal life of a President are hitting below the belt. The job of being President of the United States carries more responsibility and worry than any other office in the world. Lately one distinguished visitor who knew Dwight Eisenhower well in Europe remarked on the latter's appearance as lacking in robustness. The comment was made that Mr. Eisenhower looked thinner and seemed to be missing the outdoor life he formerly led.

Made Resolution

Early in the administration, Mr. Eisenhower resolved to take Wednesday afternoons as well as Saturday afternoons off and to try to get in as much relaxation during week ends as possible. He has not succeeded, however, in carrying out that resolution. For the record shows that, since he was inaugurated, he is at work as early as seven o'clock in the morning and spends at least two to three hours in the evening looking over reports and reading official data submitted to him.

Even on his week-end trips to Augusta and on his recent cruise to Annapolis, he carried official papers with him and worked at his job for many hours. On his four days on the yacht Williamsburg he worked every night, and Saturday night till 1:30 with members of his staff on his speeches for this week.

It is unusual for any President to be granting engagements for Saturday mornings, but Mr. Eisenhower has spent thirteen Saturdays thus far at the White House seeing people. His luncheons and dinners on week days have been on public business almost without exception. He is putting in longer days than the public has known about.

But even if a President decided to keep union hours and work forty hours a week and play the rest, would the CIO Political Action Committee think this was wrong? Is there no limitation to political attack nowadays? The public policies of a President are perhaps fair game for political opponents, but the personal life of the President ought to be immune. This correspondent a couple of years ago—when the corruption issue became a subject of widespread interest—had occasion to write that Mr. Truman's tolerance for incompetents in office was a case of bad political judgment but that the President himself was a man of personal and financial integrity. That defense won this writer only the most severe castigation from bitter partisans who tried to besmirch Mr. Truman's record in private business.

The same thing happened during the Roosevelt administration, when there was an unjustified criticism of a member of the President's family serving in the war zone. The argument was made by this correspondent at the time that a President's personal and home life should not be dragged into politics.

The attack on Mr. Eisenhower because he is trying to get some recreation to help him keep his health is unwarranted and unfair, and if the political opponents of the President, particularly the CIO Political Action Committee, keep up that sort of sniping, it will boomerang. For the American people want a President to keep in good physical condition—and to take whatever hours of recreation he likes and to cut down on the number of those sixty-hour weeks. The President's good health isn't a partisan question.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

For your information, I present a letter from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt to Fred Florence who was, at that time, Oct. 7, 1950, an employe in the home of General George Marshall, and my comments on some points contained therein. Her letter was a reply to one inquiring why she never took steps to refute my disclosure of the fact that Franklin D. Roosevelt's grandfather, Warren Delano, the old windjammer from Fairhaven, Mass., had been an opium smuggler in Canton, China, and, in fact, had been implicated with the British in their so-called opium war waged for the purpose of thrusting the drug on the degraded Chinese common people in defiance of a law laid down by their emperor to break them of their addicition. Accordingly, he declared opium to be contraband.

Like our attempt at Prohibition, this reform produced a smuggling traffic very much like our own memorable rum row off Long Island. Warren Delano sailed on this opium row in his own ships. No mention ever was made of the fact until I chanced upon it and verified this interesting gap in the history of a family which, one way and another, has been the most interesting in our history.

Under her Frank as the widow of a president, on the letterhead of Val-Kill Cottage, Hyde Park, New York, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"Has it occurred to you that Mr. Pgler writes just in order to get people to answer him so he can keep on writing? Labor and the Roosevelts are his favorite subjects. If we began answering everything he says we would never be able to stop.

"A long time ago, my husband told me it was better to ignore attacks of this kind. There is always some tiny bit of truth which you have to explain and, by the time you have explained, everyone has forgotten what you showed up as untrue. My husband felt it was better not to enter into a discussion with people who were trying to bait you into giving them material to write on.

"To give you an example. In the years when my husband's grandfather, Mr. Warren Delano, was in China, practically all the nations of the world traded in opium. We none of us believed that Mr. Delano ever knowingly did so because all the records in the family speak of his being a tea-merchant and always, until my mother-in-law died, the Chinese family from whom Mr. Delano bought tea, kept sending tea every year to show the devotion to the old traditional friendship between the two families. There is no record that we can find that leads us to believe that my husband's grandfather ever traded in opium. However, it was prevalent at that time so you can see what an endless argument we would enter into with Mr. Pegler on that subject. Many of the other things he says are similar and therefore it seems utterly useless to refute anything he says.

"My husband thought of him as a slimy snake and slimy snakes slide to cover very quickly. He is highly insured against libel, so it makes no difference to him whether you bring a libel suit against him or not.

"The kind of things he says are very difficult to prove or disprove in many cases, so it is very much better to ignore him and it makes him so angry.

"Very sincerely yours, (signed) Eleanor Roosevelt."

I have cited documentary proof that Warren Delano did trade in opium in Canton. He joined the English when they were beleaguered by the emperor's troops in Canton and the basic cause of the siege was the defiant continuation of the opium traffic by foreign devils who would stoop to anything to make money. One contemporary comment by an American naval officer spoke of this as a "nefarious" traffic.

The horrible effects of opium on the addict in the advanced stages were as well known then as they are today. It is beside the issue to say that Delano was a tea-merchant as, in fact, he was, because that does not preclude another interest in opium. It is equally evasive to say that "practically all nations" traded in opium because the traffic was abhorred by many honorable men at the same time. Prostitution is world-wide but American ethics do not endorse it. And this nation, as a nation, did not traffic in opium.

"Black-birding," the illicit importation of African captives for slavery, also was a prosperous traffic of American and British shipping companies, usually under false registration and with professional impostors aboard bearing the nominal title of captain to take the responsibility in case of capture.

There is abundant material on this and the opium traffic in the libraries of Boston and New York where I made my studies and unless it has been filched to obliterate a shameful record, there is proof in the archives of the State Department. I found no evidence that Delano engaged in "black-birding."

Mrs. Roosevelt's selfserving statement that "there is no record that we can find" has no value at

England has a milder climate than Labrador, which is in the same latitude, since the Gulf Stream brings a large current of warm water to her shores, while the Labrador current flows from the North Pole regions.

AFRICA MAY REACH PERIL POINT

Every time he turns around, the American is being asked to discover another continent. This time it's Africa.

The American's attention—and his pocketbook—already are pretty thoroughly divided. He knows Britain and France are his country's firmest friends and is own security is bound up with their safety. He knows Korea and Indo-China are live danger spots; the casualty lists are eloquent.

But that's merely the beginning. He hears that Iran is critical becase its oil is strategic. Egypt is crucial because the Suez canal is an indispensable free world lifeline. Yugoslavia is a bastion of southeastern Europe whose fall to Russia would outflank the West. Germany and Japan are great industrial prizes which must be held.

To his ears come other reports that he must watch India closely, since it may be the next big Asian target of the Reds. He is told, too, that country after country in Latin America is a hotbed of communism.

And now, Africa. The spotlight is on. With a spectacular pictorial effort and sound analysis, Life magazine has tried in a recent issue to show the American why he must add Africa to his list of worries. Other magazines have contributed ably to the story, and a good many newspaper reporters have landed safely on the African coast and are making their way inland.

The sad thing is, all these demands on his time and many of the calls for his money are legitimate. Yet, in his despair at the clamor and confusion, the American often wishes he could shrug off the whole business and just devote himself to trying to understand his own country.

This he cannot do, naturally. From the chaos of world problems he must seek some measure of order. At risk of being crudely arbitrary, he must fix a priority-of-interest scale of dealing with the nations seeking his attention. The place of Korea, Indo-China and Western Europe at the top is obvious. Not so clear is the question where India belongs, or Africa.

Africa, like Asia, is in ferment. Its peoples have been shown western standards. They want a better life for themselves than the grinding poverty they have had.

The experts agree that Communists have not stirred this ferment but are simply trying to take credit for it, and trying to exploit it for the future.

Africa has not gone so far down the road as Asia. We may help to prevent a violent explosion if we can find the heart and the means to encourage the African people in the fulfillment of their legitimate aspirations for self-development.

If we do not—if we insist on confining our interest to places plagued by crisis—then we shall surely be rewarded one day by a king-size blowup in tormented Africa.

Cigars and chewing tobacco are just about man's last possessions that are solely his. Nearly everything else he should first offer to a lady before partaking.

RED CROSS BIRTHDAY

This month the American Red Cross will observe its seventy-second anniversary. It was founded by Clara Barton on May 21, 1881, as an affiliate of Red Cross societies which functioned under provisions of the Treaty of Geneva. She served as its president until 1904 and watched it grow from a fledgling organization to a potent force for charity and mercy.

In times of war the Red Cross has served as a link between soldiers and their loved ones at home, it has provided entertainment for the lonely and comfort for the wounded. Wherever natural calamities have struck the Red Cross has been represented, ready to relieve suffering with food, medical supplies and assistance.

Perhaps the best thing about the Red Cross is that it is an organization made up of volunteers who give their time and money to help others. On its seventy-second birthday it deserves the congratulations of all Americans. It has given one of the best answers yet to the age-old question, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

'These Days'

THE TRAGIC DECADES

The peoples of Asia, after World War I, determined no longer to be colonial or semi-colonial nations, Japan had set an example for all Asiatic countries, namely, that it had succeeded in changing from a semi-colonial country to independence and to becoming the fourth power on earth (1919).

Turkey, which had been pro-German and was defeated in that war, losing her vast Arabic dependencies, built herself into a small, compact but important state under the leadership of Kemal Pasha. Persia managed to eliminate the spheres of influence of both Russia and Great Britain. In China, the tuchuns (warlords) prevailed, keeping the country in turmoil, but the Students Movement of May, 1919, which prevented the Chinese government from signing the Paris Treaty, rejuvenated a nation and ushered in a period of intensive nationalism and anti-foreignism.

In India, Gandhi appeared as a leader of a movement of nationalistic passive resistance which ultimately succeeded in winning for India its independence from Great Britain.. however, at the cost of partition. resulting in the establishment of the new Moslem state of Pakistan.

Even in the Philippines, the independence movement developed strength under the leadership of Manuel Quezon, who once told me that he preferred dominion status to independence. However, independence came and ended American imperialism in Asia.

European countries had, for centuries, built empires in Asia. This trend can be traced back to Alexander the Great, whose forces reached the Burma-Yunnan frontier.

In our times, Portugal, the Netherlands, Great Britain, France and Russia erected important empires in Asia.

The Portuguese Empire was dissipated in the fall of the Iberian nations before the power of Great Britain. Except for Goa in India, Macao in China, and Portuguese Timor in Indonesia, the Portuguese ceased to be of any importance before World War I.

The Netherlands built and held the lush islands of the land now known as Indonesia, consisting of Sumatra, Java, Borneo, Celebes, Netherlands New Guinea, and a large number of islands, including the beautiful Bali. This area centered economically on the British city of Singapore. Possessing oil, rubber, and spices, Indonesia is one of the richest countries on earth, requiring only capital for its development.

After World War II, the Dutch were forced to give up this empire, largely because the United States favored the revolution. Whereas the Dutch were among the most competent colonial managers, the government of Indonesia, with the best of intentions, was not ready, politically or economically, to take over the huge tasks of managing a far-flung island nation. Colonialism ended in Indonesia, but should the Russians take Siam and Malaya, Indonesia could not defend herself. As a matter of cold fact, only the United States can today defend Indonesia—a supply area for us of rubber and other essentials.

The British have lost India, their influence in Afghanistan, their economic power in China, their oil in Iran (Persia), and their persuasive influence in the Arabic countries. They hold the Malay Peninsula, source of tin and rubber; they are influential in Burma, and they possess Hongkong in China. India and Pakistan, while independent, are members of the (British) Commonwealth of Nations. Tibet, which Britain dominated, is now part of the Soviet Empire.

The shrinking of the British Empire is a major tragedy in history, for while it is sound, from the standpoint of American political theory, for each people to have a government of its own choosing, actually what has happened is that a hundred doors have been opened to Russian imperialism in Asia. The British Empire maintained the peace of a continent from Pondicherry (1815) to Yalta (1945).

France's Empire in Asia, once larger, came down to Indo-China, which lies on China, Burma and Siam. This consisted originally of five areas, Cochin-China, Cambodia, Laos, Annam and Tonkin. It is a land in which the cultures and races of India and China have become assimilated among native races. This country Russia is now conquering. Of all the European nations, France has put up the best fight to hold her empire, although she is now forced to make concessions to local kings and governments, which, if Russia does not conquer the country, will result in a split-up into small nations.

The end of empire in Asia means chaos in our times. Only Russia, among European nations, is continuing to expand her empire.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

WHAT IS YOUR INTELLIGENCE QUOTIENT?

You may wonder when you observe the behavior of some individuals—boys, girls, men, women—just how they would stand if examined by a psychologist as to their intelligence.

The testing of intelligence is done in various ways—by questions, simple games, and arithmetic tests. In this manner, the examiner estimates the Intelligence Quotient (I.Q.) of the individual.

The I.Q. test is useful for measuring mental deficiencies. The average in normal adults ranges between 90 and 100. The score for subnormal "borderline" or dull persons ranges between 75 and 90. These people may get through grade school with extra effort or with leniency of the school authorities but high school becomes very difficult. They do better at jobs requiring little imagination, planning and intellectual skill, such as unskilled laborers.

The next below, with an I.Q. between 50 and 75 are what are known as morons (what we call ourselves when we have done something unusually stupid.) They drop out of school early. Can do jobs under supervision.

Imbeciles have an I.Q. between 25 and 50. They are called mental defectives and are usually segregated into special schools or are confined to the protection of their homes.

Idiots, the lowest class mentally, have an I.Q. of 25 or less; they require help in looking after themselves as to ordinary hygiene—food and toilet.

It may surprise some to learn that those with an I.Q. above normal, while capable of difficult intellectual accomplishments such as originating new mathematical systems, may find life difficult because their general make-up is "high strung."

Notwithstanding the many cases in our mental hospitals, Dr. Louis G. Moench in his book, "Office Psychiatry," states that the I.Q. distribution of the vast bulk of the population is between 90 and 110 (50 per cent of adults). Approximately 84 per cent of the population falls between 80 and 120, 96 per cent between 65 and 130. Only 2.2 per cent falls below 65 and 2.2 per cent above 130.

We must remember, of course, that our physical condition at time of examination can interefere with the above findings; infection can make us "slow" and inattenive, and gland conditions, of a temporary nature, can make us overalert or can make us sluggish, the thyroid gland and liver activity being examples.

All any of us can do to be at our best mentally is to be at our best physically, by watching the three points in health—food, rest, exercise.

Constipation

It has been estimated that more persons suffer from constipation than are free from it. Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington—(NEA)—U. S. Air Force is going ahead with its project to develop an atomic-powered aircraft engine, in spite of reports that this program would be stopped by appropriation cuts in the defense budget. The contract for the atomic aviation project has been let to General Electric and the company has been given assurances there will be no cancellation or cutback on the work.

The chief advantige of an atomic engine is that it would give aircraft a tremendous range, without refueling.

The fate of the project to develop an atomic-powered aircraft carrier is still in doubt. An atomic engine in a carrier would also give greater range through reduced fuel-carrying capacity. Because of limitations on hull design, however, there is some question on whether an atomic engine would give a carrier greater speed.

Senator Exhaled "Poisons "

Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon has been getting a number of letters from doctors, asking him how it was physically possible for him to stand on his feet and speak continously for over 22 hours. Did he take drugs? And if so, what drugs?

Senator Morse is writing back to all these medical men that he took no drugs and had no trick devices to sustain him. His nourishment during the long speech was three glasses of water, four cups of bouillon, three cups of orange juice, three cups of coffee and nine cups of tea.

Dr. George W. Calver, the veteran capital physician who was watching Senator Morse during his long speech against the tidelands bill, and who has watched former Senators Huey Long of Louisiana and Bob LaFollette, Jr., in their marthon filibusters, says there's a natural explanation for this phenomenon.

While a man is speaking, he is exhaling through his breath the body poisons which are normally eliminated in other ways. That's what enables him to keep going without a break.

Senator Morse says that he could have talked for another couple of hours without strain. As a matter of fact, after he finished speaking, he held a press conference and walked back to his office, before he lay down.

Bureaucrats Ride Streetcars

Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole, former Kansas congressman, is finding out the hard way that the life of a bureaucrat isn't as simple and lush as a lot of critics on Capitol Hill like to make out.

In New York the other day, Mr. Cole took a taxi from his hotel to a housing conference. The fare was 50 cents, plus tip. Back in Washington, Administrator Cole filed his expense account, itemizing the taxi fare. Back came a letter from auditors of General Accounting Office. They demanded that he prove it was more feasible to take a taxicab than to go by streetcar, before they would reimburse him.

RIF's Chain Letters

Any government employe who is being liquidated out of his job through various executive department and congressional economy drives is becoming known as a "RIF." The initials come from what is known as the Reduction in Force program.

This program is having one curious repercussion. As soon as a government employe is notified that he is being fired, he writes his congressman. The congressman then forwards the letter of complaint to the head of the agency doing the firing, asking how come?

The head of the agency then notifies the congressman that by act of Congress, the appropriation for the agency is being cut, and it is necessary to reduce the working force.

The congressman then writes back to his constituent, saying in effect that of course it shouldn't be necessary for the agency head to fire a good and faithful public servant like him. Somebody else should be fired, of course, but the congressman has little influence over these dictatorial bureaucrats.

And that completes the daisy chain.

Life's Embarrasing Moments

Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay was reading a long-winded statement to the House Ways and Means Committee, in support of President Eisenhower's request for a simple, one-year extension of the reciprocal trade program. In the middle of it he read a sentence to the effect that now "the composition of the Tariff Commission had changed."

Rep. Herman P. Eberharter of Pennsylvania interrupted to ask how it had changed?

"I must admit I don't know," replied the secretary. "I didn't write this statement."

Congressional reform advocates are anxious to have a new lobbying law that will tighten up provisions of the present lobby registration law. A U. S. The Supreme Court has agreed to hear an appeal on the case, but won't get around to it till next fall. Nobody wants to try to amend the present lobbying law until it's known what the Supreme Court ruling will be. In the meantime, lobbyists must continue reporting their expenses.

Early in the administration, Mr. Eisenhower resolved to take Wednesday afternoons as well as Saturday afternoons off and to try to get in as much relaxation during week ends as possible. He has not succeeded, however, in carrying out that resolution. For the record shows that, since he was inaugurated, he is at work as early as seven o'clock in the morning and spends at least two to three hours in the evening looking over reports and reading official data submitted to him.

Even on his week-end trips to Augusta and on his recent cruise to Annapolis, he carried official papers with him and worked at his job for many hours. On his four days on the yacht Williamsburg he worked every night, and Saturday night till 1:30 with members of his staff on his speeches for this week.

But even if a President decided to keep union hours and work forty hours a week and play the rest, would the CIO Political Action Committee think this was wrong? Is there no limitation to political attack nowadays? The public policies of a President are perhaps fair game for political opponents, but the personal life of the President ought to be immune. This correspondent a couple of years ago—when the corruption issue became a subject of widespread interest—had occasion to write that Mr. Truman's tolerance for incompetents in office was a case of bad political judgment but that the President himself was a man of personal and financial integrity. That defense won this writer only the most severe castigation from bitter partisans who tried to besmirch Mr. Truman's record in private business.

The same thing happened during the Roosevelt administration, when there was an unjustified criticism of a member of the President's family serving in the war zone. The argument was made by this correspondent at the time that a President's personal and home life should not be dragged into politics.

The attack on Mr. Eisenhower because he is trying to get some recreation to help him keep his health is unwarranted and unfair, and if the political opponents of the President, particularly the CIO Political Action Committee, keep up that sort of sniping, it will boomerang. For the American people want a President to keep in good physical condition—and to take whatever hours of recreation he likes and to cut down on the number of those sixty-hour weeks. The President's good health isn't a partisan question.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

For your information, I present a letter from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt to Fred Florence who was, at that time, Oct. 7, 1950, an employe in the home of General George Marshall, and my comments on some points contained therein. Her letter was a reply to one inquiring why she never took steps to refute my disclosure of the fact that Franklin D. Roosevelt's grandfather, Warren Delano, the old windjammer from Fairhaven, Mass., had been an opium smuggler in Canton, China, and, in fact, had been implicated with the British in their so-called opium war waged for the purpose of thrusting the drug on the degraded Chinese common people in defiance of a law laid down by their emperor to break them of their addicition. Accordingly, he declared opium to be contraband.

Like our attempt at Prohibition, this reform produced a smuggling traffic very much like our own memorable rum row off Long Island. Warren Delano sailed on this opium row in his own ships. No mention ever was made of the fact until I chanced upon it and verified this interesting gap in the history of a family which, one way and another, has been the most interesting in our history.

Under her Frank as the widow of a president, on the letterhead of Val-Kill Cottage, Hyde Park, New York, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"Has it occurred to you that Mr. Pgler writes just in order to get people to answer him so he can keep on writing? Labor and the Roosevelts are his favorite subjects. If we began answering everything he says we would never be able to stop.

"A long time ago, my husband told me it was better to ignore attacks of this kind. There is always some tiny bit of truth which you have to explain and, by the time you have explained, everyone has forgotten what you showed up as untrue. My husband felt it was better not to enter into a discussion with people who were trying to bait you into giving them material to write on.

"To give you an example. In the years when my husband's grandfather, Mr. Warren Delano, was in China, practically all the nations of the world traded in opium. We none of us believed that Mr. Delano ever knowingly did so because all the records in the family speak of his being a tea-merchant and always, until my mother-in-law died, the Chinese family from whom Mr. Delano bought tea, kept sending tea every year to show the devotion to the old traditional friendship between the two families. There is no record that we can find that leads us to believe that my husband's grandfather ever traded in opium. However, it was prevalent at that time so you can see what an endless argument we would enter into with Mr. Pegler on that subject. Many of the other things he says are similar and therefore it seems utterly useless to refute anything he says.

"My husband thought of him as a slimy snake and slimy snakes slide to cover very quickly. He is highly insured against libel, so it makes no difference to him whether you bring a libel suit against him or not.

"The kind of things he says are very difficult to prove or disprove in many cases, so it is very much better to ignore him and it makes him so angry.

"Very sincerely yours, (signed) Eleanor Roosevelt."

I have cited documentary proof that Warren Delano did trade in opium in Canton. He joined the English when they were beleaguered by the emperor's troops in Canton and the basic cause of the siege was the defiant continuation of the opium traffic by foreign devils who would stoop to anything to make money. One contemporary comment by an American naval officer spoke of this as a "nefarious" traffic.

The horrible effects of opium on the addict in the advanced stages were as well known then as they are today. It is beside the issue to say that Delano was a tea-merchant as, in fact, he was, because that does not preclude another interest in opium. It is equally evasive to say that "practically all nations" traded in opium because the traffic was abhorred by many honorable men at the same time. Prostitution is world-wide but American ethics do not endorse it. And this nation, as a nation, did not traffic in opium.

"Black-birding," the illicit importation of African captives for slavery, also was a prosperous traffic of American and British shipping companies, usually under false registration and with professional impostors aboard bearing the nominal title of captain to take the responsibility in case of capture.

There is abundant material on this and the opium traffic in the libraries of Boston and New York where I made my studies and unless it has been filched to obliterate a shameful record, there is proof in the archives of the State Department. I found no evidence that Delano engaged in "black-birding."

Mrs. Roosevelt's selfserving statement that "there is no record that we can find" has no value at tions which they said were sugar solution and vitamins to build up my weight—and I'm convinced they were. I felt no effects from these injections whatsoever.

"They also put me under a sun lamp to give me a tan. I think they wanted me to look good at the trial."

Oatis added that he contracted tuberculosis and that he was given "40 pills a day until I got well."

His desire to look again at the record was evidenced in a number of instances during the news conference. He said it frankly was hard for him to decide if he were justly arrested as a violator of Czech law and added:

"In certain things it could be considered from their point of view that there were violations. They look at thinks differently.

"I'll put it this way—in their country, practicing journalism as we know it, it would come under suspicion of espionage under their laws."

Answer Is Declined

Other instances of his hesitation to answer all questions came in queries on whether he had transmitted any information to the U. S. Embassy in Prague or whether he ever worked, with or without pay, for the State Department or any other U. S. Government agency.

He replied at one time that he would not answer that "kind of question" and would not say anything about it. At another time he said:

"I want to take a look at the record of the trial. Until I see what the record is, I want to let it stand."

Asked if he planned to repudiate his "confession," Oatis took a similar stand:

"I want to see the record and also what came through here before I say anything about that. . . ."

Oatis' partial reticence brought this remark from one of his interviewers:

"I think a fuller answer might avoid some embarrassment."

The liberated newsman replied that he realized there is a desire "to understand the whole story right now." He added:

"But I can't go into it entirely and I don't understand it all myself just yet.

Situation Complicated

"It's a big question that needs a great amount of elucidation. The situation is very complicated. It's hard for people to comprehend it unless it's put at considerable length. I couldn't go into it on an occasion like this. For one thing it isn't organized in my own mind."

AP Head Supports Oatis

Frank J. Starzel, general manager of the Associated Press, who was with Oatis during the news conference, told the interviewing newsmen:

"I want to add that his reluctance to discuss certain questions cannot be fairly used as implying anything. I wish you to bear in mind that for more than two years he has been cut off from all normal contacts, serving a prison sentence in a foreign jail.

"He has had no opportunity, as you gentlemen have, to background himself about the case. Only 72 hours ago he learned of his release. Since then, he has traveled half-way around the world and has faced a barage of questions like this at several places.

"Under these circumstances, any man would have the gravest difficulty in collecting his thoughts and answering intelligently. I would hesitate to speak of details myself without consulting the record, although I have been closely concerned with this case for two years."

Oatis, turning to Starzel, said: "I want to thank you for a very fair statement and I want to back you up on it. I appreciate it very much."

At another point Starzel told the interviewers that "before and after Bill's conviction and as of now, I have complete and full confidence in his integrity as a newsman."

Would Authorize Dams

Trenton, N. J., May 19 (AP)—State Senator Alfred B. Littell (R.-Sussex) has introduced a bill in the New Jersey Legislature authorizing Pennsylvania and New Jersey to build dams in the Delaware river between Trenton and Port Jervis. The bill, introduced yesterday, provides that Pennsylvania pay the entire expense of the project unless New Jersey wants to use the water impounded by the dams. New Jersey is limited to 30 per cent of the cost.

AP Newsman Ordered Expelled From Iran

Tehran, Iran, May 19 (AP)—The government announced today it is expelling Marc Purdue, Associated Press correspondent, for sending abroad what it called "false and provocative news against the interests of Iran."

Hussein Fatemi, foreign minister, said Purdue has received notice to leave Iran within three days. He gave no details of the government's charge.

Purdue is the latest of a number of foreign correspondents to be expelled from Iran since the government took over the holdings of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. He has been in this country since last September.

Purdue's home is in Evansville, Ind. He has been a member of the AP's foreign staff since World War 2, and formerly worked for the press association as a correspondent in southeast Asia and as chief of bureau for India.

New Incubator Is Voted by Trustees

The Board of Trustees of Kingston Hospital last night approved the purchase of a new incubator with vapo-jet because of an increase in premature births here.

Science has proved that concentrated humidity is required in the care of newborn babies, the board reported, and it regards the incubator a modern necessity. It will cost about $800.

Frank B. Matthews, chairman of the building committee, reported "satisfactory progress" in the excavation of dirt and rock preparatory to the building of an addition on the Foxhall avenue side of the hospital.

The board was informed that the Women's Auxiliary had completed its first year as a volunteer group, conducting patients to and from the X-ray department for routine chest X-rays.

In recognition of this, and many other services performed by the auxiliary, the wives of trustees are arranging a social event.

107 Average Patients Daily

W. B. Sheldon, hospital administrator, reported an average daily census of 107 patients in April. The administrator, who is president of the Northeastern New York Hospital Association, was granted permission to attend the Middle Atlantic Hospital Assembly May 20 to 22. He will present a paper on activities of the association for the past year.

The meeting was conducted by Frank B. Matthews, president, and attending were George V. D. Hutton, Richard M. Kalish, George E. Yerry, Jr., Cornelius S. Treadwell, Walter Williams, Allan L. Hanstein, J. H. Tremper and Clarence S. Rowland.

15 Persons Hurt In Subway Crash

New York, May 19 (AP)—Fifteen persons were reported injured today when a southbound express train from the Bronx rolled back and struck a train behind it just north of the 145th street Independent subway station.

The Board of Transportation said none of the passengers was seriously hurt. They were taken to Mother Cabrini Hospital.

The Board of Transportation said the motorman of the first train, a "D" express train from the Bronx carrying 1,500 passengers, applied the emergency brake just before he reached the station at 7:57 a. m.

Train Rolled Back

The 10-car train rolled back and struck another "D" express train, also carrying 1,500 passengers.

The two trains then proceeded to 145th street and discharged their passengers on the lower level. Police routed many of them to the upper level to take southbound Washington Heights trains to their destinations.

The accident resulted in a 30-minute delay on the Bronx Express Line.

Bingo Handling Differs

Trenton, N. J., May 19 (AP)—The two Houses of the New Jersey Legislature today appeared to be far apart on how to handle bingo. While sentiment for passage of a bingo bill seemed strong in both Houses, there were glaring differences between them on suggested ways to accomplish such an objective. The Senate talked of adopting a resolution to allow New Jersey voters to legalize bingo through a constitutional amendment. The Assembly spoke only of passing a bill to put before the voters the coupled question of licensing raffles as well as bingo. Neither House seemed set on its bingo attitude, however.

In order to escape from the earth's gravitation, a rocket would have to attain a speed of 25,000 miles an hour.

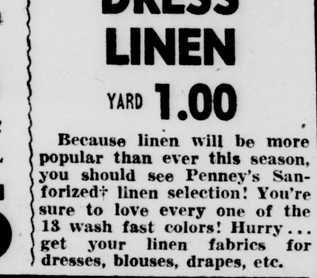

Business Continues Strong

Washington, May 19 (AP)—The Department of Commerce said today business continued strong and rising throughout the first quarter of this year. The Department reported that sales in most sectors of the economy increased and new orders to manufacturers kept pace with sales. But businessmen, by and large, cautiously held inventories just about in line with their sales, the official review of business conditions said.

Air Force Grounds Top Jet Ace; Will Return to Country

Seoul, May 19 (AP)—The air force today told Capt. Joseph McConnell Jr., the world's top jet ace, to fly no more combat missions over Korea. The California Sabre jet pilot downed his 14th, 15th and 16th MIGs yesterday.

The air war quieted today after six days of savage sky battles, but on the ground two Chinese battalions hit allied positions in central and eastern Korea.

South Korean bayonets and bullets hurled back both assaults and chopped down one-fourth of the Red attackers.

McConnell, of Apple Valley, Calif., shot down three Communist MIGs over North Korea Monday to win the title of No. 1 jet ace from Capt. Manuel Fernandez Jr., of Miami, Fla., who has 14 kills.

Fernandez was grounded Monday, and both aces will leave for home within a few days, the air force said. Fernandez has flown 125 missions and McConnell 106. Sabre jet pilots normally fly 100 combat missions before returning home. Both had asked for 25 more.

McConnell said he understood the air force point of view but hated to leave Korea "while I was going so good.

"It's the best kind of flying I've ever done. I could do this for several years yet."

Sabre jets prowling North Korean skies Tuesday spotted Communist MIGs in the distance, but Red pilots showed no desire to tangle with the deadly Sabres, the air force said.

In six days of aerial combat ending Monday the Reds lost 36 MIGs. Sixteen were damaged.

Tuesday's ground assaults followed several days of relative quiet along the 155-mile battle front.

'Town House' Dedicated

New York, May 19 (AP)—The new Town House of children's village a private agency which educates wayward or homeless boys at Dobbs Ferry, was dedicated yesterady by Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri and City Parks Commissioner Robert Moses. The remodeled five-story building is located at 38 West 106th street. It will serve as a transitional dormitory for children's village graduates while they seek employment in New York in trades they have learned at Dobbs Ferry.

Early U. S. settlers, noting that war followed the appearance of large broods of cicades in several instances, believed they were omens of war says the National Geographic Society.

OKINAWA REALLY GOES AMERICAN—Although it's out in the Pacific far away from home, the island of Okinawa makes Army wives feel as though they never left home, at least as far as grocery shopping is concerned. The women do their marketing in a big supermarket, operated by the Army, just like the ones back home.

Morocco Cork Booms

Rabat, French Morocco (AP)—Wartime shortages led Morocco to start exploiting the output of its million acres of cork oak trees. Now it's big business and last year $2,400,000 worth of cork was exported. Cork is the bark stripped from the trees. It is removed every year, and grows back in the next 12 months. The stripping tends to improve the quality of the cork and the tree may live for 150 years.

Russians Return GI's; Held for 179 Days

Berlin, May 19 (AP)—The Russians today returned two American soldiers who had been held in the east zone for 179 days.

Sergei Dengin, chief of the Soviet Control Commission for Berlin, notified the American army authorities that the men were to be released. At Dengin's invitation, Maj. Gen. Thomas S. Timberman, U. S. commandant, went to Karlshorst and handled the turnover.

The soldiers are Pvt. Raymond V. Michalowski, of Perth Amboy, N. J., and Pvt. Lieutenant Night, Los Angeles, Calif. Both men were members of the military police battalion here.

They were seized on the border of the Russian zone and the American sector Nov. 26, 1952.

The army said in a statement Dengin informed Gen. Timberman "the investigation into the circumstances of their apprehension has been completed and there is no further need for their detention."

The army added that both men were in good health, but that they would not be available to give an accounting of their experiences until U. S. authorities have completed an interrogation.

Formosa Gets Help

Taipeh, Formosa (AP)—Foreign aid supplies valued at more than $93,000,000 were imported into Formosa in 1952, the U. S. Mutual Security agency announced in Taipeh. The list was topped by more than $23,000,000 worth of fertilizers and $12,000,000 worth of petroleum, oil and lubricants.

and efficiency," with less money.

Tie Up Is Emphasized

By designating Saltonstall and Short as spokesmen after the White House session, the GOP congressional leaders emphasized the tie up between financial and defense problems.

Saltonstall said a total of about $98,600,000,000 will be available from this year's overall defense spending, including carryover funds for air power construction and maintenance.

He added that represents 59 per cent of all appropriations and carry over funds on the basis of the entire budget.

Short said the plan is to reduce defense spending in the fiscal year starting July 1 to about 43 billion dollars. He said that amounts to a cut of about $2,300,000,000 below the defense figure recommended last January by former President Truman.

Short said the present combat wing strength of the air force will be built up to about 93 wings in another six months—an increase, he said, of about 20 wings over the present strength.

Before the White House meeting, Sen. Taft of Ohio, the Senate Republican leader, had indicated to reporters that he expected a hurry-up program for the air force to be among the matters Eisenhower would discuss in his radio address.

Taft said "it is far better to have a 100-wing air force in six months than 143 wings in three years."

Wilson Faces Questioning

Several hours after the White House session, Secretary of Defense Wilson faces anticipated stiff senatorial questioning about arms fund reductions.

He was almost certain to be asked, also, about what Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R.-N. Y.) said was an administration decision to whack about 30 per cent off the closely related atomic energy program. Cole, chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, said the cut would not curtail weapons development, but would slow up work on atomic power for ships, planes and peacetime uses.

Even before Wilson's appearance at a public session of a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, several members voiced vigorous criticism of his action in lopping five billion dollars off the total in new air force money requested of Congress by former President Truman.

Wilson has said the reduced funds will give the air force 114 "substantially well-equipped wings" by June 30, 1954, with a goal of 120 wings by about mid-1955. Wilson called that an "interim" goal, but indicated there had been no decision to shoot for a higher one later.

The Truman administration had set a goal of 143 wings of which 126 would have been combat groups. There are now 103 wings, varying in size from 30 to 75 planes, but not all of them are at combat strength.

Aims at 143 Wings

These lowered sights didn't please Sen. Young (R-N. D.), who said in an interview: "I don't think we should slow down expenditures until we know we have the most powerful air force in the world."

Sen. Maybank (D-S. C.) said: "What's the use of having atomic bombs if you haven't got the strategic air force to deliver them? I'm going to offer an amendment to keep the goal at 143 wings".

Taft, long an advocate of a big air force, said he thinks it is much more important to get the existing air force fully equipped and in fighting trim than to discuss goals to be reached three years in the future.

"The new program doesn't mean any cut in immediate spending on the air force," Taft said. "The five billion dollars that Wilson has cut off wouldn't be spent for two or three years and we will have time to decide, after the new chiefs of staff look over the military situation, what to do about it."

Eisenhower has named all new members of the joint chiefs of staff, the nation's top military planning body, and Wilson has said they will restudy the whole defense picture.

Man Arrested

Queens, and Parole Officer Jack Weiss.

One of the men drove the Cadillac convertible Williamson had been driving back to New York. Williamson told authorities he had borrowed the car from a friend. It was equipped with a circular bar installed in the rear compartment over the spare tire, police revealed after they arrested Williamson here May 14.

Williamson was apprehended in a yard of a Clifton avenue house where he had been visiting last Thursday, after Parole Officers Oliver Tweedy and William Bulger of the Division of Parole, Poughkeepsie, had received information from the New York city parole office that Williamson was wanted and was supposed to be in Kingston.

Had Lived in Cabin

Police Chief Raymond Van Buren said Officers Earl Schoonmaker, Carl Janasiewicz, Francis Fagan and John Crispino went to the Clifton avenue address with the parole officers to pick up Williamson. Patrolman Crespino had been assigned to the hunt in civilian clothes the previous day after police were notified that Williamson was wanted.

Williamson said he had been living at a cabin in Port Ewen.

Following his arrest, Williamson was turned over to the Ulster County Sheriff's Department and was held in jail on a charge of violating parole, until he was turned over on Monday to the New York authorities.

testimony would give a "big boost" to the Foreign Aid program.

The allied commander in Europe yesterday told the House Foreign Affairs Committee, also considering the program, that the present buildup goals in Europe are "a very, very reasonable minimum."

"I think," he said, "any reduction whatever in those goals would be an unwise step."

Doesn't Expect Deep Cuts

Ridgway said Russian military strength was up and that, while there are no indications of "imminent hostilities," neither is there evidence the Soviets are moving toward peace. He said there was steady progress in strengthening western Europe, with air power remaining the weakest link.

Chairman Chiperfield (R.-Ill.) of the House committee told newsmen after hearing Ridgway in a second, secret session that he did not believe the committee intended making any deep cuts in military aid for Europe.

He said "if there are any considerable cuts, they might be in economic aid," although the committee has not yet begun any detailed consideration of possible reductions.

The administration has requested 2½ billion dollars for military aid and 300 millions in economic support to Europe.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

If right now we could turn the years back to 1912 we might be planning on a Dayline trip along the Hudson for the boats in those days started running May 17. Those were still the days of the famous Mary Powell between Rondout and New York from May 28, to Sept. 26. In those days, the Hudson River Day Line steamers were the Hendrick Hudson, Robert Fulton, Albany and Mary Powell. All excellent steamers with dining-rooms on the main deck so that the scenery could be enjoyed during meal time. That was a treat in itself with the ever courteous service of the Dayline staff.

The Day Line did not carry freight on any of their steamers, and no liquor was sold back in 1912. They gave you the service and elegance that one could find on a private yacht. Little did we think then that would come summers and the Mary Powell would be no more and the Dayline would no longer stop at Kingston Point. Remember when the magnificent Hendrick Hudson used to steam up to the Kingston Point pier. She had 6,000 horse power with a length of some 400 feet. They said back in 1912, that this steel steamer surpassed all other passenger carriers in the world in her licensed capacity of 5,500 passengers.

To those who remember, that back in 1912 the steamers of the Hudson River Day Line did not run Sundays. Although they were large they did not accommodate automobiles, horses, carriages or heavy freight of any description for their pasengers. For a little item like a baby carriage they charged 50 cents.

Dogs were not allowed unless in crates; then a charge of half fare was taken. These crates could be obtained on board steamer. But there was a coat check room on the main deck, where passengers could check their small valises, parcels, etc., for free. The restaurant on the main deck served a la carte meals from 7 a. m. and table d'hote breakfast until 9:30 a. m. Also table d'hote dinner between 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. But for those who liked to eat either all day or between meals, there was a special lunchroom near the main stairway where coffee, sandwiches, fruits and pastry could be had for a nominal sum. One really could feel like a millionaire on those trips for very little money.

The steamers were designed for day service only, with no staterooms, with no accommodations for passengers wishing to stay on board over night. Although on each steamer they had a few private parlors. Folks with large families of small children were lucky back in 1912 for children under five years of age, in charge of "a competent person," were carried free. Those five years of age and under 12 paid half fare, and those 12 years of age and over, full fare.

One of the services I remember and liked best was their writing room where they had free staticnery with the name of the line and also postal cards with the picture of the boat. We could write friends back home and mail it on the steamer, all we did was pay for the stamps. Sometimes all the little chairs and tables were taken and we had to wait. Well, as long as we are still on the Hudson river there is still a chance in the future for boats to stop here.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

If right now we could turn the years back to 1912 we might be planning on a Dayline trip along the Hudson for the boats in those days started running May 17. Those were still the days of the famous Mary Powell between Rondout and New York from May 28, to Sept. 26. In those days, the Hudson River Day Line steamers were the Hendrick Hudson, Robert Fulton, Albany and Mary Powell. All excellent steamers with dining-rooms on the main deck so that the scenery could be enjoyed during meal time. That was a treat in itself with the ever courteous service of the Dayline staff.

The Day Line did not carry freight on any of their steamers, and no liquor was sold back in 1912. They gave you the service and elegance that one could find on a private yacht. Little did we think then that would come summers and the Mary Powell would be no more and the Dayline would no longer stop at Kingston Point. Remember when the magnificent Hendrick Hudson used to steam up to the Kingston Point pier. She had 6,000 horse power with a length of some 400 feet. They said back in 1912, that this steel steamer surpassed all other passenger carriers in the world in her licensed capacity of 5,500 passengers.

To those who remember, that back in 1912 the steamers of the Hudson River Day Line did not run Sundays. Although they were large they did not accommodate automobiles, horses, carriages or heavy freight of any description for their pasengers. For a little item like a baby carriage they charged 50 cents.

Dogs were not allowed unless in crates; then a charge of half fare was taken. These crates could be obtained on board steamer. But there was a coat check room on the main deck, where passengers could check their small valises, parcels, etc., for free. The restaurant on the main deck served a la carte meals from 7 a. m. and table d'hote breakfast until 9:30 a. m. Also table d'hote dinner between 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. But for those who liked to eat either all day or between meals, there was a special lunchroom near the main stairway where coffee, sandwiches, fruits and pastry could be had for a nominal sum. One really could feel like a millionaire on those trips for very little money.

The steamers were designed for day service only, with no staterooms, with no accommodations for passengers wishing to stay on board over night. Although on each steamer they had a few private parlors. Folks with large families of small children were lucky back in 1912 for children under five years of age, in charge of "a competent person," were carried free. Those five years of age and under 12 paid half fare, and those 12 years of age and over, full fare.

One of the services I remember and liked best was their writing room where they had free stationery with the name of the line and also postal cards with the picture of the boat. We could write friends back home and mail it on the steamer, all we did was pay for the stamps. Sometimes all the little chairs and tables were taken and we had to wait. Well, as long as we are still on the Hudson river there is still a chance in the future for boats to stop here.

Ex-Bank Manager Pleads Guilty to Fraudulent Plan

New York, May 19 (AP)—Malcolm Diffendorfer, former manager of a Bronx branch of the Manufacturers Trust Company, pleaded guilty yesterday to grand larceny in connection with operations of a group said to have obtained approximately $100,000 from the bank in a fraudulent loan scheme.

Diffendorfer, 37, of Emerson, N. J., entered his plea—to one count of a 21-count indictment—before Bronx County Judge Samuel Joseph. Earlier a jury had been chosen to try another member of the alleged ring.

A jury of six men and six women was selected for the grand larceny trial of John Fahn, 55, of Mt. Kisco, described by the Bronx district attorney's office as owner of the Chateau Fahn in Mt. Kisco.

Three Others Plead Guilty

Three other men pleaded guilty in connection with the scheme, and a woman received a suspended sentence for perjury in connection with the grand jury investigation of the frauds.

Judge Joseph set June 23 for sentencing Diffendorfer, who could receive a maximum term of 10 years in prison. He formerly served as manager of the Crosby avenue branch of the bank.

Diffendorfer had been charged with grand larceny, forgery and conspiracy in the case in which, the district attorney's office said, some $100,000 in loans was obtained from the bank through the use of fictitious names.

The court to which Diffendorfer pleaded involved a loan of $1,999.37 obtained through the use of a forged name, authorities said.

Fahn's trail will continue today.

Waters Are Searched

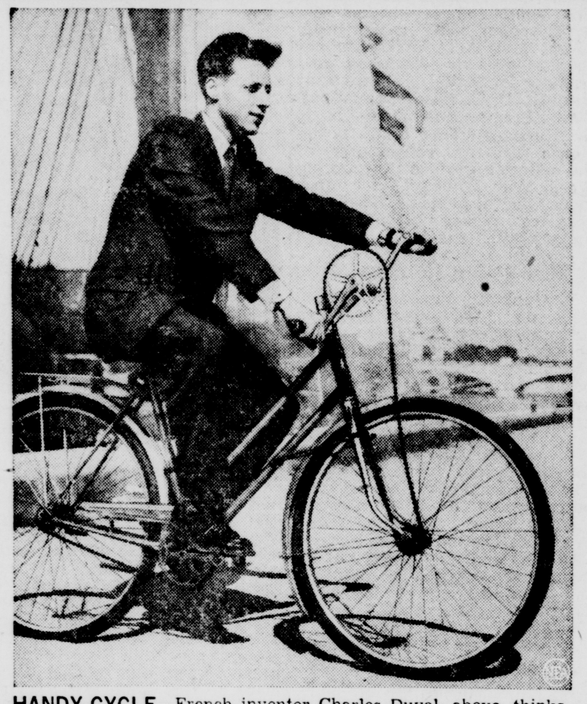

Westerly, R. I., May 19 (AP)—Search planes and surface craft today scanned the waters of Long Island Sound for a missing private plane which carried two prominent New Yorkers and their pilot. Aboard the plane were Bernard Peyton, Jr., 25, staff reporter for the New York Herald Tribune; his mother, Mrs. Bernard Peyton, wife of a New York industrialist, and the pilot, Arthur Muhs of Pennington, N. J.

Two Die in Crash

Guam, May 19 (AP)—A B-50 four-engined bomber crashed and burned in dense jungle today, killing two crewmen and injuring four. One died in the crash and the second later in a hospital.

NO MORE "POSTMAN'S BACK"—Walking erect on his mail route for the first time in 27 years, postman Ralph Robishaw of Ashtabula, Ohio, uses a golf caddy cart to haul what used to be a spine-bending load of mail. Said postman Robishaw, "I finally smartened up."

HANDY-CYCLE—French inventor Charles Duval, above, thinks he's solved a big problem for cyclists. He claims that leg-muscle strain can be eased by switching to hand pedals which he has mounted on his bike's handlebars. Or, if you prefer to make like a jet, you can use both hand and foot pedals to increase your speed. The gadget is one of many shown at the annual inventors' exhibit in Paris.

Czechs Get Airliner

Berlin, May 19 (AP)—The United States today gave Czechoslovakia back the airliner four freedom-seeking Czechs fled to the west in two months ago. Four Czech crewmen took off at mid-morning for Prague in the twin-engine DC-3. Negotiations for return of the plane had been underway for several weeks. U. S. High Commission officials said the return of the plane had no connection with the Czech government's release of Associated Press correspondent William N. Oatis Saturday.

New York, May 19 (AP)—Mrs. Charles W. Weis, Jr., Republican National Committeewoman from Rochester, says of the Eisenhower election: "We ladies were the balance of power. We did it." Addressing a luncheon of the Metropolitan Women's Republican Club yesterday, she estimated that more than 50 per cent of Eisenhower's vote came from women.

Last of Red Troops Move Out of Laos

Hanoi, Indochina, May 19 (AP)—The last Communist invaders of Laos were reported on their way out of the little mountain Indochinese kingdom today. French-Laotian forces were said to be in pursuit, but apparently with no great prospects of catching them.

French officials said the Communist-led Vietminh's crack 304th Division was moving east and southeast, presumably heading for the coast of Annam and territory long held by rebel chief Ho Chi Minh's forces.

This was the route over which the division, commanded by Red China-trained Gen. Hoang Minh Tao, knifed into Laos more than a month ago in support of three other rebel divisions driving into the kingdom from north Viet Nam.

Eden Leaves Clinic

London, May 19 (AP)—Britain's long-ailing foreign minister, Anthony Eden, left a London clinic today after a Boston specialist had been called in to see him, and went to Prime Minister Churchill's country residence for convalescence. Eden entered the London clinic April 8, suffering from chronic inflamation of the gall bladder. He was operated on April 12 for gallstones. He underwent a second operation April 29 to draw off fluids causing jaundice.

Psychiatrist to Testify

Bridgeport, Conn., May 19 (AP)—The defense is expected to call its last witness today, a psychiatrist, to testify that William Davis, 29, a negro, was temporarily insane when he killed blonde Senada "Penny" Evans, 30, in her Westport home Jan. 26. Dr. Michael Brodsky chief of neuro-psychiatry at St. Vincent's Hospital was on the stand Friday when Superior Court Judge Thomas E. Troland adjourned the trial until today. Defense counsel said they would not call any other witnesses, making it probable the case would go to a jury sometime during the day.

Destroyer Is Damaged

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Enenmy shore guns hit the destroyer Brush off Wonsan, Korea last Friday and nine American sailors were wounded, six of them seriously. Anouncing the incident yesterday, the navy said the wounded had been transferred to other ships and the Brush returned to patrol duty. All of the casualties were stationed near the forward five-inch gun, in an area struck by one of 20 heavy calibre shells fired by the Red shore battery. Capt. Harold G. Bowen Jr., of Coronado, Calif., had just run up his flag on the Brush as commander of Destroyer Division 22.

Beacon Woman Succumbs

Beacon, May 19 (AP)—Mrs. Joseph Loffay, 70, of 199 Main street, Beacon, died in Highland Hospital here at midnight last night of a fractured skull suffered when she was struck by an automobile. The accident occurred about 8 o'clock last night. Police said Mrs. Loffay stepped from behind a parked car into the path of an automobile driven by David Levine, 31, of Newburgh.

Central Put $140,000,000 Into 1952 Rail Progress

1. THE NEW IN NEW YORK CENTRAL includes the largest investment by any road in streamlined passenger cars. Plus 60,000 new freight cars. Plus 2¾ million new diesel horsepower. Plus vast right-of-way improvements. During 1952, Central's payment on progress totaled $140 MILLION!

2. WHERE DID THE MONEY COME FROM? Freight revenue yielded $581 million. Revenue from passengers added $124 million. Mail, express and other sources brought New York Central's 1952 revenue up to $807 million. It sounds like plenty to meet last year's price tag on progress. BUT . . .

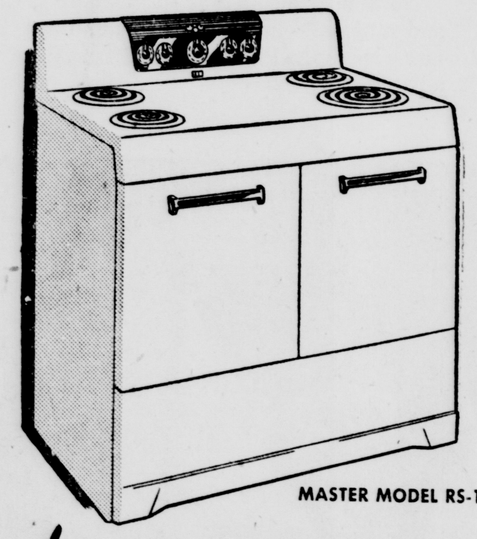

3. REVENUES AREN'T EARNINGS! Of $807 million revenue, $492.6 millions went for payroll and benefits. Fuel, supplies and materials took $189 million. Interests, rents, etc., $50.5 million. Depreciation, $38.7 million. Taxes, $36.5 million. That left $24.7 million for earnings—a net return of less than 2½%.

4. MORE EARNINGS NEEDED! That's why Central is studying money-losing trains that ought to be dropped. That's why Central is making a record drive for new, paying traffic. Your Railroad must earn more to go on investing in finer transportation for you. That is the whole CENTRAL IDEA!

flavor that chill can't kill

Ballantine brews for flavor! For lightness, yes! For dryness, of course! But first, last, and always, Ballantine brews for flavor. The fine, full flavor of the world's choicest grains and hops is brewed so deep in this beer that chill can't kill it.

Serve Ballantine Beer at whatever temperature you like best. Every glass just brims with flavor!

How cold do you like your beer?

Good and cold, if you're like most people. Beer is usually served at temperatures from 35° to 42° Fahrenheit.

Maritime Strike Ends

Paris, May 19 (AP)—France's costly 23-day old maritime strike ended today as ships officers at Le Havre voted to return to work at once. The decision was reached by a vote of 49 to 46. The officers fell in line with the decision of the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor and the Christian Workers Union which accepted Premier Rene Meyer's offer to arbitrate. The men have demanded higher pay, a 40-hour week and 100 days leave a year.

Won't Quit Post

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Dr. Robert L. Johnson, the State Department's new chief of overseas propaganda operations, says he has no intention of quitting his job now. Instead, he said last night, he has high hopes of building Voice of America radio broadcasts "into an effective weapon to win the cold war."

Financial and Commercial

New York, May 19 (AP)—The stock market sagged in a lackluster manner today in the midst of predictions of a stiffer Eisenhower administration tax policy.

Losses ran to around a point at the outside in representative areas. Gains were fractional.

Railroads held fairly steady. At one time they appeared to be trying for a rally, but this buoyancy faded rapidly.

The steels, motors, oils, utilities, aircrafts, chemicals, and a long list of miscellaneous stocks were lower. Coppers and radio-television issues held steady.

Lower stocks included Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Goodyear, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Commonwealth Edison, Dow Chemical, General Electric, American Can, Pennsylvania Railroad, Atlantic Coast Line, and Texas Co.

New York Central, yesterday's most active issue opened today on a block of 3,000 shares unchanged at 23½. Willys-Overland started on 6,500 shares up ⅛ at 15⅞.

The American Stock Exchange was mixed. Trading was light. Higher were Argus Camera, Creole Petroleum, Marion Power Shovel, Monogram Pictures, Superior Tool & Die, and New Jersey Zinc. Lower were Coastal Caribbean Oils, Le Tourneau, New Mexico & Arizona Land, Technicolor, Unexcelled Chemical, and Venezulean Petroleum.

New Demand Is Prepared

Washington, May 19 (AP)—The United States is about to fire another note to Moscow demanding the Russians settle at least part of their eight-year-old lend lease account. The new note will provide another test whether the Soviet regime under its new head, Georgi Malenkov, intends to cooperate with the American government in solving problems that strained U. S.-Russian relations. While Premier Stalin was alive, the Russians stalled on U. S. demands that they return some of the material provided them during World War 2 and pay for other items they retained. They did next to nothing except return some frigates and icebrakers.

May Offer Concession

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) was prepared today to offer a concession to opponents of his bill to permit a presidential freeze of wages, prices and home rents in a grave national emergency. The measure, a bobtailed extension of the Defense Production Act for one year beyond June 30, came before the Senate for a final vote. The only portion of the bill seriously contested is the 90-day standby freeze authority, which Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), Sen. Bennett (R-Utah) and some other Republicans have assailed as giving to the President power they say Congress should retain.

May Cite Witnesses

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Chairman Velde (R.-Ill) of the House Un-American Activities Committee said today it is considering the possibility of citing several witnesses for contempt of Congress because of their refusal to answer questions. He made the comment in urging William T. Parry, University of Buffalo professor, to reconsider his decision to decline to answer questions regarding his activities in 1937 and 1938. Parry was named several months ago by Robert G. Davis, Smith College professor, as a fellow member of a Red cell at Harvard in the late 30's.

Expects Stand on T-H Law

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Durkin says he expects the Eisenhower administration to take a stand "very shortly" on changes in the Taft-Hartley labor law. Durkin told a news conference yesterday that once this stand becomes known, he wants to testify about it to the Senate and House labor committees.

Shortly after the explosion, he clambered out to take part in a mock attack on the devastated area.

It was the next to last test for which thousands of troops from all parts of the U. S. had gathered at Camp Desert Rock to study atomic warfare, its potential damage, and the defenses against it.

Strike Hits Frenchmen

Paris, May 19 (AP)—The Paris Transport System — subway and busses — was crippled again today by a 24-hour strike. The three million Parisians who ride the system daily scrambled for all other available means of getting to work —taxis and a few hundred trucks and cars driven by government employes or soldiers. A few subway trains and a handful of busses were running. The independent and socialist unions had opposed the strike, which was called by the Communist-run General Labor Federation.

"Jehosophat! Will the kid be okay?"

• You might have witnessed this scene with your own eyes. And you, too, might have reacted in the same way – "Jehosophat! Will the kid be okay?"

But even though you were right at the spot, chances are that you had to turn to a newspaper to get the whole story.

Then, for the first time, you'd learn that the child's leg was caught in a water pipe . . . that firemen cut the pipe first, and then removed it after greasing the child's leg. You'd know that the kid did come out okay.

Being on the spot is not much better than seeing a photograph of the action, or a headline about it, or hearing a brief announcement.

All of these can whet your appetite for news, but they cannot satisfy your hunger for the whole story.

That's what the newspaper is for. Newspapers bring news—pictures and sufficient words.

This goes for advertising, too. The brief message that hangs in the air . . . or brief headlines here or there . . . may indeed have a momentary interest.

But the newspaper ad carries the brass-tacks quality, the urgency of the newspaper itself.

Like a news item, the ad can be examined and re-examined. Can be read any time. Anywhere. Can be clipped and carried in a pocketbook.

And just as the newspaper speaks the special language of the town it mirrors, the ads themselves have the same important local quality.

Add to all this the fact that the newspaper reaches just about everybody in town, not just fractions of audiences, and you know why the newspaper is the nation's most effective advertising medium.

No wonder advertisers—both retail and national—invest more money in newspapers than in any other form of advertising.

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

Maritime Strike Ends

Paris, May 19 (AP)—France's costly 23-day old maritime strike ended today as ships officers at Le Havre voted to return to work at once. The decision was reached by a vote of 49 to 46. The officers fell in line with the decision of the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor and the Christian Workers Union which accepted Premier Rene Meyer's offer to arbitrate. The men have demanded higher pay, a 40-hour week and 100 days leave a year.

Won't Quit Post

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Dr. Robert L. Johnson, the State Department's new chief of overseas propaganda operations, says he has no intention of quitting his job now. Instead, he said last night, he has high hopes of building Voice of America radio broadcasts "into an effective weapon to win the cold war."

Financial and Commercial

New York, May 19 (AP)—The stock market sagged in a lackluster manner today in the midst of predictions of a stiffer Eisenhower administration tax policy.

Losses ran to around a point at the outside in representative areas. Gains were fractional.

Railroads held fairly steady. At one time they appeared to be trying for a rally, but this buoyancy faded rapidly.

The steels, motors, oils, utilities, aircrafts, chemicals, and a long list of miscellaneous stocks were lower. Coppers and radio-television issues held steady.

Lower stocks included Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Goodyear, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Commonwealth Edison, Dow Chemical, General Electric, American Can, Pennsylvania Railroad, Atlantic Coast Line, and Texas Co.

New York Central, yesterday's most active issue opened today on a block of 3,000 shares unchanged at 23½. Willys-Overland started on 6,500 shares up ⅛ at 15¾.

The American Stock Exchange was mixed. Trading was light. Higher were Argus Camera, Creole Petroleum, Marion Power Shovel, Monogram Pictures, Superior Tool & Die, and New Jersey Zinc. Lower were Coastal Caribbean Oils, Le Tourneau, New Mexico & Arizona Land, Technicolor, Unexcelled Chemical, and Venezulean Petroleum.

New Demand Is Prepared

Washington, May 19 (AP)—The United States is about to fire another note to Moscow demanding the Russians settle at least part of their eight-year-old lend lease account. The new note will provide another test whether the Soviet regime under its new head, Georgi Malenkov, intends to cooperate with the American government in solving problems that strained U. S.-Russian relations. While Premier Stalin was alive, the Russians stalled on U. S. demands that they return some of the material provided them during World War 2 and pay for other items they retained. They did next to nothing except return some frigates and icebrakers.

May Offer Concession

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) was prepared today to offer a concession to opponents of his bill to permit a presidential freeze of wages, prices and home rents in a grave national emergency. The measure, a bobtailed extension of the Defense Production Act for one year beyond June 30, came before the Senate for a final vote. The only portion of the bill seriously contested is the 90-day standby freeze authority, which Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), Sen. Bennett (R-Utah) and some other Republicans have assailed as giving to the President power they say Congress should retain.

May Cite Witnesses

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Chairman Velde (R.-Ill) of the House Un-American Activities Committee said today it is considering the possibility of citing several witnesses for contempt of Congress because of their refusal to answer questions. He made the comment in urging William T. Parry, University of Buffalo professor, to reconsider his decision to decline to answer questions regarding his activities in 1937 and 1938. Parry was named several months ago by Robert G. Davis, Smith College professor, as a fellow member of a Red cell at Harvard in the late 30's.

Expects Stand on T-H Law

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Durkin says he expects the Eisenhower administration to take a stand "very shortly" on changes in the Taft-Hartley labor law. Durkin told a news conference yesterday that once this stand becomes known, he wants to testify about it to the Senate and House labor committees.

Kearney Participates In Atomic Maneuvers

Army Pfc. Gerard J. Kearney, son of Mrs. Thomas Kearney, 35 Orchard street, has been getting first hand combat training in atomic warfare at Camp Desert Rock, Nev., proving grounds of the atomic bomb.

Crouched in a trench approximately 9,800 yards from "ground zero," he recently witnessed the ninth nuclear blast in the spring series—this one by air drop.

Shortly after the explosion, he clambered out to take part in a mock attack on the devastated area.

It was the next to last test for which thousands of troops from all parts of the U. S. had gathered at Camp Desert Rock to study atomic warfare, its potential damage, and the defenses against it.

Kearney, who entered the Army in February 1952, is a mail clerk with the 278th Infantry Regimental Combat Team, Camy Drum, N. Y.

Strike Hits Frenchmen

Paris, May 19 (AP)—The Paris Transport System — subway and busses — was crippled again today by a 24-hour strike. The three million Parisians who ride the system daily scrambled for all other available means of getting to work —taxis and a few hundred trucks and cars driven by government employes or soldiers. A few subway trains and a handful of busses were running. The independent and socialist unions had opposed the strike, which was called by the Communist-run General Labor Federation.

"Jehosophat! Will the kid be okay?"

• You might have witnessed this scene with your own eyes. And you, too, might have reacted in the same way – "Jehosophat! Will the kid be okay?"

But even though you were right at the spot, chances are that you had to turn to a newspaper to get the whole story.

Then, for the first time, you'd learn that the child's leg was caught in a water pipe . . . that firemen cut the pipe first, and then removed it after greasing the child's leg. You'd know that the kid did come out okay.

Being on the spot is not much better than seeing a photograph of the action, or a headline about it, or hearing a brief announcement.

All of these can whet your appetite for news, but they cannot satisfy your hunger for the whole story.

That's what the newspaper is for. Newspapers bring news–pictures and sufficient words.

This goes for advertising, too. The brief message that hangs in the air . . . or brief headlines here or there . . . may indeed have a momentary interest.

But the newspaper ad carries the brass-tacks quality, the urgency of the newspaper itself.

Like a news item, the ad can be examined and re-examined. Can be read any time. Anywhere. Can be clipped and carried in a pocketbook.

And just as the newspaper speaks the special language of the town it mirrors, the ads themselves have the same important local quality.

Add to all this the fact that the newspaper reaches just about everybody in town, not just fractions of audiences, and you know why the newspaper is the nation's most effective advertising medium.

No wonder advertisers–both retail and national – invest more money in newspapers than in any other form of advertising.

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

Anti-Suicide Measure

Sacramento (AP)—California is trying to discourage people from jumping off the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge and other state spans. A new law makes it a misdemeanor to trespass upon the bridges so highway patrolmen can nab would-be suicides. JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Great Plays Show At Tournaments

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The standard of play in bridge tournaments has improved enormously in the last 20-odd years. In the old days only a ranking expert was able to execute a squeeze, and practically nobody knew what a dummy reversal was. In the recent Eastern States Regional Tournament, held in New York, several players combined a squeeze with a dummy reversal—and thought nothing of it.

The hand was usually bid to four spades by some such auction as the one shown here today. The most common opening lead was a low heart, and South won with the ace. Declarer's first step was to finesse the ten of spades, losing to East's king.

The defense varied a bit from this point, but it came to the same thing in the end. In two cases that I know of, East laid down the ace of clubs, dropping South's king. East then shifted back to hearts, forcing out dummy's king.

Declarer got to his hand by ruffing a club and led another trump, picking up West's queen. South next ruffed out dummy's last club, thus achieving the "dummy reversal."

Don't let this expression puzzle you, for it has a very simple meaning. Reversing the dummy is just a matter of establishing the dummy instead of your old hand. In this case, declarer ruffed out dummy's losers with his own trumps instead of trying to ruff out his own losers with dummy's trumps.

Having reversed the dummy, declarer then led his last trump to dummy's jack, following with dummy's four of trumps. (South had ruffed twice in his own hand, and therefore dummy wound up with one trump more than the South hand.) When dummy led the last trump, dummy still held two hearts and two diamonds. South kept the four diamonds, but West had only a headache.

West had to reduce to four cards. If he saved all four diamonds, dummy's low hearts would both be good. If West kept a high heart, however, he would have to discard a diamond, and then declarer would be able to win the rest of the tricks with his diamonds.

In short, West was squeezed and declarer had executed a combination of dummy reversal and squeeze.

Cerebral Palsy Fund Sets Door-to-Door Campaign on May 21

A door-to-door campaign for funds will be held in the city Thursday evening by the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Ulster county, which is seeking $20,000 for its work this year in helping to habilitate those afflicted with palsy.

Unlike many of the health ailments to which humanity is heir, cerebral palsy is not an infections disease but rather a crippling condition resulting from an injury to the part of the brain which governs muscular control in various parts of the body, and impairs or renders useless one or more muscles or groups of muscles.

Science and medicine have devised a by-passing method which substitutes other healthy nerve centers for the injured ones. With proper diagnosis, treatment and education, many of the Cerebral Palsied can be helped to become self-sustaining, productive citizens.

Every contribution will help towards this very worthwhile cause, and those in charge of the drive have asked that residents greet the volunteers with a donation.

A DELICATE QUESTION

A reader asks: "When staying in the house of friends for several weeks, is it proper to offer to pay them something? The friends I have in mind are not people of means and the guest, while not rich, is rather comfortably fixed."

This is really impossible to answer without any knowledge of the persons concerned. In general, one cannot offer to pay board and lodging to a friend who has invited one to stay as a guest. On the other hand, if the visit has stretched out to unexpected length, a very tactful person could perfectly well offer to pay a share of the housekeeping without offending her hostess.

Restaurant Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Post: The other night my fiancee and I were dining out. I ordered lobster and, as it had to be cooked to order, there was quite a wait. Shortly after our order was taken, the waiter brought a basket of rolls to the table. I took one and started to eat it. My fiancee thinks I was wrong and that I should have waited until the food was served before taking a roll. Of course, I disagreed with her, and we had a slight argument. I told her that I would write to you to prove that I was right.

Answer: You were right. In a restaurant, it is entirely permissible to eat a roll while waiting for the first course to be served.

Bride Is Quite Helpless

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married soon and would like to know if there is any way I can avoid having to kiss the wedding guests. I am not a "kissing" person, and furthermore, I do not like the idea of being smeared with other people's lipstick and thereby spoiling my own appearance. Will you please let me hear from you?

Answer: Unhappily, it has been the accepted custom all through the ages for a bride to be kissed by the guests at her wedding. I am afraid you have no choice but to grin and bear it as best you can.

Cerebral Palsy Fund Sets Door-to-Door Campaign on May 21

A door-to-door campaign for funds will be held in the city Thursday evening by the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Ulster county, which is seeking $20,000 for its work this year in helping to habilitate those afflicted with palsy.

Unlike many of the health ailments to which humanity is heir, cerebral palsy is not an infections disease but rather a crippling condition resulting from an injury to the part of the brain which governs muscular control in various parts of the body, and impairs or renders useless one or more muscles or groups of muscles.

Science and medicine have devised a by-passing method which substitutes other healthy nerve centers for the injured ones. With proper diagnosis, treatment and education, many of the Cerebral Palsied can be helped to become self-sustaining, productive citizens.

Every contribution will help towards this very worthwhile cause, and those in charge of the drive have asked that residents greet the volunteers with a donation.

Dear Mrs. Post: The other night my fiancee and I were dining out. I ordered lobster and, as it had to be cooked to order, there was quite a wait. Shortly after our order was taken, the waiter brought a basket of rolls to the table. I took one and started to eat it. My fiancee thinks I was wrong and that I should have waited until the food was served before taking a roll. Of course, I disagreed with her, and we had a slight argument. I told her that I would write to you to prove that I was right.

Answer: You were right. In a restaurant, it is entirely permissible to eat a roll while waiting for the first course to be served.

Bride Is Quite Helpless

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married soon and would like to know if there is any way I can avoid having to kiss the wedding guests. I am not a "kissing" person, and furthermore, I do not like the idea of being smeared with other people's lipstick and thereby spoiling my own appearance. Will you please let me hear from you?

Answer: Unhappily, it has been the accepted custom all through the ages for a bride to be kissed by the guests at her wedding. I am afraid you have no choice but to grin and bear it as best you can.

Eligible Bachelor Wants Intelligent Conversationalist

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Press Women's Editor

Wanted: Young woman who can conduct intelligent conversation, to meet one of America's most eligible bachelors. Object matrimony.

Wally Cox, the mild-mannered phenomenon who has skyrocketed to fame and fortune as TV's "Mr. Peepers," is 27, quiet, appealing, rich, successful—and lonely.

Eager to Marry

He is eager to get married, loves children, wants a home, is prepared to support a wife in a manner to which few modern girls are accustomed—but he can't find the girl.

Each week night he dates a different girl, and on Sundays he tries to meet several new ones in a group. Result—disappointment.

But does Wally give up? Gracious, no. With each wrong guess his search grows more determined. It isn't that he doesn't know any girls—he is acquainted with hundreds of them. But he remarks wistfully:

"Somewhere there must be a girl who thinks, and expresses her thoughts. It's really not hard to think. Most people just don't.

Specifications for Wife

Here are Wally's specifications for a wife:

1—She has to be able to talk his language. This is the biggest hurdle, requiring mental effort, human sympathy and a knowledge of philosophy and psychology.

2—She must be calm. He doesn't like flibbertigibbets. When he specifies conversation he means quiet conversation.

3—She must be healthy. That means mentally too, he hastens to add. No psychopathic cases need apply.

4—She must want to have children. Wally isn't sure how he's going to find out about this since he never has summoned up courage to ask a girl her feelings on this subject.

Inner Character Counts

5—Her looks don't matter, only her expression, which, of course, reflects her inner character. If she has the right expression she'll look beautiful to Wally even with a mole on the end of her nose.

6—Social position doesn't matter. She may live in a tenement or a mansion. Wally doesn't care.

7—She must have a sense of humor—but not the obvious sort. Wally likes 'em subtle.

8—She must be unencumbered by family ties. Wally has no use for the parents of any of the girls he has met. He doesn't want an orphan because he feels orphans usually are psychologically maladjusted.

9—She must be able to converse about human relations. You figure that one out. It's what he said.

10—She must be somebody he can "get along with." He does not feel that this means he must be in love with her. Love, Wally believes, too often is confused with infatuation. In fact, he's not sure what love is, but he thinks it grows after long association.

Always Laugh at Him

Wally quit his original occupation of silversmith to go into theatrical work mainly so he could meet more girls. He had noticed that most of his theatrical friends had lot of girls and were much admired. His instant success has been as much a surprise to him as to his friends, though he admits people always have laughed at him even when he wasn't trying to be funny.

He is highly methodical in this search for wife material. He doesn't waste time on poor prospects. He says:

"I can tell in five minutes conversation if it's worth pursuing the subject. So far it never has been."

Wally is still hopeful, however, he feels that there are millions of girls he has not yet met.

Rockefellers, Guests Have Narrow Escape

Athens, Greece, May 19 (AP)—Nelson Rockefeller, his wife and a party of friends had a close call in an explosion aboard a yacht in the Aegean Sea May 5, it was disclosed today. One woman guest was burned on the legs.

A young sailor who put out the fire after the blast in the engine room, was credited with preventing what might have been a tragedy.

The explosion believed caused by gasoline fumes, occurred while the yacht, which the Rockefellers chartered in Pireaus, was cruising off the Aegean Isle of Ios.

Mrs. Lawrence Roberts, wife of an official of the American Academy in Rome, received painful leg burns, the reports said. She was taken to a hospital in Athens, and later flown to Rome.

Also aboard the yacht were Mrs. Roberts' husband, and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Harrison.

The Mature Parent

Girls Can Be Free of Misery Waiting for Boys to Decide

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Pete's the secretary of Kathy's high school class. He's very attractive. The problem is, he plays the field. Though he's dated Kathy for a dozen movies and parties, he's taken other girls to them just as often. So Kathy's been kept pretty anxious, wondering what he intends to do about the forthcoming Junior Prom.

The other evening after dinner, her mother called her back to the kitchen. Pointing to the roasting pan in the sink, she asked, "Do you call that clean? I wish you'd snap out of this daze you're in. Lately, you only half-register what you're doing."

And Kathy began to cry.

"What worries?" asked her parent, ignoring the tears.

"Pete," said Kathy sniffling. "He hasn't asked me to the Prom yet. It's so awful being a girl. You never can do anything. You just have to stand around waiting for boys to decide what they wan to do."

"Nonsense," retorted her parent. "You've had other bids to this dance."

"Who cares?" was Kathy's bitter answer. "I want to go to it with Pete."

"I bet you don't," her mother told her. "I don't think you want to go with Pete nearly so much as you believe you do. I think you're angry with him. I expect you even hate Pete a little for keeping you so worried and upset."

Kathy put down the scouring powder. "Hate Pete?" she echoed, aghast. "Why, how can you say such a thing, mummy? I'm crazy about him. I . . . "

"When we like someone," said her inexorable parent, "our feeling does not make us miserable and bad-tempered. It makes us quiet and happy. No, I think you'd better test your feeling for hate of Pete, Kathy. You've no right to be irritable with your family because you're afraid to know how angry you are at somebody else."

That night, Kathy sang so joyously in the bathroom that her mother knocked on the door.

Kathy flung the door open, her face radiant. "I'm going to the Prom with Boyd Taylor!" she announced. "Oh, mummy darling, I feel so free! Of course I'm furious with Pete. You're right, I don't think I like him any more! How did you know?"

Her mother embraced the child who had believed girls can do nothing about boys who can't make up their minds. "Oh, I know how people act when they feel hate they're afraid to recognize," she said.

No matter what car you now own

you will want to drive the New Packard

WHEREVER you go these days, people ask one another: "Have you driven the new Packard?"

Maybe you are wondering why so many people ask that question.

We'll try to tell you—

Several months ago Packard announced its return to the fine-car field with a beautiful new series of fine automobiles . . . and for the first time in years America had a new choice in fine cars!

And as the welcome idea of choice once again in the fine-car field gathered momentum, Packard showrooms filled quickly. No matter what car they had been driving up to then, men and women reared in the tradition of buying only the best were the first to call upon or summon Packard dealers.

For Packard was Packard . . . with a reputation for quality so deeply entrenched that it is one of the major achievements of the first fifty years of automotive history in America.

A Worthwhile Discovery

Had Packard really done it again . . . given America a new choice in fine cars? How fine was the new Packard? How did it act out on the road where the going is tough and a car today must be tougher?

Those who came to look were satisfied—and remained to ride.

That's when people started saying, with the gleam of discovery in their eyes, "Have you driven the new Packard?"

Have you?

Your Packard dealer will turn the keys over to you anytime you can make it—or provide you with an insured car and an expert driver.

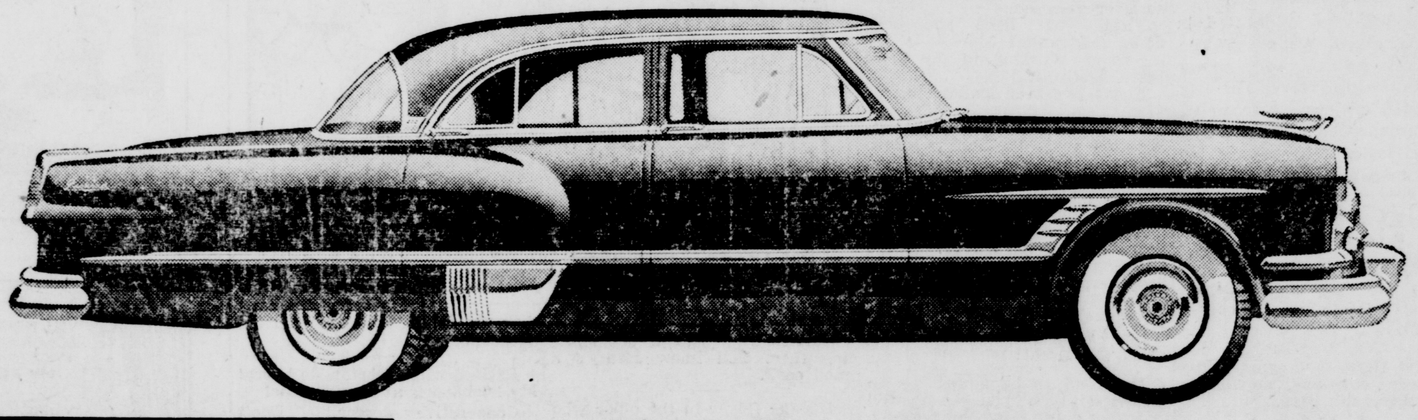

Driving the new Packard is a fine-car motoring experience not many people who appreciate the right of choice will care to miss.

NEW! The Packard CLIPPER—another great Packard line. If you plan to buy a car in the medium-price class, be sure to see and drive the new Packard CLIPPER and compare it with other medium-priced cars.

Rockefellers, Guests Have Narrow Escape

Athens, Greece, May 19 (AP)—Nelson Rockefeller, his wife and a party of friends had a close call in an explosion aboard a yacht in the Aegean Sea May 5, it was disclosed today. One woman guest was burned on the legs.

A young sailor who put out the fire after the blast in the engine room, was credited with preventing what might have been a tragedy.

The explosion believed caused by gasoline fumes, occurred while the yacht, which the Rockefellers chartered in Pireaus, was cruising off the Aegean Isle of Ios.

Mrs. Lawrence Roberts, wife of an official of the American Academy in Rome, received painful leg burns, the reports said. She was taken to a hospital in Athens, and later flown to Rome.

Also aboard the yacht were Mrs. Roberts' husband, and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Harrison.

When, in 1905, the Cullinan diamond was found in a South African mine it was the largest diamond ever found.

The Mature Parent

Girls Can Be Free of Misery Waiting for Boys to Decide

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Pete's the secretary of Kathy's high school class. He's very attractive. The problem is, he plays the field. Though he's dated Kathy for a dozen movies and parties, he's taken other girls to them just as often. So Kathy's been kept pretty anxious, wondering what he intends to do about the forthcoming Junior Prom.

The other evening after dinner, her mother called her back to the kitchen. Pointing to the roasting pan in the sink, she asked, "Do you call that clean? I wish you'd snap out of this daze you're in. Lately, you only half-register what you're doing."

Kathy put her hands over her ears. "Oh, stop, mother!" She begged intensely. "Don't I ever do anything right in this house? If you knew what worries I have . . . "

And Kathy began to cry.

"What worries?" asked her parent, ignoring the tears.

"Pete," said Kathy sniffling. "He hasn't asked me to the Prom yet. It's so awful being a girl. You never can do anything. You just have to stand around waiting for boys to decide what they wan to do."

"Nonsense," retorted her parent. "You've had other bids to this dance."

"Who cares?" was Kathy's bitter answer. "I want to go to it with Pete."

"I bet you don't," her mother told her. "I don't think you want to go with Pete nearly so much as you believe you do. I think you're angry with him. I expect you even hate Pete a little for keeping you so worried and upset."

Kathy put down the scouring powder. "Hate Pete?" she echoed, aghast. "Why, how can you say such a thing, mummy? I'm crazy about him. I . . . "

"When we like someone," said her inexorable parent, "our feeling does not make us miserable and bad-tempered. It makes us quiet and happy. No, I think you'd better test your feeling for hate of Pete, Kathy. You've no right to be irritable with your family because you're afraid to know how angry you are at somebody else."

That night, Kathy sang so joyously in the bathroom that her mother knocked on the door.

Kathy flung the door open, her face radiant. "I'm going to the Prom with Boyd Taylor!" she announced. "Oh, mummy darling, I feel so free! Of course I'm furious with Pete. You're right, I don't think I like him any more! How did you know?"

Her mother embraced the child who had believed girls can do nothing about boys who can't make up their minds. "Oh, I know how people act when they feel hate they're afraid to recognize," she said.

No matter what car you now own

you will want to drive the New Packard

WHEREVER you go these days, people ask one another: "Have you driven the new Packard?"

Maybe you are wondering why so many people ask that question.

We'll try to tell you—

Several months ago Packard announced its return to the fine-car field with a beautiful new series of fine automobiles . . . and for the first time in years America had a new choice in fine cars!

And as the welcome idea of choice once again in the fine-car field gathered momentum, Packard showrooms filled quickly. No matter what car they had been driving up to then, men and women reared in the tradition of buying only the best were the first to call upon or summon Packard dealers.

For Packard was Packard . . . with a reputation for quality so deeply entrenched that it is one of the major achievements of the first fifty years of automotive history in America.

A Worthwhile Discovery

Had Packard really done it again . . . given America a new choice in fine cars? How fine was the new Packard? How did it act out on the road where the going is tough and a car today must be tougher?

Those who came to look were satisfied—and remained to ride.

That's when people started saying, with the gleam of discovery in their eyes, "Have you driven the new Packard?"

Have you?

Your Packard dealer will turn the keys over to you anytime you can make it—or provide you with an insured car and an expert driver.

Driving the new Packard is a fine-car motoring experience not many people who appreciate the right of choice will care to miss.

NEW! The Packard CLIPPER—another great Packard line. If you plan to buy a car in the medium-price class, be sure to see and drive the new Packard CLIPPER and compare it with other medium-priced cars.

Now—Ask The Man Who Owns One

Poughkeepsie High wrested the DUSO League baseball lead from Kingston yesterday by shading the Maroons, 7 to 6, in a loosely played contest at municipal stadium. Right hander Ralph Nieri staggered through on a five-hitter.

Port Beats NFA

In other games, Port Jervis' brilliant right hander, John Barbarino, bested Newburgh Academy's Lefty Bob Early, 5 and 2, while Beacon, with Tony Komisar in relief, defeated Middletown, 5 to 3.

The Blues a 5-5 tie in the top of the seventh when southpaw George Telepas succumbed to the Poughkeepsie jinx for the second time this season.

And it happened primarily because Gorgeous George was unable to handle a player he had blown over with consummate ease in three other trips to the plate bull-like catcher Dom Pacio, the football fullback.

Pacio a victim of two strikeouts and a popup, belted a solid triple into the right centerfield alley to score Leo Ewell, who opeped the inning with a single,

Coach Burke lifted Telepas in favor of Jerry Bechtold after the smash. Bechtold fanned Carroll but Bob Dahowski, the basketball great, dumped a squeeze bunt that scored Pacio with the winning run. There was some doubt that Pacio ever touched the plate and Coach Bill Burke protested the play but it remained official.

The Maroons threw up a scare in the last of the seventh, scoring a tally without a hit on a fielder's choice and a couple of errors but Bob Shelightner tapped to the pitcher's box for the third out. The Kingston loss was then a fait accompli.

It Might Have Been

Coach Burke and the Maroons would rather forget the third inning when, after spotting Poughkeepsie three runs, the locals bounced back to tie the count at 3-3.

But in that frame were inserted three doubles, an error a hit batsman, a sacrifice—a small return for the investment. However, one of the boys got picked off second base and that broke the back of a potential big inning.

Two of the players collected a pair of safeties. Johnny Armstrong continued his sharp belting for the Maroons with a single and double, both well stroked smashes into left field. Leo Elwell pounded a single and double for the winners, the latter a two-run shot.

In the past five years, the amount of feed needed to produce a three-pound broiler has been reduced from 10½ pounds to about 9 pounds.

Illinois Commission Rejects Walcott Protest On the 'Short Count'

Chicago, May 19 (AP)—Unless Felix Bocchicchio goes to court to prove somehow that pictures lie, the Rocky Marciano-Jersey Joe Walcott episode is closed.

Bocchicchio, Walcott's manager, was among those present yesterday for a special showing of three-dimension films of Friday night's heavyweight championship bout.

The moving pictures showed definitely that Walcott received a full count of ten after his first-round decking by Champion Marciano.

Bocchicchio and Walcott had claimed Referee Frank Sikora dished out a fast count. The waspish Bocchicchio maintained, even after the evidence of the films was submitted, that he still thought the count was fast.

His lawyer, Angelo Malandra, declared the pictures were "edited and did not depict the actual action."

However, Chairman Livingston Osborne and members Lou Radzienda and Johnny Behr of the Illinois Athletic Commission were not swayed by what Radzienda called "this kind of nonsense."

At an IAC meeting following the movies, the commission disallowed all five points of Bocchicchio's protest that the result be set aside.

The commission said the KO at 2:25 of the first round "stands as official."

Furthermore, Osborne said he was disappointed in Jersey Joe's showing and added firmly: "He should retire."

"I think Walcott was through when he went into the ring," he said.

Veteran Star Without Opposition for Post

Mrs. Charlotte Lapine, one of the city's all-time women bowling greats, was elected president of the Kingston Woman's Bowling Association at last night's annual meeting of the tenpin organization.

Mrs. Lapine succeeds Mrs. Elizabeth Egan.

For the first time in the history of the KWBA, the recommended slate was approved without opposition.

Mrs. Helene Mollenhauer of Tillson was re-elected secretary and Nell Glennon, of New Paltz, was named vice-president.

The complete slate for the 1953-54 season follows:

President—Mrs. Charlotte Lapine.

Vice-President—Nell Glennon.

Secretary—Mrs. Helene Mollenhauer.

Treasurer—Mrs. Gladys Schilling.

Sergeant-at-Arms—Lillian Buswell.

Executive Directors—Mrs. Tess Moss, Mrs. Dorothea Flemings, Mrs. Dolores Freese.

Emma Pratt, chairman of the Nominating Committee presented the slate of recommended nominees by the KWBA and Mrs Chrissie Wilson, a former president, immediately moved that the entire slate be accepted and the secretary was instructed to cast one ballot.

In that short space of time, KWBA history had been made.

Name Life Member

Mrs. Cora Emerick, one of the founders of the organized bowling movement in Kingston, was elevated to life membership.

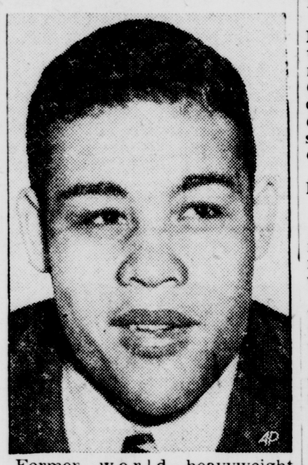

The convention voted to stage the annual association tournament the last weekend in November or the first weekend in December.

Also approved were a proposal that the KWBA sponsor three non-member (Syracuse) teams in the 1954 WIBC nationals at Syracuse.

The date of the KWBA banquet was changed from June 6 to June 13 and will be held at the old Penguin on Route 9-W in Port Ewen.

A committee will be appointed to raise money to send a block of Kingston teams to the Syracuse nationals in 1954.

Joe Louis Will Visit Play Golf

Former world heavyweight champion Joe Louis is scheduled to arrive at Richards Farms training camp on the River road, Esopus late tonight for a three-day stay.

While at Richards Farms, the ex-Brown Bomber will inspect the training facilities which are expected to be used by such famous present day boxers as Ezzard Charles, Johnny Bratton, Jimmy Carter, Clarence Henry and others.

Louis expressed a desire to play golf while in the area and will tee off for his first round of Ulster county golf early Wednesday morning at Twaalfskill Golf Club.

Persley Upsets Percy Bassett

His interim featherweight crown has failed to overawe his opponents in the states.

The 23-year-old Philadelphian won world recognition as the No. 1 126-pounder until champion Sandy Saddler gets out of the Army when he stopped France's Ray Famechon in Paris.

Since then Percy has had two fights in the United States and lost them both. Davey Gallardo, a featherweight, beat him in Washington a month ago. Last night, Art Persley, a rising new Orleans lightweight now living in New York, whipped him soundly in a telecast 10-rounder at the Eastern Parkway Arena.

It was the first time in a career of 65 pro fights that Percy had lost two in a row.

Losing to Persley is no crime, however. The thin-legged, broad-shouldered Negro hasn't lost in nearly two years and now has a winning streak of 14. He's headed for ranking among the lightweight elite. His record is 39-2-1. Bassett's record now is 58-7.

Blues Halt KHS, 8 to 4

Poughkeepsie High scored a surprise 8-4 victory over Kingston High in DUSO League golf Monday at the College Hill links in the Bridge City.

Bob Botsford, the Blues No. 1 swinger, won a 2-1 decision over the Maroon's Harold Van Aken, despite a 38-38-76 tour by the locatite. Botsford posted an outgoing 40 and matched par figures on the back nine.

Ronnie Marks gave Kingston its only victory, firing 41-38-70 to blank Frank Digilio, the No. 2 Poughkeepsie ace, 3-0.

Mapping Final Plans for Twi League Opener

City Baseball League opens its annual stand in Kingston this evening with the 1953 inaugural between Jones Dairy and Wiltwyck Motors at 6:30 p. m.

The league launches a new campaign with a five team setup that includes Jones Dairy, Wiltwyck Motors, Kingston Indians, Dobler's and Colonial Merchants.

Pitching selections for today's opener were not announced.

Tommy Fisher has been the traditional Jones Dairy opening day flinger for several years but, according to word last night, the big fireballer will not join the league this season.

Wiltwyck Motors, a Highland-Poughkeepsie combine, is expected to start Joe Digustin, the bellwether in their drive for the 1952 pennant.

Revise Schedule

League managers last night voted to revise the schedule to a pair of two-round halves with the respective winners meeting in a five-game series for the league title.

All postponed games of the first half will be played before the start of the second half in order of postponement. The first half is scheduled to end on July 5.

A few player changes were announced last night, with Kingston Indians adding Bill "Link" Crosby and Ronnie Brandt, Colonial Merchants picked up Zeke Klosterman.

Neff Retires

Jones Dairy revealed that two of its stellar veterans—Charlie Neff and Tommy Fisher—have decided to bypass the City League for this year.

Joe Hoffman, the oldest City League manager in point of service, has been signed as manager of the Dobler entry. He succeeds George Magley. For the past several years the former catching great has piloted the Chez Emile franchise.

Schedule for week:

Tuesday—Wiltwyck Motors vs. Jones Dairy.

Wednesday — Colonial Merchants vs. Dobler's.

Thursday — Jones Dairy vs. Kingston Indians.

Bocchicchio and Walcott had claimed Referee Frank Sikora dished out a fast count. The waspish Bocchicchio maintained, even after the evidence of the films was submitted, that he still thought the count was fast.

His lawyer, Angelo Malandra, declared the pictures were "edited and did not depict the actual action."

However, Chairman Livingston Osborne and members Lou Radzienda and Johnny Behr of the Illinois Athletic Commission were not swayed by what Radzienda called "this kind of nonsense."

At an IAC meeting following the movies, the commission disallowed all five points of Bocchicchio's protest that the result be set aside.

The commission said the KO at 2:25 of the first round "stands as official."

Furthermore, Osborne said he was disappointed in Jersey Joe's showing and added firmly: "He should retire."

"I think Walcott was through when he went into the ring," he said.

Veteran Star Without Opposition for Post

Mrs. Charlotte Lapine, one of the city's all-time women bowling greats, was elected president of the Kingston Woman's Bowling Association at last night's annual meeting of the tenpin organization.

Mrs. Lapine succeeds Mrs. Elizabeth Egan.

For the first time in the history of the KWBA, the recommended slate was approved without opposition.

Mrs. Helene Mollenhauer of Tillson was re-elected secretary and Nell Glennon, of New Paltz, was named vice-president.

The complete slate for the 1953-54 season follows:

President—Mrs. Charlotte Lapine.

Vice-President—Nell Glennon.

Secretary—Mrs. Helene Mollenhauer.

Treasurer—Mrs. Gladys Schilling.

Sergeant-at-Arms—Lillian Buswell.

Executive Directors—Mrs. Tess Moss, Mrs. Dorothea Flemings, Mrs. Dolores Freese.

Emma Pratt, chairman of the Nominating Committee presented the slate of recommended nominees by the KWBA and Mrs Chrissie Wilson, a former president, immediately moved that the entire slate be accepted and the secretary was instructed to cast one ballot.

In that short space of time, KWBA history had been made.

Name Life Member

Mrs. Cora Emerick, one of the founders of the organized bowling movement in Kingston, was elevated to life membership.

The convention voted to stage the annual association tournament the last weekend in November or the first weekend in December.

Also approved were a proposal that the KWBA sponsor three nonmember (Syracuse) teams in the 1954 WIBC nationals at Syracuse.

The date of the KWBA banquet was changed from June 6 to June 13 and will be held at the old Penguin on Route 9-W in Port Ewen.

A committee will be appointed to raise money to send a block of Kingston teams to the Syracuse nationals in 1954.

Joe Louis Will Visit Play Golf

Former world heavyweight champion Joe Louis is scheduled to arrive at Richards Farms training camp on the River road, Esopus late tonight for a three-day stay.

While at Richards Farms, the ex-Brown Bomber will inspect the training facilities which are expected to be used by such famous present day boxers as Ezzard Charles, Johnny Bratton, Jimmy Carter, Clarence Henry and others.

Louis expressed a desire to play golf while in the area and will tee off for his first round of Ulster county golf early Wednesday morning at Twaalfskill Golf Club.

Persley Upsets Percy Bassett

Brooklyn, May 19 (AP)—Percy Bassett is discovering that American fighters are more impressed with a sock on a jaw than a synthetic title.

His interim featherweight crown has failed to overawe his opponents in the states.

The 23-year-old Philadelphian won world recognition as the No. 1 126-pounder until champion Sandy Saddler gets out of the Army when he stopped France's Ray Famechon in Paris.

Since then Percy has had two fights in the United States and lost them both. Davey Gallardo, a featherweight, beat him in Washington a month ago. Last night, Art Persley, a rising new Orleans lightweight now living in New York, whipped him soundly in a telecast 10-rounder at the Eastern Parkway Arena.

It was the first time in a career of 65 pro fights that Percy had lost two in a row.

Losing to Persley is no crime, however. The thin-legged, broad-shouldered Negro hasn't lost in nearly two years and now has a winning streak of 14. He's headed for ranking among the lightweight elite. His record is 39-2-1. Bassett's record now is 58-7.

Persley, who outweighed his opponent 135½ to 132, outboxed and outpunched the aggressive Bassett in every round except the second, fourth and eighth. The winner slowed down in the eighth because of a cut over his right eye.

Mapping Final Plans for Twi League Opener

City Baseball League officials and managers met at city hall last night to make final arrangements for the evening's opener at the Athletic Field. Those present, clockwise: Secretary John Misasi, Charlie Manfro, vice-president; Charles Havlin, Kingston Indians; Joe Hoffman, who will manage Dobler's; William "Pucker" Davis, hardy perennial; and president Edwin Murphy. (Freeman photo)

The league launches a new campaign with a five team setup that includes Jones Dairy, Wiltwyck Motors, Kingston Indians, Dobler's and Colonial Merchants.

Pitching selections for today's opener were not announced.

Tommy Fisher has been the traditional Jones Dairy opening day flinger for several years but, according to word last night, the big fireballer will not join the league this season.

Wiltwyck Motors, a Highland-Poughkeepsie combine, is expected to start Joe Digestin, the bellwether in their drive for the 1952 pennant.

Revise Schedule

League managers last night voted to revise the schedule to a pair of two-round halves with the respective winners meeting in a five-game series for the league title.

All postponed games of the first half will be played before the start of the second half in the order of postponement. The first half is scheduled to end on July 5.

A few player changes were announced last night, with Kingston Indians adding Bill "Link" Crosby and Ronnie Brandt, Colonial Merchants picked up Zeke Klosterman.

Neff Retires

Jones Dairy revealed that two of its stellar veterans—Charlie Neff and Tommy Fisher—have decided to bypass the City League for this year.

Joe Hoffman, the oldest City League manager in point of service, has been signed as manager of the Dobler entry. He succeeds George Magley. For the past several years the former catching great has piloted the Chez Emile franchise.

Schedule for week:

Tuesday—Wiltwyck Motors vs. Jones Dairy.

Wednesday — Colonial Merchants vs. Dobler's.

Thursday — Jones Dairy vs. Kingston Indians.

Joe Amato Hurls Grills to Upset Over Champions

Free Hitting in Every Contest

Subway Grill upended the defending champion Hilltop combine in the 1953 City Softball League feature opener, 13 to 7, yesterday at Hasbrouck Park.

One of the highlights of the game was a pinch hit home run by John "Daisy" Schatzel, who will be displaying his wares in the City Baseball League this evening.

Cherney's Grocers scored in telephone number style to crush Sickler's Delivery, 15 to 3.

In a free-swinging affair, the Alpine racked up an early lead to outdistance, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, 11 to 8.

Winning pitchers for the opening day were:

Subway Grill—Joe Amato.
Beichert's—Andy Murphy.
Cherney's—E Lowe.
Alpine—Don Koeppen.

Glaser Hits Four

Bill Glaser of Hilltop led the first day swingers with a "4 for 4" performance, including two doubles and two singles.

Fred Orr, of Subway, pounded a single, double and triple. Bob Schatzel rapped three singles and Al Hunt stroked a double and two singles.

C. Carter pounded three for Cherny's and Walt Matheus, veteran catcher, stroked a double and two solos.

Braves' Bob Buhl Pitches Milwaukee to League Tie

Amazing Rookie Blanks Phils, 4-0

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Parachute jumping isn't included in the normal course of instruction on how to become a winning major league pitcher but young hurlers may consider it when they study the amazing development of blazing Bob Buhl.

The 24-year-old righthander from Saginaw, Mich., is one of the newest reasons for the surprising success of the Milwaukee Braves. Last night in his biggest test so far, Buhl whipped the hard-hitting Philadelphia Phillies 4-0, and pulled the Braves into a first place tie with the Phils in the National League.

The ex-paratrooper scattered seven hits and has now worked 17 scoreless innings out of a possible 18 as a starting pitcher.

Two years in the army—much of it in Korea — worked a big change in Buhl. Although 19 battle jumps didn't give him time to do much pitching he somehow developed a pretty good curve and a beautiful change of pace to go with his good fast ball.

Praised By Grimm

"The improvement in the kid is amazing," declared his manager, Charlie Grimm. "Bob pitched for me when I managed Dallas in 1950. He was a wild youngster then. He had a pretty good fast ball but his curve was a mere wrinkle. He's still a bit wild, but just enough to keep those batters honest."

Last night's victory, which included a home run by Del Crandall, gave the Braves an even split in their first home series with the Phils.

Both teams gained ground over the weekend on the third place Brooklyn Dodgers, who lost again last night to the Cincinnati Reds, 2-1, in 10-innings. It was the Dodgers' fifth loss in six games. New York rallied to defeat St. Louis, 8-6, in the only other National League game.

Nats Stop Chisox

In the American League Detroit split a doubleheader with Boston, taking the first game 5-2, and losing the second, 8-5. Washington cooled off the Chicago White Sox, 3-0, and the other clubs weren't scheduled.

Ted Kluszewski homered with one out in the 10th inning for the Cincinnati triumph as the Dodgers equalled a modern league record by leaving 78 baserunners stranded in the first nine innings.

Bud Podbielan pitched an amazing game for the Redlegs. He walked 13 men in the first nine innings—one short of the modern National League record—gave up six hits and saw one man get aboard on an error. Yet he was scored on only once, in the first inning when Jackie Robinson followed two walks with a double.

The Giants put together five straight hits after two were out in the seventh at St. Louis. The big blow was Monte Irvin's home run with two on base which broke a 5-5 tie.

Old Connie Marrero had the White Sox fanning the night air trying to hit his "nuthin'" balls at Washington. He struck out nine and allowed only five hits.

Detroit jumped away to a three run lead in the first inning of its first game at Boston when Fred Hatfield and Steve Souchock doubled and Johnny Pesky and Walt Dropo singled. Mel Parnell scored his fifth straight victory in the second game but he needed help in the seventh from Ellis Kinder.

Paul Krichell and Yankees Have Another Like Ford in Southpaw Wizard From Troy

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Editor)

Superior ball players come to the Yankees in an endless flow.

Paul Krichell

An incomparable Ruth reaches the end of the line, and up pops a DiMaggio and then a Mantle. Frank Crosetti wears out and you have a Rizzuto. With three older pitchers currently showing rust, you see Eddie Ford.

In a catacomb of the Stadium the boys were cutting up Whitey Ford, his three in a row, two over the Indians in eight days—the last a one-hitter.

Another Like Him

"I have another just like him," remarked Paul Bernard Krichell, in a matter-of-fact way.

"Rip Coleman's his name, and he'll be along shortly." Chief Scout Krichell first pegged Walter Gary Coleman pitching high school ball in Troy, N. Y., guided him to Wake Forest College where he pitched three years. Coleman, just turned 21, is now completing his education at Wake Forest, is to report to Kansas City in June.

Coleman who stands more than 6 feet and weighs 180 pounds won 11 and lost 8 for Binghamton of the Class A Eastern League in half of last season. He struck out 147 in as many innings, as against 85 bases on balls, remarkable for a young southpaw. He completed 12 of 19 starts and had an earned-run average of 2.69.

A Great Record

Krichell, whose ruggedness belies his 70 years, has been the New York Yankees' eyes and nose since he came to the club from the Red Sox with Ed Barrow in the fall of 1920. The old catcher who has lost track of the many players he's signed recalled that the first one he landed was Hinky Haines, the Penn State football star who didn't quite make it with the bat.

The man who looks like everybody's uncle, first saw Lou Gehrig swatting the ball over trees at Rutgers. Next he saw the Dutch boy pitch against Pennsylvania at Columbia's south field.

"With the score 2-2," he recollects, "Gehrig hit the ball up on the library steps. That was enough for me."

Liked Durocher Too

Krichell liked Leo Durocher's shortstopping for Hartford in 1925.

"Why that fellow is hitting only .220 in the Eastern League," bellowed General Manager Barrow.

"But he plays shortstop like the old-time greats," countered Krich, mentioning Bobby Wallace, George McBride and Donnie Bush. "I believe he'll hit enough to make a place for himself."

Krich says that for a period of five or six years, Durocher was the finest shorstop he ever saw, a rare compliment coming from a veteran who picked Phil Rizzuto out of a mob of 60 kids.

Kell, Campanella Leading Hitters In the Majors

New York, May 19 (AP)—Mickey Vernon, the 35-year-old first baseman of the Washington Senators, has projected himself right into the thick of the American League batting race.

The lanky veteran advanced from tenth place to fourth during the week as he collected ten hits in 19 trips—a .526 clip. He boosted his average 36 points to .345 and now is in a position to challenge leader George Kell of the Boston Red Sox.

Kell continues to top the American League in batting with a .389 average while Roy Campanella of the Brooklyn Dodgers leads the National League hitters with a .359 mark, Figures include Monday's games.

Vernon's inconsistency at the plate during his 12-year American League career has been mystifying. He has hit over .300 only once, in 1946. That season he returned from two years in the Navy and batted a resounding .353 to win the American League batting crown. His lifetime average is .280.

Joe Amato Hurls Grills to Upset Over Champions

Free Hitting in Every Contest

Subway Grill upended the defending champion Hilltop combine in the 1953 City Softball League feature opener, 13 to 7, yesterday at Hasbrouck Park.

One of the highlights of the game was a pinch hit home run by John "Daisy" Schatzel, who will be displaying his wares in the City Baseball League this evening.

A couple of four-run innings, first and seventh, nailed down the Subway triumph.

Beichert's Studebakers rallied for seven runs in the sixth inning to defeat Lincoln Park Inn, 11-8.

Cherney's Grocers scored in telephone number style to crush Sickler's Delivery, 15 to 3.

In a free-swinging affair, the Alpine racked up an early lead to outdistance, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, 11 to 8.

Winning pitchers for the opening day were:

Subway Grill—Joe Amato.
Beichert's—Andy Murphy.
Cherney's—E Lowe.
Alpine—Don Koeppen.

Glaser Hits Four

Bill Glaser of Hilltop led the first day swingers with a "4 for 4" performance, including two doubles and two singles.

Fred Orr, of Subway, pounded a single, double and triple. Bob Schatzel rapped three singles and Ai Hunt stroked a double and two singles.

C. Carter pounded three for Cherny's and Walt Matheus, veteran catcher, stroked a double and two solos.

Souchock Scores After Catch

Detroit Tigers outfielder Steve Souchock scores from third base after Don Lund flied out to Red Sox centerfielder Tom Umphlett in the fourth inning of the first game of a doubleheader in Boston, May 18. The Red Sox catcher is Sam White, and the umpire Grover Froese. No. 1 is Fred Hatfield, Detroit third baseman.

Braves' Bob Buhl Pitches Milwaukee to League Tie

Amazing Rookie Blanks Phils, 4-0

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Parachute jumping isn't included in the normal course of instruction on how to become a winning major league pitcher but young hurlers may consider it when they study the amazing development of blazing Bob Buhl.

The 24-year-old righthander from Saginaw, Mich., is one of the newest reasons for the surprising success of the Milwaukee Braves. Last night in his biggest test so far, Buhl whipped the hard-hitting Philadelphia Phillies 4-0, and pulled the Braves into a first place tie with the Phils in the National League.

The ex-paratrooper scattered seven hits and has now worked 17 scoreless innings out of a possible 18 as a starting pitcher.

Two years in the army—much of it in Korea — worked a big change in Buhl. Although 19 battle jumps didn't give him time to do much pitching he somehow developed a pretty good curve and a beautiful change of pace to go with his good fast ball.

Praised By Grimm

"The improvement in the kid is amazing," declared his manager, Charlie Grimm. "Bob pitched for me when I managed Dallas in 1950. He was a wild youngster then. He had a pretty good fast ball but his curve was a mere wrinkle. He's still a bit wild, but just enough to keep those batters honest."

Last night's victory, which included a home run by Del Crandall, gave the Braves an even split in their first home series with the Phils.

Both teams gained ground over the weekend on the third place Brooklyn Dodgers, who lost again last night to the Cincinnati Reds, 2-1, in 10-innings. It was the Dodgers' fifth loss in six games. New York rallied to defeat St. Louis, 8-6, in the only other National League game.

Nats Stop Chisox

In the American League Detroit split a doubleheader with Boston, taking the first game 5-2, and losing the second, 8-5. Washington cooled off the Chicago White Sox, 3-0, and the other clubs weren't scheduled.

Ted Kluszewski homered with one out in the 10th inning for the Cincinnati triumph as the Dodgers equalled a modern league record by leaving 78 baserunners stranded in the first nine innings.

Bud Podbielan pitched an amazing game for the Redlegs. He walked 13 men in the first nine innings—one short of the modern National League record—gave up six hits and saw one man get aboard on an error. Yet he was scored on only once, in the first inning when Jackie Robinson followed two walks with a double.

The Giants put together five straight hits after two were out in the seventh at St. Louis. The big blow was Monte Irvin's home run with two on base which broke a 5-5 tie.

Old Connie Marrero had the White Sox fanning the night air trying to hit his "nuthin'" balls at Washington. He struck out nine and allowed only five hits.

Detroit jumped away to a three run lead in the first inning of its first game at Boston when Fred Hatfield and Steve Souchock doubled and Johnny Pesky and Walt Dropo singled. Mel Parnell scored his fifth straight victory in the second game but he needed help in the seventh from Ellis Kinder.

BYA Leage Opens

Japanese Rename Yoshida as Head

Tokyo, May 19 (AP)—Aging Shigeru Yoshida today was chosen Prime Minister of Japan by the House which handed him two stinging defeats Monday.

The Liberal party leader polled 204 votes against 116 for Mamoru Shighemitsu, leader of the rival Progressive party.

Yoshida 75, has headed four Japanese Cabinets since World 2. He is regarded as pro-American.

Seventy-seven members of the House abstained on the final roll call. Most were members of the Rightist Socialist party.

Monday a coalition of four opposition parties, including the Rightist Socialists, swept Yoshida's political foes into the key jobs of House speaker and vice-speaker. If the coalition had held through today's vote for prime-minister Yoshido could have been unseated.

Boy Still Not Claimed

New York, May 19 (AP)—Found—one boy, about 3 years old, clad in cowboy attire, discovered wandering about Central Park zoo. This is what New York city police might say in an advertisement concerning a lost youngster whom nobody seems to have lost. Officers found the boy in the zoo on Sunday. Usually lost boys are claimed by a frantic parent in a matter of hours. But not in this case. The newspapers carried pictures of him all day yesterday, and still nobody claimed him. Police said they checked a few clues but got nowhere.

Stolen Sedan Located

Local police were notified Monday night that a sedan stolen from the lot of the Bev Anderson Chevrolet Inc., 731 Broadway, had been located by state police at Liberty. A police check revealed that the license plate on the abandoned car had been issued for the sedan of Oliver Samuel Simons, 151 Liberty street, who said he was unaware that the plate had been taken. It was indicated also that the Chevrolet agency was checking on the missing vehicle at the time local police were notified of its recovery.

Japanese Rename Yoshida as Head

Tokyo, May 19 (AP)—Aging Shigeru Yoshida today was chosen Prime Minister of Japan by the House which handed him two stinging defeats Monday.

The Liberal party leader polled 204 votes against 116 for Mamoru Shighemitsu, leader of the rival Progressive party.

Yoshida 75, has headed four Japanese Cabinets since World 2. He is regarded as pro-American.

Seventy-seven members of the House abstained on the final roll call. Most were members of the Rightist Socialist party.

Monday a coalition of four opposition parties, including the Rightist Socialists, swept Yoshida's political foes into the key jobs of House speaker and vice-speaker. If the coalition had held through today's vote for prime-minister, Yoshido could have been unseated.

Boy Still Not Claimed

New York, May 19 (AP)—Found—one boy, about 3 years old, clad in cowboy attire, discovered wandering about Central Park zoo. This is what New York city police might say in an advertisement concerning a lost youngster whom nobody seems to have lost. Officers found the boy in the zoo on Sunday. Usually lost boys are claimed by a frantic parent in a matter of hours. But not in this case. The newspapers carried pictures of him all day yesterday, and still nobody claimed him. Police said they checked a few clues but got nowhere.

Stolen Sedan Located

Local police were notified Monday night that a sedan stolen from the lot of the Bev Anderson Chevrolet Inc., 731 Broadway, had been located by state police at Liberty. A police check revealed that the license plate on the abandoned car had been issued for the sedan of Oliver Samuel Simons, 151 Liberty street, who said he was unaware that the plate had been taken. It was indicated also that the Chevrolet agency was checking on the missing vehicle at the time local police were notified of its recovery.

Buddy Poppy Sale To Begin May 21

Commander Hubert A. Richter of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 1386 said today that the VFW, a 1,200,000-strong organization of overseas war veterans, was the first veteran organization to sell memorial poppies on a national scale.

The Buddy Poppy sale will be held this year from May 21 through May 23.

Commander Richter said that the Buddy Poppy was first offered the public by the VFW in 1922, and through the years since millions of veteran-made flowers have been sold. The proceeds go toward the rehabilitation and relief of veterans and their dependents and toward support of the VFW national home for veterans' orphans and widows at Eaton Rapids, Mich., the only home of its type in the country.

The VFW was founded in 1899. Its motto, exemplified by the Buddy Poppy sale and projects it makes possible, is: "We honor the dead by helping the living."

Buddy Poppy Sale To Begin May 21

Commander Hubert A. Richter of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 1386 said today that the VFW, a 1,200,000-strong organization of overseas war veterans, was the first veteran organization to sell memorial poppies on a national scale.

The Buddy Poppy sale will be held this year from May 21 through May 23.

Commander Richter said that the Buddy Poppy was first offered the public by the VFW in 1922, and through the years since millions of veteran-made flowers have been sold. The proceeds go toward the rehabilitation and relief of veterans and their dependents and toward support of the VFW national home for veterans' orphans and widows at Eaton Rapids, Mich., the only home of its type in the country.

The VFW was founded in 1899. Its motto, exemplified by the Buddy Poppy sale and projects it makes possible, is: "We honor the dead by helping the living."
